'Al' Capone Mad in Jail, Is Report

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8 (INS)—It was reported in police circles here today that Alphonse (Scarface) Al Capone, one-time czar of Chicago's prohibition era gangsters, has gone insane and was under observation in the hospital at Alcatraz Island prison.

Warden James A. Johnston on the island refused comment on the report.

"I'll make no comment about any prisoner being examined by any doctor," said Johnson after being questioned concerning reports a San Francisco phychiatrist had examined Capone on Sunday.

Johnson said any statement concerning Capone's condition "or the condition of any other individual prisoner" would have to come from the federal director of prisons in Washington.

Johnston was asked specifically whether Dr. Edward Twitchell had examined Capone unday and found him insane.

"I have no comment to make," said Johnston.

The warden also refused to discuss reports Capone went berserk about 10 days ago and started to kick several convicts.

"Dr. Twitchell will have to stand on his own statement," said Johnston. "However, I cannot believe he made the statements attributed to him."

Capone was among the first of the desperate felons brought to Alcatraz in 1934, when "The Rock" was made America's "Devil's Island" for its most incorrigible prisoners.

Duke's Aide Spikes Paris Report

VERSAILLES, France, Feb. 8 (AP)—Thomas H. Carter, secretary to the Duke of Windsor, issued the following statement today in response to a question by the Associated Press regarding French reports of the prospective birth of a child to the Duke and Duchess:

"This rumor was denied some time ago. There is nothing further to add."

VIENNA, Feb. 8 (INS)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor will arrive at Kitzbuehl, Austria, next week for the winter sports season, it was announced today. The duke and duchess moved into their newly rented chateau in Versailles, a suburb of Paris, only yesterday.

Civilized Nations Should Abolish Barbarities of War, Says W. R. Hearst

Advocate of "Peace Amendment" Urges a World Congress to Enforce "Humane Code"

(Written by William Randolph Hearst and published in the Boston Evening American, Nov. 29, 1937.)

November 29, 1937.

To the Editor of the Boston American:

I HAVE personally, in signed articles and through the newspapers, advocated for many years — twenty at least — the proposition which Senator Capper is now sponsoring in Congress: namely, a referendum vote by the citizenship of the United States in order at any time to authorize any warfare in which the United States is the AGGRESSOR.

I believe that the temper of the people is such that the amendment to the Constitution required for such a policy would soon be endorsed.

I think it is important for our papers continually to present this proposal to the consideration of the people.

The Hearst papers should, furthermore, embark upon a powerful and persistent sustained advocacy of a new and humane code of warfare.

The horrors of the Chinese-Japanese conflict and of the Spanish civil war show that if the world is to remain civilized, a new code of warfare must be devised for the protection and preservation of civilization.

The ravages of the dum-dum bullet and other cruel instruments of warfare which have been banned from use in war are as nothing compared with the ravages of the bomb from the air.

Moreover, the use of the dum-dum bullet was confined to combatants.

The butchery of air bombardment is inflicted upon noncombatants including women and babies.

It is a frightful indictment of our alleged civilization that nations should desire to practice these horrors, even though permitted to by any existing code of warfare.

But since there are such nations, in fact since all nations would probably use these frightful methods, and possibly be forced into using them unless there are firmly established rules to prevent, the immediate necessity of changing fundamentally the method and practice of warfare is obvious.

LAWS must be made which confine hostilities to combatants and the horrors of bombardment to forti-

Hull Denies Secret U. S. War Pacts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (INS)—Secretary of State Hull today flatly denied that the United States has an "understanding" or alliance with any foreign nation or nations for co-operative action in armaments expansion or relating to war.

In a letter to Senator Key Pittman (D.) of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, read by him in the Senate, Hull registered a simple "no" to all question raised in the resolution sponsored by Senator Hiram Johnson (R.) of California, which requested information concerning foreign commitments.

Immediately after Pittman read the letter, Johnson obtained unanimous consent for an indefinite postponement of consideration of his resolution to have the Senate ask Hull whether the administration had any agreement or under-

Boy Gravely Hurt As Horse Bolts

A milkman's 16-year-old helper was severely injured today when a horse bolted at Waldemar avenue, East Boston, ran through a wooden fence and plunged down a 60-foot embankment to the Narrow Gauge tracks.

The boy, Anthony Dell Orfano, of Decatur street, East Boston, who had clung to the seat during the 100-yard ride of terror, was thrown on the embankment when the horse and wagon went into a series of somersaults.

At East Boston Relief Station he was found suffering from two punctured lungs, several broken ribs, a possible fractured skull and fractured spine.

The horse broke loose from the crumpled wagon alongside the tracks but fell between two steel uprights a short distance away.

The animal was beyond aid and was shot by Patrolman Peter Birmingham. Railroad workers worked for more than an hour with a derrick to remove the horse.

Eugene Chiampa of Leyden street, East Boston, the driver, was delivering milk nearby when the horse bolted, according to police.

John Curley Very Ill

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 8—John Curley, brother of James M. Curley, former Governor of Massachusetts, was reported "very sick" at Jackson Memorial Hospital today after a sudden relapse in his pneumonia illness.

Sues Sister For Balm of $100,000

Two sisters, one of whom says the other stole her husband (and still has him), confronted each other before Judge George C. Sweeney and a jury in federal court today.

They are Mrs. Ada Guyette of Rochester, N. Y., and Mrs. Bertha McDevitt, a widow, of Boston. Mrs. Guyette is suing Mrs. McDevitt, her sister, for $100,000 damages, charging alienation of affections.

MOTHER SOBS ON STAND

A dramatic incident occurred when frail, white-haired Mrs. Cora Munger of Rochester, mother of the embattled sisters, took the witness stand.

Overcome by emotion after brief testimony, she burst into tears and was assisted from the stand by Mrs. Guyette, who rushed from her seat to help her mother. Mrs. McDevitt, showing obvious signs of emotion, remained seated as the elderly

Invalid, 2 Boys Saved in Fire

A 50-year-old semi-invalid and two young boys were rescued, three others were driven out and a fireman was partly overcome and injured when a fire broke out today in the cellar of a three-story dwelling on Norfolk street, Dorchester.

One of the boys, James Boyle, Jr., five, suffered smoke inhalation and was revived on the street.

His brother, David, three, was burned about the hands and arms and taken to City Hospital. Both boys were playing in the cellar.

Overcome by smoke while battling the flames inside the house, Fireman Arthur Bourto of Callender street, Dorchester, attached to Engine 52, fell and injured his leg. He was treated on the scene.

Miss Susan Courtney, 50, the semi-invalid living on the second floor, discovered the blaze when she spied smoke pouring through a rear door of the apartment.

She notified Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Killon, other occupants, who were in another part of the apartment, and the latter called the fire department.

James Boyle, father of the two boys, was driven out of the third-floor apartment. No one was home in the first-floor apartment, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hartley.

Damage was estimated at between $1500 and $2000. The cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

Slips Into Trouble

Boasts of Many Crimes

Miss Mildred Shea, alias Mildred O'Connor, alias Mary Rowe, 24-year-old South Boston blonde, who told police today she witnessed the slaying of David (Beano) Breen, and that she has taken part in several holdups and holdup kidnapings. The girl, a former waitress, was arrested near South Station when she tripped, her handbag flew out of her grasp and opened on the sidewalk, and two policemen nearby saw a revolver in it.

John F. Tells How He Won Over O'Neil for Congress

By JOHN F. FITZGERALD
(As told to Paul Whelton)

Patrick J. Kennedy of East Boston, successful business man and late father of Joseph P. Kennedy, was with me in my State Senate term.

Others who served with me in the Senate, and whom I recall offhand, included Edward J. Leary, now Boston city messenger; William P. Buckley of Holyoke, Richard Carter of Lawrence, Maurice Coughlin of Holliston and John H. Dee, Charlestown florist.

Speaking of florists, it comes back to me that in those days nearly all the florists in Boston were Irish—why, I don't know.

Dee was one of them. The Galvins were another outfit. Then there were William Doogue and a Doyle. For a time Doogue had charge of the Public Garden and Richard Olney often commented on his abstract and impersonal love of beauty.

As I was completing my Senate term in 1894, Joseph H. O'Neil, onetime president of the now closed Federal Trust Company, was finish-

Girl Held As Gun Falls

"I saw 'Beano' Breen murdered!"

Arrested in Dewey square when she tripped and two officers saw a revolver in her opened handbag, a 24-year-old South Boston blonde amazed the police by declaring she had witnessed the slaying of Breen, the racketeer, in the Metropolitan Hotel last December.

She also told a story of participating in holdups and holdup-kidnapings, asserted she drove the getaway car for two men who shot and robbed a policeman in Dorchester.

As a result of her story, police said they are looking for a second girl, named Marion, through whom, the blonde said, she met an accomplice of the Breen slayer.

The blond gun girl said the automobile out of which she stepped at dawn today in Dewey square, only to trip and drop her handbag, is owned by the man who threw the Breen murder gun into Fort Point channel from the Summer street bridge.

5 MEN QUESTIONED

An immediate check of her story was begun. One man was arrested in his Waltham street, South End, room. Four others, who had been picked up in a general roundup in the West End, were questioned.

The girl, as part of her amazing story, said two of these four men had engaged in banditry with her.

In the police headquarters lineup today, however, all four of the West End pickups denied knowing the girl.

When first taken to Milk street station, the girl said her name was Mary Rowe and that she lived in South Boston. Then she said her name was Mildred O'Connor, but finally when recognized as a girl who has been a waitress in several downtown cafes, she admitted standing with foreign nations for joint action i the event of war.

Hull Denies U. S. In Secret Pacts

HIS ANSWER IS "NO"

To the specific question in the Johnson resolution, whether any alliance, agreement or understanding exists, or is contemplated, with Great Britain, relating to war or the possibility of war, Hull gave a plain "no."

Likewise, he answered "no" to the question of whether there is any understanding for the use of the American navy in conjunction with any other nation.

Again, he replied "no" at the last question in the resolution, whether there is any agreement, expressed or implied, with any nation that the United States navy should patrol any particular waters or any particular ocean.

TEXT OF HIS REPLY

The text of Hull's letter follows:

"My Dear Senator Pittman:

"My attention has been called to Senate resolution number 229 introduced by Senator Johnson of California on January 5 (calendar Feb. 7), 1938, and ordered to lie on the table.

"Under the terms of the proposed resolution, the secretary of state is requested, if it be not incompatible with the public interest, to advise the Senate in response to three inquiries.

"For your information, and for such use as you may desire to make thereof, I desire to state to you very definitely that in response to Point (A), which reads 'whether or not any allience, agreement or understanding exists or is contemplated with Great Britain relating to war or the possibility of war,' the answer is, no.

"In response to Point (B), which reads 'whether or not there is any understanding or agreement, expressed or implied, for the use of the navy of the United States in conjunction with any other nation,' the answer is, no.

"With regard to Point (C), which reads, 'whether or not there is and understanding or agreement, expressed or implied, with any nation, that the United States navy, or any part of it, should police or patrol or be transferred to any particular waters or any particular ocean,' the answer is, no."

NO BRITISH PACT

Hull's letter was designed to put the quietus on rumors that the administration has a secret pact with Great Britain for co-operative action in the Far East and in the troubled European situation.

Senators and Representatives in both parties had joined in demands that the administration publicly declare itself on the matter.

While Senator Johnson long has championed a "big navy," other senators who favored a "little navy" supported the resolution, with the object of using the administration's answer in the impending debate on the $800,000,000 armaments bill.

After complimenting Hull for his "prompt and proper consideration" of the appeal, ohnson consented to have the resolution postponed. The request to lay it aside came from Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky, with Pittman approving.

"I compliment the Secretary of State upon his prompt and proper consideration of the matter at hand," said oJhnson. "He has handled this matter in a way which is appropriate, with a categorical and explicit denial of these ugly rumors that have been sweeping the coutnry.

"We ought to deal with these subjects in the open, and the Secretary of State has dealt with it very wisely."

U. S. Invited to Join Parley to Ban Air Raids

(Copyright, 1938.)

LONDON, Feb. 8 (INS)—The United States will be invited by Great Britain to join in discussing the possibility of concluding an international agreement to humanize aerial warfare, International News Service learned today.

The proposed agreement would outlaw bombarding of non-combatants.

Britain's invitation to Washington, it was learned, will be extended as soon as preparatory work which government experts are now corrying on is completed. Their efforts are directed toward finding a practical basis of discussion.

The first hint that Britain was launching a new move to spare helpless cvilians the horrors of air raids on undefended towns and cities was contained in a dispatch from Rome stating Italy "welcomed" British overtures in this regard.

WOULD CURB AIR RAIDS

Investigation disclosed that for some time the British government has been carrying out a survey with the express intention of opening discussions with the major world powers, including the United States.

The agreement which Britain has in mind would declare illegal all aerial bombardments unless directed against military objectives.

Experts are now endeavoring to define what constitutes military objectives. In China, and Spain, for example, the combatants have regarded power plants, water works and similar buildings as military objectives, even though they may lie in densely populated areas.

If it is found that certain military objectives cannot be attacked without "indiscriminate bombardment of civilian population" Britan favors outlawng such attacks entrely.

Foreign Secretary Eden instructed British envoys in European capitals to emphasize the importance Britain places upon conclution of such an agreement. Eden himself is doing the same in conversation with foreign envoys here.

ITALIAN IN PARLEY

Formay discussions have not yet commenced, and will not until the survey has been completed. It was significant, however, that the first hint of the proposal came from rome. Eden was in conference overthe week-end on two occasions with Count Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador.

In moving again for abolition of aerial bombardment of open towns, Britain is reviving a proposal made by her in 1933. At that time, a draft convention was submitted to a disarmament conference at Geneva, outlawing all aerial bombardments except for police purposes in areas removed from centers of population.

The latter proviso was made on the grounds Britain might be compelled to resort to bombardment to quell disturbances or uprisings in such places as the northwest frontier beyond the reach of ordinary means of military transportation.

fied military places, and which leave noncombatants — men, women and children — free from the murderous attacks of airplanes and military ordnance.

In order to formulate and agree upon and enforce rules of civilized warfare, there should be a congress of nations in which these rules are discussed and finally voted upon and accepted as regulations and restrictions applying rigorously to all nations.

A nation which declares war and prosecutes war should thereafter conform to these rules or be treated as a criminal by the civilized nations of the world, and if necessary, suppressed as an outlaw and a bandit.

A nation which conducts war without declaring war, no matter whether it proceeds under the accepted rules of civilized warfare or not, should be declared an outlaw and a bandit and proceeded against as such.

It will probably be said by some that this is a reversal of the attitude of the Hearst papers with regard to the League of Nations.

Of course, however, it is nothing of the kind.

The Hearst newspapers have ALWAYS advocated co-operation between nations to prevent war and to limit the ravages of war.

We have ALWAYS supported the Hague Tribunal, which is a congress of nations to impose INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION.

We have always been willing and eager to see the nations of the world unite in support of certain DEFINITE AND PRESCRIBED PEACE POLICIES.

But we have been utterly unwilling to see the United States join a league of nations and be a minority member of any combination of foreign nations, the majority of which could control the action of the United States and the policy of the United States — and not merely on a specific proposition, but on any proposition which might come before this conclave of foreign nations.

THE difference between the two systems is distinct and fundamental.

In the Hague Tribunal or any similar congress of nations, the United States would be committed only to specific program which the congress was called upon to discuss and decide; while with the League of Nations, the United States would be joining an assemblage of nations and be a minority member of the League and be committed in advance to ANY policy which might come before the League and be determined upon by a majority of the League.

Of course there must continually be co-operation between nations for the protection and progress of civilization; but that co-operation should be in every case for some specific purpose, which our people and our government must understand and APPROVE in advance.

Under this heading comes properly a congress of nations to discuss, adopt and enforce rules of civilized warfare.

The world may not have arrived at a point where it can stop war.

BUT IT CAN CERTAINLY STOP A RETURN TO SAVAGERY IN THE PROSECUTION OF WAR.

And possibly the best way to stop war ENTIRELY is step by step to eliminate its most conspicuous and vicious evils.

I would like our papers to advocate this congress of nations to draw up rigid rules for the prosecution of civilized warfare.

I do not think our papers should stop with inactive advocacy of this proposal. They should labor in every way to cause and create this congress, and to secure the adoption of a civilized and humanitarian international code of effective law.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

War Would End for All Time if Decision Were Left to the PEOPLE'S Vote, Says Mr. Hearst

The following letter to the editor from William Randolph Hearst was published in the Boston American on JULY 1, 1917.

June 28, 1917.

To the Editor of the American:

OF course the ultimate object of this war, or any other war, is eventually to make a proper peace, and inasmuch as OUR nation, at least, sincerely believes in peace, OUR object should be to to make the most just and most enduring peace possible.

Russia has decided, according to Mr. Root's report, not to make a separate peace, but to remain staunchly true to her allies. This action of Russia is of determining importance to the allies, and should be appreciated by them.

In return, the allies should give some consideration to Russia's natural desire for peace and to the terms which Russia believes essential to a permanent and mutually beneficial peace.

Undoubtedly Russia's demand for a peace without idemnity or territorial annexation is a plan which would bring immediate peace, and it would seem reasonable that the American people should sympathize with and subscribe to a proper plan for immediate peace, provided some means of minimizing the danger of future wars can be added thereto.

The plan to prevent future wars, suggested by the Administration, is the democratization of nations. Undoubtedly this is a sound solution, if only this democratization can be extended to all nations and can be made fundamental in character.

The mere deposing of the Emperor of Germany and the Emperor of Austria would accomplish but little toward the desired result. There are more kings and emperors among allies at present than there are among the Central Powers.

But if all kings and all emperors were deposed in all nations, we would still not have a democratization sufficiently radical to prevent war.

THE United States is a Republic, but the United States went into this war without having secured the consent of its people or having sought to secure the consent of its people, although it had two years and a half in which to do so.

The United States went into this war although the only thing which most nearly approached a general public expression of opinion in regard to the war was the election of a Democratic President and a Democratic Congress upon a program and pledge of peace, after a convention and a campaign in which the question of peace and the peace record of the Democratic party were formally declared to be the chief issue before the citizenship.

Every nation in this World War has been precipitated into the war by its RULERS, and no nation has gone into the war through a REFERENDUM VOTE OF THE PEOPLE. The only way actually to prevent war is to repose the right and power to declare war with the people alone, and to make it impossible for war to be declared except through a REFERENDUM VOTE of the people.

If no country could go to war until the question of going to war had been submitted to the people and had been approved by the people by a referendum vote in which both the men and women participated equally, there would be no AGGRESSIVE warfare in the world, and that would practically mean the end of war.

A TRUE demonstration of the nations of the world would therefore end war, but nothing less than such a genuine democratization will end war. We must not place our dependence on empty names and phrases. We must build our plans for world peace on fundamental facts.

Democracy means, literally translated, "the power of the people," and NO SYSTEM of government is a democracy in which the people themselves lack the power of deciding that greatest and most important of all public questions, the question of peace and war.

Let democracy, like charity, "begin at home." If the United States is starting out to democratize the world in order to prevent war, let it begin by democratizing itself, in order to prevent war and give an example to the world of exactly how this democratization can be secured and how it will operate.

Let the Constitution of the United States be amended so as to repose in the people alone, through a referendum vote, the sole right and power to declare war. Then let the United States insist that other nations adopt a similar plan and policy.

Such a system and such a method of procedure on the part of the United States will reach to the root of the situation, and nothing else will.

IT does not matter whether the German people shall call their nation a republic and their ruler a President or not. If their ruler shall have the power to declare war, he will always be able to involve his nation and other nations in war.

It does not matter whether the German people shall call their nation an empire and their ruler a Kaiser, or not. If he shall NOT have the power to declare war, he will not be able to involve his people and other peoples in war.

It does not matter whether our people shall call their ruler a President, or an Emperor, or shall call our assembled representatives a Congress, or a Parliament, or a Duma or a Reichstag. It is not the names of the ruling bodies which constitute a democracy, but the powers which they possess, or rather do not possess.

The determining question is not the name of the government or the type of government, but whether under any type of government the people reserve to themselves the power and privilege to declare war through a referendum vote.

When this genuine democratization of the nations of the world, including the United States, shall have been accomplished, we will have an end of war, and not before.

All our waste of wealth, all our sacrifice of lives, all our exhaustion of resources, all our patient suffering of the burden of debt, all our ideals, all our efforts will be of no avail in the averting of war unless we genuinely democratize Teutonic Powers and Entente Allies, and the United States of America.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

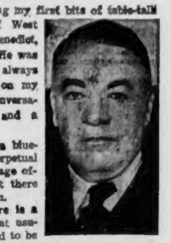
Gen. Johnson Says:

BENEDICT O. K.

West Point Choice Approved

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—"Mis-ter Benedict! Suckupya gut! Gitchachinin! Wipe that smile offya face! Gitcha shoulders back and make a collection uv yaself!"



HUGH S. JOHNSON

Something like that was among my first bits of table-talk with the new superintendent of West Point, Brigadier-General Jay L. Benedict, and he was on the receiving end. He was my rear-rank file, which means he always marched behind me and stepped on my heels, and that was customary conversation between an upperclassman and a plebe.

Fourthclassman Benedict was a blue-eyed Nebraska farm boy with a perpetual smile on his face. He was an average officer. By "average," I mean that there was nothing spectacular about him.

In every West Point class there is a brilliant, well disciplined group that usually comes out at the top. They used to be called "the nice boys." There is another Bolshevik group—sometimes brilliant and sometimes not—that usually comes out "goats" and were called—and liked to be called, "toughs." In between is a solid hard-working group for which there is no better word than "average" cadets. The classification doesn't seem to mean much in later service.

Owen D. Young has a lecture, that he sometimes gives to General Electric employes, with a title something like this: "What you have under your hat is not so important as what you have in the seat of your pants." Which is a rather startling way of saying that, in his great company anyway, the ability to sit tight and stick it out is of more importance than a brilliant brain. Loyalty, perseverance, hard work and balanced judgment are better than a scintillating but eratic mentality.

A great many people were surprised that Benedict was jumped over the heads of many older men of jonger service, especially as he has no combat record. Even more were astonished to learn that he was made superintendent of the Military Academy, especially as he has no shining scholastic attainments.

Nobody would have been surprised, who had stopped to consider the homely philosophy of the Chief of Staff, General Malin Craig. Throughout his whole service he has shown a preference for the type of soldier and officer that Owen Young's lecture likes. None of his own spectacular success ever went to General Craig's head. I have known him to prefer some sergeants to some field officers. None of his selections for the staff and command of our Army have been of the sky-rocket type.

He believes that the personality of the superintendent sinks deep into the forming personalities of undergraduate cadets. Benedict could have been the very model of Owen Young's talk. He had done well every job that he had to do. There is not the slightest smirch on his record of almost 40 years service.

He is a kindly and considerate man of sweet and even temper without the slightest side, strut, pretense, or brass-hat and fuss-and-feathers traits of soldiering. He is also a realist who will not treat the cadets to the kind of grandmothering which sometimes goes with such temperament and which those boys hate worse even than martinet discipline.

Both officers and men are going to like Benedict and the graduates he produces will bear the print of his simplicity and thoroughness. I am glad he has announced he does not feel himself annointed to make the Academy over. For its particular purpose, it has proved itself the greatest educational institution in the world.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

"Washington Merry-Go-Round," by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, sprightly and informative column on the inside activities of political Washington, is now a daily feature of the Boston Evening American. It will also appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser every Sunday.

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Joe Davies and his breakfast-food heiress bride, the former Marjorie Post Hutton, have been touring through adjacent Maryland lately in search of a country estate big enough for an 18-hole golf course.

They want a place near Washington to use at such times as they are not at Joe's new ambassadorial post in Belgium. This job was supposed ot begin July 1, when Ambassador Hugh Gibson retires. But Joe has succeeded in pushing Gibson out in March and until that time, Joe is surprising everyone by going back to his present diplomatic job as ambassador to Russia.

Mrs. Davies, who never enjoyed the rigors of Moscow or the lack of plumbing fixtures, will wait for him here.

After Joe transfers to Belgium the Administration is thinking of sending Lowell Mellett to Moscow as ambassador. Mellett, one of the most forthright and brilliant newspapermen in the Capital, recently resigned as editor of the Washington News, a Scripps-Howard paper.

While he would make an excellent ambassador to Russia, he is also being considered for the Maritime Commission, where there is a vacancy.

Note—Ambassador Hugh Gibson is expected to retire from diplomacy after thirty years' service, but friends are trying to wangle him the job of minister to Canada.

LITTLE MAN—Everybody knows that Little-Business-Man A. S. Shafer of Philadelphia was dragged from last week's conference by guards because he wouldn't stop talking, but few know that what he eventually wanted to display was a placard reading:

"LET'S PASS A RESOLUTION FOR A BETTER FIVE-CENT CIGAR AND NO TAX."

SECRET LUNCHEON—A secret luncheon took place the other day for the purpose of reconciling Marriner Eccles, head of the Federal Reserve Board, and John L. Lewis, head of the CIO and United Mine Workers.

Eccles, a powerful Utah business man and banker, is one of the administration's No. 1 critics of labor, and Jerome Frank, SEC commissioner, who is a friend of both Eccles and Lewis, wanted them to get together. Present at the luncheon were Phil Murray, United Mine workers' executive, and Lee Pressman, counsel to Lewis. The meeting was pleasant, but accomplished little. Eccles did most of the talking.

Finally Frank, who had to leave early, said:

"John Marriner has been giving you all his ideas; why don't you give him yours?"

For a brief interval thereafter the CIO chief held forth. But on the basic principle of wages there was absolutely no agreement. Eccles says they are too high. Lewis says they are not high enough.

On only one important point did the two men agree—namely, that the government should spend money.

MERRY-GO-ROUND—Jim Landis came back from Cambridge the other day, wearing an old slouch hat, and revisited former haunts in the SEC. He also had a talk with Tom Corcoran and Justice Brandeis . . . Joe Kennedy is doing his home work. He has been reporting daily at the State Department to learn the ropes on his new job as ambassador to the Court of St. James's . . . Labor Department is thinking about going in for drama. The play —if produced—is "Pins and Needles," current Broadway success staged by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and the occasion is the 25th anniversary of the establishment of Labor Department . . . Mrs. Roosevelt saw and commented on the play "Sunup and Sundown," before it opened. It is a child labor play about work in the tobacco fields . . . Asked where he got the basket nests provided for birds in the National Zoo, Director William Mann said, "From Japan, I fear."

Birth Case Fight Weighed by Court

Hearings End as State Holds Question Only One of Violation of Law

Hearings in the first legal test of the 59-year-old state birth control statute were terminated today when the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court took under advisement the appeal of four women found guilty in Salem Superior Court of giving away contraceptives.

MRS. CAROLYN T. GARDNER
Aided Poor, Plea

Assistant District Attorney John J. Ryan of Essex County ended the case with presentation of the state's argument, in which he asserted that the problem was legislative and not judicial.

His summation followed concluding remarks by Attorney Robert G. Dodge, defense counsel, who indicated he would carry the fight to the United States Supreme Court if necessary. Dodge maintained that the statute was a violation of the privileges and immunities clause of the 14th Amendment to the the U. S. Constitution.

The assistant district attorney told the court:

"The issue here is narrow. It is not whether birth control is a good thing that the court is to consider, or that a charitable organization is concerned, or what the best sociologists think of it. The question is whether the law has been violated."

Ryan asserted also that the problem should be met by proposing legislation similar to that enacted in New York, whereby physicians are privileged to prescribe the use of birth control devices when necessary to preserve life or health.

It is expected that some time will elapse before a decision is rendered.

A crowded courtroom, including persons interested in birth control organizations, heard Judge Dodge issue a fervent appeal for the four defendants, Dr. Lucille Lord-Heinstein of Dorchester, Mrs. Flora Rand, Brookline nurse; Mrs. Carolyn T. Gardner of Salem, and Miss Pamelia Ferris of Marblehead.

Though the case deals specifically with the alleged violation of the law by members of the North Shore Mothers' Health Office, it is being watched closely as a test case by the groups in Boston and Brookline waiting trial of their cases.

CLAIM POOR SUFFER

Dodge declared that to withhold from "poor and ignorant married women" the means of preventing conception under competent medical guidance was to deprive them of their constitutional rights.

He argued that the statute outlawing the sale of contraceptives does not apply to married women when ordered by a doctor for the health and safety of the woman.

The North Shore Mothers' Health Office, he said, was organized to "set up a place for poor people to gain the same service that married women of means have always been able to get from their physician."

'FAVORED BY DOCTORS'

Poor wives were helped, he explained after a doctor's examination revealed further motherhood would be dangerous.

Out of 1321 doctors of the Massachusetts Medical Society, he stated, 93 per cent favor the use of contraceptives and declared it is common for physicians to prescribe them. Contraceptives were issued to the women only upon order of a doctor, Dodge added.

Link With Founder Of Red Cross Dies

Where Boy's Ride of Terror Ended

It's seldom you read of a runaway horse these days. This vivid photo diagram shows what happened when one horse bolted while harnessed to a milk wagon in East Boston. With 16-year-old Anthony Delfano clinging to the wagon, the horse ran down Waldemar avenue, into another street and through the fence as indicated. As a result of a series of somersaults, the boy was thrown clear on the spot shown while the wagon was crumpled. Note the rear wheel, front wheels and milk cases. The horse was pinned between two uprights a short distance away after breaking loose. The animal, beyond aid, was destroyed.

Golf Queen Loses $100,000 Gems

PALM BEACH, Feb. 8 (AP)—Police Chief Joe Borman said today Mrs. Philip D. Hill of London, well known golfer and wife of a British financier, reported the theft of almost $100,000 in jewels from her Palm Beach home.

The jewels were taken Sunday afternoon, he said, adding that several guests and servants were in the house at the time. Investigation failed to show how the thief had entered.

The stolen gems, he said, were reported taken from a small jewel case left in a closet, but several thousands of dollars worth of other jewels were left undisturbed on a dressing table in the same room.

Mrs. Hill, who qualified yesterday for the first flight in the annual Palm Beach women's golf championship, and Mr. Hill are living at the home of Mrs. Margaret Emerson Baker, drug fortune heiress, which they have leased for the season.

Everybody Doesn't Love Lover, 22, of 'Girl,' 70

UNIONVILLE, Ct., Feb. 8 (INS)—Everybody loves a lover—that is, almost everybody.

At least it seemed that way today as John J. Lorencik, 22-year-old farmer, received more fan mail along with a marriage license to wed his 70-year-old sweetheart, Henrietta Wilhelmina Pieper of Hartford.

An anonymous letter from a 20-year-old girl in Troutville, Va., however, disagreed with John in his philosophy of life and marriage.

The girl took him to task for his criticism last week of girls his own age when he said the younger generation drank, painted and kept late hours. His bride-to-be would send him to bed early and take good care of him, he said, because she was a practical nurse.

SHE'S 3 A. M. GIRL

The letter, beginning with "Hello, Baby," declared that John probably never had a "real date," said a lot of mean things and then wound up by saying the writer had to hurry away to keep a date from which she expected to return at 3 a. m. John said he did not want a wife who would keep him out until 3 a. m.

From Pendleton, Ind., came a letter from a young woman praising him for his courage in marrying the woman of his choice regardless of age.

She wished him much happiness, but added that John's insinuation that all young women of today keep late hours was untrue. There were many like herself, she wrote, who went to bed early and were not found in dance halls. They were "nice girls" one could meet in their homes or at church functions, she said.

WEDDING THIS MONTH

A letter from an elderly man in Brooklyn, N. Y., commended the youth for his appreciation of those finer qualities which come with the years. He wished the couple "happiness, progress, charity, amen."

John was a bit concerned with the attentions showered upon him, but went on with the chores on his father's farm.

No date for the wedding has been set, but he said it would be sometime this month. He declared he would keep his present job with his father until May and then the couple would probably settle down to a "quiet life" in the bride's cottage in River Glen across the Farmington river from his home. It was in this neighborhood that John won the love of his sweetheart after two years of courtship.

Meanwhile, his bride-to-be continued in her position as a practical nurse in Hartford.

Debt Clearing Feted by City

Picayune, Miss., Has Cash for All Bills

PICAYUNE, Miss., Feb. 8 (AP)—This city of 6000 population tossed its red ink out of the window today, it was out of debt.

Citizens celebrating the announcement heard City Clerk Jack Read list local assets as including:

Forty miles of city streets, 20 of them paved; 25 miles of concrete sidewalks; a 40-acre city park and bathing beach; an 85-acre airport; a public library; three modern schol plants, and a new city hall under construction with enough money to build it.

In addition, there is cash on hand to meet all bills due, the clerk said.

Hurley Ultimatum To Welfare Officials

The state department of public welfare today mulled over a demand by Governor Hurley that it deal efficiently with the problems of relief.

At a conference with federal, state and local department officials, the Governor went into criticism of the department by the commissioner on taxation and public expenditures. He declared he would insist on an efficient administration.

Roosevelt May Seek Funds to Expand WPA

Hint President Will Ask Deficiency Fund of 150 Millions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (INS)—President Roosevelt will seek expansion of the WPA because of insistent appeals by governors and mayors for aid, it was reported in congressional circles today.

A deficiency appropriation of $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 may be asked to permit expansion of WPA during the remainder of the winter.

While Roosevelt has been hopeful that last year's $1,500,000,000 WPA fund would last through the fiscal year ending June 30, he is said to be prepared to seek added funds to relieve suffering.

50 MAYORS ASK AID

Until this week, many high administration officials had asserted no additional funds would be needed for this fiscal year.

The demand of 50 Midwestern mayors for an immediate increase in Federal aid, appeals of leaders of auto workers' unions in Detroit, and investigations by the WPA are said to have changed the entire picture almost overnight.

The President has informed members of Congress that he favors repeal of the Woodrum amendment to last year's relief bill, which required the WPA to arrange its expenditures so the fund would last until June 30. To meet the condition WPA sharply reduced its list last summer and fall and expanded them this winter.

NEXT YEAR'S CASH SOUGHT

If the Woodrum amendment were repealed, thus permitting immediate expansion of WPA, it is possible the WPA's deficit would be made up by increasing next year's relief appropriation and making it immediately available.

Congressional leaders said Roosevelt will also ask Congress for more than $1,000,000,000 for relief for the year beginning July 1. When he presented his budget he indicated that $1,000,000,000 might be the limit on relief expenditures.

Several Arrests Loom in Killing Of Rector

Inquest Is Ordered As Last Rites Are Held for Dr. Lee

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga., Feb. 8 (AP)—Parishioners of Old Christ Church gathered today to bury vice-fighting Dr. Charles H. Lee, as Coroner J. D. Baldwin promised to "get at the bottom" of the rector's slaying. "If we have to call every man and woman on St. Simons."

The 71-year-old Episcopal churchman was killed by a shot from the dark as he sat working over a sermon in the rectory Saturday night.

Coroner Baldwin, taking cognizance of the theory of friends that the rector's candid comments on wrong-doing might lie back of the killing, said he ordered the inquest for Wednesday specifically "to find out about all the evil-doing on the island."

ARRESTS LISTED

He added that he was subpoenaing "many, many persons" to appear in an attempt to uncover the motive for the slaying. He predicted "several arrests" in the interim.

Dr. Lee's pronouncements against vice, his friends explained, usually were made in face-to-face encounters with individuals, rather than from the pulpit.

Chairman R. A. Gould of the Glynn County Commission said he doubted there was "much to the 'vice-motive' theory" but added he thought that "the crime must have been committed by someone with a strong personal grudge or an imagined hate."

BULLETS BIG CLUE

As concrete clues, the investigators had merely two .38 caliber bullets, one of which killed the rector a short while after the first had missed him, and paper reproductions of footprints found outside the rectory.

Officers continued their hunt for the death weapon and looked for an automobile they believed might have carried the slayer from the scene.

A $1000 reward was offered for solution of the slaying with more than half the sum raised by parishioners of Dr. Lee, who was a native of Charles Town, W. Va., and a grandnephew of General Robert E. Lee.

U. S. Navy, Marine Red Probe Asked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—Senator Royal S. Copeland (D.) of New York prepared to submit to the special Senate committee today a resolution calling for an investigation of "subversive" activities in the merchant marine and in the U. S. navy.

Copeland's new move followed a proposal which he initiated calling for a broad Senate inquiry into reported subversive activities throughout the United States—by Communists, Fascists and all other like movements.

TURN OVER EVIDENCE

The chairman of the Senate commerce committee proposed the inquiry after his committee had turned over to the Labor Department a mass of documentary evidence alleging Harry Bridges, West Coast maritime labor leader, belonged to the Communist party and was identified with its activities in Pacific shipping circles.

Copeland said that the evidence in the Bridges case and other documents before his committee indicated that a "searching investigation was needed."

The Bridges evidence included a photostatic copy of Communist passport issued to a "Harry Dorgan," supported by several affidavits charging that it belonged to Bridges.

NAMES WITHHELD

Two different affiants whose names were withheld, swore that this was Bridges' card, and that "Dorgan" was his mother's name.

The data, Copeland insisted, indicates that there is sufficient legal ground to deport Bridges, who was born in Australia.

Members of the Copeland committee, however, said that they washed their hands of that proceeding, insisting that they were interested only in Bridges' activities in connection with several costly shipping strikes in Pacific coast ports.

Deport Bridges, Coast Legion Heads Demand

Special to The Boston Evening American

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8—A state-wide movement among California's 65,000 American Legion members today demanded immediate deportation of Harry Bridges, west coast director for the CIO as an undesirable alien.

Legion leaders, including Harper Knowles, chairman of the veterans' radical research committee, announced that resolutions directed to the Department of Labor and to Congress are being prepared for action by each post, district council and area organization.

The Legion asked that civic organizations join in the drive to bring forcibly to the attention of federal authorities the radical record of Bridges during the many years in which the Australian-born agitator has been in the United States. In all that period, Bridges failed to take out citizenship papers.

As it joined American Legion groups in other states in the "deport Bridges" demand, the California Legion called attention to current Washington disclosures of Bridges' Communist affiliation.

SCORES SECRETARY PERKINS

The action of Knowles, dubbing Secretary of Labor Perkins a "misadvertence," said:

"It has been my personal observation during the four years or more last past that this 'misadvertence' on the part of the Immigration and naturalization service, under the supervision of Miss Perkins, insofar as the handling of deportations of alien Anarchists and Communists was concerned, could be termed 'chronic inadvertence.'

"The solicitude of her department for the secrecy an concern of government informents has been obviously one-sided, almost to the point of refusing confidential information and files to those most interested in keeping America for Americans, and then, on the other hand, divulging the data to subversive individuals and organizations."

Union Leader to Tell Bridges' Red Activities

Special to Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, plans to appear in Washington tomorrow before the Senate commerce committee to tell what he knows about Harry Bridges, head of the Pacific coast maritime unions of the CIO.

"Senator Copeland sent word to me to appear as soon as possible," Ryan said on his return from a union trip to Montreal. "I am wiring him that I can appear Wednesday, if that is satisfactory to him.

"As to Bridges, it's my belief that the reason Bridges has never completed his naturalization is that he, as a Communist, knows he cannot subscribe to the oath to 'defend and uphold the Constitution' that is part of the full citizenship oath."

Ryan said he would tell the committee that Bridges appeared at a labor meeting in Madison Square Garden in December, 1935, the rent for the Garden being paid by the treasurer of the Communist party.

"Bridges, in addition, made speaking trips up and down the West Coast, financed by the Communist party," he said. "If Communist Bridges is deported our organization will resume normal operations on the West Coast, as it does on the East Coast today."

Deputy Wall on Job to 'Pep Up' Police Force

42-Year-Old War Vet Won on His Merit, Asserts Timilty

As much surprised as anyone by his unheralded promotion, Deputy Police Superintendent Benjamin Wall swept into his new role today as police department renovator in the drive against crime.

Yesterday the 42-year-old World War veteran was a captain in charge of the Milk street division, with no hint that he was to be made a deputy superintendent in the post left vacant by the death of Deputy William W. Livingston.

Rumors regarding the filling of this post had placed Captain Thomas N. Harvey of Back Bay station prominently in line.

"HAS FINE RECORD"

In announcing the promotion of the Milk street captain, however, Police Commissioner Timilty said:

"He had nothing but his fine record and ability to recommend him. He has the drive and initiative necessary for his new job."

At the same time, Commissioner Timilty revealed that Wall, who had been a captain less than two years, would be furnished with complete power to "crack down" on division and department heads.

It will be his duty to see that all captains are on the job and to investigate a repored let-down in efficiency of sergeants throughout the city.

He will be instructed also to take steps to correct an allegedly too close fraternization between patrolmen and sergeants and sergeants and captains.

TO BOLSTER FORCE

In short, Deputy Wall's job will be to iron out laxity and inefficiency on all police fronts and bolster the police force to a point where it can cope with the growing crime wave.

Deputy Wall, a native of South Boston, lives at 20 Ardale street, Roslindale.

He was appointed to the police department shortly after the police strike in 1919 and was first assigned to Dudley street station where he was made a special officer.

Lieutenant Bernard J. Graham has been recalled from vacation to assume temporary command at the Milk street station as the result of Wall's elevation.

Cummings Asks 27 New Judges

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (INS)—Describing delays in the disposition of court cases generally as "deplorable and heartbreaking," Attorney-General Cummings today asked Congress to create 27 new federal judgeships.

He made his plea before a Senate judiciary sub-committee which was considering the Ashurst Hatch bill to authorize the additional judges, including four circuit court judges.

The bill has been approved by the judicial conference, consisting of the senior circuit judges who meet periodically with Chief Justice Hughes.

"The judicial branch of our government is the least costly branch of our government," Cummings said. "The executive branch costs $9,000,000,000 a year and the legislative branch $23,000,000,000 annually.

"Delay in administration is the outstanding defect in our judicial system. Every one knows that. The man in the street knows it. Many people submit to injustices rather than undertake the long delay and cost of litigation."

Held for Posing As U. S. Sailor

Ex-Tar Is Arrested Here for 9th Time

A dishonorably discharged ex-sailor, who can't get over the habit of wearing the navy uniform, was held in $500 bail today by United States Commissioner Harry N. Guterman.

He is James Clark, 31, of Galveston, who Federal officials said they found attired in the garb of a second class boatswain's mate.

Clark, according to Assistant U. S. Attorney George F. Garrity, has been arrested eight times and has served jail sentences in various cities for illegally wearing service uniforms.

Garrity told the commissioner that Clark was dishonorably discharged from the navy in 1930 after he had gone A. W. O. L. from his ship. He served a four-year term at the Portsmouth navy yard for this violation, according to the prosecutor.

New York Invites Artists to Fete

Massachusetts artists were today invited by Mayor LaGuardia of New York to attend the third annual National Exhibition of American Art to be held in the New York galleries of the American Fine Arts Society.

Mayor LaGuardia extended the invitation to Governor Hurley who accepted.

The exhibition begins June 15 and will last through July.

The national exhibition is held annually by the Municipal Art Committee as a feature of the New York City Summer Festival of music, art, dance and drama.

Holdups

Boston Evening American Photo

Dawn tableau snapped at Milk street station, where the girl, booked as Mildred Shea, 24, of Bolton street, South Boston, astounded police by declaring she was a witness to the slaying of David J. (Beano) Breen and had taken part in numerous holdups and holdup kidnapings. She was arrested in Dewey square early today when two policemen saw a revolver in her handbag after it had fallen to the sidewalk and snapped open. On left is Sergeant Joseph F. Condon. On right, Special Officer Edward W. Crickard.

Girl's Own Story Of Breen Slaying

Here is the story of the girl, who police declared, was Mildred Shea, told police today about her observations concerning the shooting to death of David J. "Beano" Breen, Boston racketeer:

"I walked into the lobby of the Metropolitan Hotel and looked around to see who was there. I saw 'Beano' sitting in a chair. I went to the desk to register. On my way there I happened to look out of the corner of my eye and saw 'Beano' walking toward the center and rear of the lobby.

"Then I saw a fellow hurrying into the lobby. He had his hand in his pocket. He walked close to 'Beano.' I saw his hand move and then there were shots. The fellow turned and ran out. Beano crumpled and then staggered to his feet. He walked out and got in a taxicab. I watched him go out. I followed him."

At this point detectives questioned the girl in an attempt to break down her story or establish its veracity.

"Listen, listen!" she cried. "I'll show you where the gun went that killed 'Beano'! What do you think of that?

"My friend was the finger man in the shooting in that job. When the shooting was over the fellow who'd done it ran out to my friend. He drove over the Summer street bridge and my friend threw the gun in Fort Point Channel."

Winchester Man Tech Grad Leader

Harold B. Richmond of Winchester, treasurer of a radio company, was assured today of presidency of the Alumni Association of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

'I Saw Beano Breen Shot,' Gun Girl Informs Police

she was Mildred Shea of Bolton street.

HE DENIES BREEN LINK

Under questioning at Milk street station she began to unfold her story.

The man who threw the Breen murder gun into the channel she named as one working nights at a filling station near the Metropolitan hotel, where Breen was slain, and working three days a week on a WPA project.

Police went to his room in Waltham street, where they arrived just as he reached the place.

He indignantly denied knowing anything about the Breen case, but admitted he had been with the girl late last night and through the early hours of today.

Also he declared he had just heard a radio broadcast regarding the arrest of a girl carrying a nickel-plated revolver in her handbag and he had rushed home to see if his revolver was missing, because the girl he had been with was in his room last night for a short time, he said.

HIS REVOLVER GONE

Going up to the room, the man said the revolver was missing but turned over to police a box of cartridges to fit it.

Although the blonde captive had declared there also was a machine gun and other weapons in the room, police found none.

This man was the ringleader in holdup kidnapings, the girl asserted, but she boasted, pridefully, police said, that she drove the getaway car for Jervis C. Jennings and George E. (Red) Hogarty after they had shot and robbed Patrolman Thomas G. Sopple in a Dorchester house last April.

He had met her only last night as a "pickup," the South End man said, and that was all he knew about her.

"Let me face her," he demanded, "and I'll show up her story."

With unconscious irony, however, police placed him in cell 13 after denying his demand temporarily.

SKEPTICAL OF STORY

They said, however, they were frankly skeptical of parts of her story, particularly when she said she had told the same story early in the Breen slaying investigation when questioned by police under the name of Claire Lacourt. No record could be found of any Claire Lacourt having been quizzed.

The girl also claimed she was a friend of Mrs. Ruth Freedman, Back Bay blonde wanted by police in connection with a series of holdups by the shattered Dickson-Powers gang, but she was vague when pressed.

The girl, arrested by Sergeant Joseph F. Condon and Patrolman Edward Crickard, also said she took part in the holdup kidnaping on Beacon Hill last night of Earl Smith, a North Dighton policeman who was waiting for his wife outside Suffolk Law School.

BOASTS OF KIDNAPING

She also admitted, they said, that she engineered last week's kidnaping and robbery of Dr. David Rothschild of the Foxboro State Hospital in a wild ride through Somerville and Charlestown.

The girl, police said, also claimed she was the cause of a shooting and slashing in a Broadway cafe last October in which two men met death.

The fast-moving developments followed quickly upon the appointment of Captain Benjamin Wall—oddly enough the captain of the station in which the arrest was made—as a new deputy superintendent to replace the late William W. Livingston.

But while Commissioner Timilty was raising Captain Wall and withdrawing his squads of extra officers from night duty a trio of gunmen, believed to be the same which perpetrated the Charlestown kidnaping and milk robbery last Tuesday, was busy again.

Patrolman Earl M. Smith, 33, of North Dighton, was sitting in his car at Hancock and Derne streets, Beacon Hill, waiting for his wife, a student in Suffolk University, when three men approached.

One, holding a nickel-plated revolver, yanked open the car door and ordered Smith into the rear. While Smith was forced to stretch out on the floor underneath a blanket, the trio drove to Somerville.

On the way there the leader of the bandits ordered a companion to "frisk him and see if he has any money."

Smith's billfold, containing $26, was taken and he was left a "buck for carfare." He was told that his wallet, with registration papers and personal memoranda would be left in the car.

HOLDUP FOLLOWS

At a point in Somerville the patrolman was pushed from the automobile. He rushed to a phone and called Somerville police.

A short time later three men, believed to be the same trio, entered a drugstore on Cross street, Somerville, and robbed the proprietor of $900. A few minutes later they appeared at a liquor store on Main street, Malden, and took $100 from the cash register and pockets of Benjamin Stone, proprietor.

The repeated forays of this bandit trio and the ease with which they escape is believed to have brought a "showdown" demand in the police department. Their first appearance was last Tuesday when they kidnaped Dr. David Rothschild and used his car in a $750 payroll holdup at a Charlestown milk plant.

Meanwhile police revealed, in connection with the Breen slaying, that the murder bullets probably were purchased in Montreal and that Montreal authorities are checking stores there in an attempt to trace the purchaser.

Breen had been known to spend considerable of his time in Montreal, when affairs here became a bit difficult.

Soviet Dirigible Hits Mountain, 13 Killed

Disaster Occurred While Testing Ship For Mercy Hop

MOSCOW, Feb. 8 (INS)—Another tragedy of the Arctic was written today as Soviet officials headed for the barren, frozen peaks of the northern Kandalaksha region, to investigate the loss of the Russian dirigible USSR V-6, which carried 13 men to death.

Six other persons aboard the craft were injured when the airship smashed head-on into a mountainside.

The accident occurred while the dirigible was making a preliminary flight preparatory to speeding into the Far North on a mercy errand to rescue four Soviet scientists marooned on an ice floe off the coast of Greenland.

INFLATED WITH HELIUM

The dirigible crashed about 300 miles from Murmansk on Sunday.

Poor visibility—result of a heavy snowstorm—was believed to have been the cause of the crash.

M. Gudovantsev, Soviet dirigible expert, was in command of the craft when it met disaster. Gudovantsev was reported among those killed.

The survivors were said to have owed their lives to the fact that the airship, inflated with helium, did not burn after the crash.

PLANNED MERCY TRIP

The V-6, with 19 officers and crew members aboard, was on a round trip between Moscow and Murmansk, arranged to decide whether the dirigible should take part in the expedition to rescue the Soviet polar scientists.

After months spent on their ice floe while it floated hundreds of miles from the North Pole, the four scientists are now endangered by the disintegration of the ice under their camp.

Soviets Speed Aid To Men on Ice Floe

OSLO, Norway, Feb. 8 (AP)—The government today radioed orders to seven men at Norwegian coast stations in East Greenland to start immediately with dog sleds and provisions over the pack ice in an attempt to rescue the four Russian scientists drifting on an ice floe off the Greenland coast.

Two men were ordered to set out from Myggebukt, two from Cape Humbolt, and three from Antarctic Bay. The ice floe was reported seven miles off King Oscar Fjord.

In Copenhagen, the Danish explorer, Dr. Lauge Koch, said he had instructed associates at Scoresby Sound, East Greenland, to prepare 12 dog sleds for possible relief of the Soviet campers.

Medford Man Robbed

Three youths beat up Ernest Arnold, 50, of George street, Medford, near his home early today, and robbed him of $2, he reported to police.

Anglo-Italian Pact Sought by Britain

This recent photograph of Mussolini shows the Premier trying out the goosestep, which he has had Italian troops practice in preparation for the state visit of Chancellor Hitler to Rome soon.

Hitler Purge Spurs Move to Secure Rome Pledges

LONDON, Feb. 8 (INS)—Fearful Germany is about to embark upon a more reckless foreign policy following Reichsfuehrer Hitler's purge of the army, Great Britain today launched an intensive drive to effect an Anglo-Italian rapprochement as speedily as possible.

The British move is aimed at weakening the Rome-Berlin axis in the hope of restraining Hitler, as well as safeguarding Britain's position in the Mediterranean.

Despite Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's repeated statements in the House of Commons that "peace talks" with Italy would not begin until anti-British propaganda in the Near East has ceased, Italy's acceptance of Britain's anti-piracy proposals has been seized upon as an opportunity to commence overtures.

Eden conferred with Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador, on two occasions over the weekend and will talk with him again tomorrow.

Less than a week ago, the London press was pessimistic over the possibility of a rapprochement in the near future. Today, however, it unanimously described the atmosphere as highly favorable.

Mussolini is now willing, the press asserted, to strengthen his forces at the Brenner Pass in view of the possibility of a revived Nazi movement in Austria.

Such action would be favorably regarded here, and it is now openly stated Britain would be willing to recognize Italy's Ethiopian empire, in exchange for an Anglo-Italian agreement in the European arena.

Hankow Raided By Jap Planes

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8 (INS)—Striking at two widely separated points, Japanese airplanes resumed their bombing warfare against China today.

The Nipponese navy spokesman in Shanghai stated Japanese warplanes raided Hankow, temporary capital of the Chiang Kai-Shek government, and also dropped bombs on Ichang.

During the Hankow attack eight Japanese craft raided the airdrome there and also the neighboring city of Hanyang. The assault lasted 30 minutes, during which a terrific explosion was heard at the Hanyang ironworks.

At the same time, according to advices from Hongkong, another Japanese air fleet machine-gunned a fleet of gasoline tanker junks chartered by an American oil company—the Texaco concern—killing one Chinese.

This assault was reported to have occurred near Pakki, not far from Kongmoon.

Soviet Embassy Aide Vanishes

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 8 (INS)—Possibility that the Soviet charge d'affaires here has met with foul play was investigated by police here today following the diplomat's disappearance.

The charge d'affaires, Jodor Butenco, missing since Sunday night, was said to have disappeared after being taken home by his chauffeur from a motion picture.

The only clue yet found was said to have been a few drops of blood on the stairway leading from Tubenco's apartment to the street.

His maid, chauffeur and janitor have been detained by police.

Church Fights Outside Advice

Chamberlain's Power Blasted at Parley

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP) — Lord Hugh Cecil today told the Church Assembly — the Church of England's "parliament"—it was "unseemly and in the technical sense of the word scandalous" for a Unitarian like Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain to advise the crown on the appointment of Anglican bishops.

He was speaking in favor of a proposed measure to repeal a law dating from the reign of Henry VIII, penalizing clerics who neglect to consecrate bishops so appointed. The Archbishop of Canterbury suggested consultation with authorities on the repeal measure, since it affected royal prerogative.

Lord Hugh, a prominent layman, said:

"If we lived in the reign of Henry VIII a Unitarian would not be in Downing street. He would be burned at Smithfield. If Chamberlain has ceased to be combustible at Smithfield, that has been due to a movement of enlightenment and toleration."

Modern Marine School Planned

Plans to give Massachusetts one of the most modern merchant marine training schools in the country will be realized if Congress grants the $1,000,000 asked for by Senator David I. Walsh for a new nautical training ship it was learned today.

The present schoolship "Nantucket," officials of the Massachusetts Nautical Training School said today, has engines which have been outmoded, and consequently does not provide adequate instruction for a boy training to be an officer on a modern ship.

The new vessel, if it is built, will have all the latest types of engines and instruments, although it will be bark-rigged, like the present ship.

Not only will the proposed ship provide better quarters and equipment, but it will be larger and will accommodate more students than the "Nantucket," it was stated.

Tighten Secrecy On Niemoeller

BERLIN, Feb. 8 (AP)—Secrecy cloaking the trial of the Rev. Martin Niemoeller on charges of grave offenses against the Nazi regime was made more complete today as the last non-official observers were barred from the special trial court.

Three church leaders, permitted to remain in the courtroom yesterday as witnesses for the Confessional Synod, were excluded today.

As a result, only court attaches and representatives of the propaganda, church and justice ministers were present as the trial of the militant leader of Protestant opposition to the Nazi church program went through its second day.

The opening was delayed half an hour by the defense's protest against the intensified secrecy.

Rubens Meeting Delayed Again

MOSCOW, Feb. 8 (AP)—Questioning of mysterious Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens of New York by Loy W. Henderson, charge d'affaires of the United States embassy, was postponed again today.

Soviet authorities still deferred the meeting while they arranged a time and place.

It had been scheduled for Monday after the United States last week gained permission to interview Mrs. Rubens about her trip to Russia on a fradulent passport and her arrest December 9 on suspicion of espionage.

Spanish Rebels Push Foe Back

HENDAYE, France, at the Spanish Frontier, Feb. 8 (AP)—Spanish insurgent officers sent word today that the fourth day of their mass offensive in the district north of Teruel had put government armies in headlong flight.

Official insurgent dispatches described the fighting as "veritable butchery" of government troops.

Government advices said there was "great calm" in military circles and added that government forces were "resisting desperately."

Ship Flashes SOS From 'Piracy' Zone

LONDON, Feb. 8 (INS)—The British steamer Peckham flashed an SOS from her position in the Mediterranean today, reporting a suspicious plane was circling overhead, according to shipping circles here. The vessel's master apparently suspected the airplane was a "pirate" craft.

Seeks Speedier Justice

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (INS)—As a move to "speed up justice," Representative Towey (D.) of New Jersey has introduced a bill which would require all federal district and circuit judges to sign a payroll statement that no case has been pending for decision longer than 60 days, before they get their pay checks.

SELF-SUFFICIENCY NAZI GOAL; SEEK TO END '14 WEAKNESS

BERLIN, Feb. 8 (AP)—Sources professing to know Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's mind forecast today a secret domestic policy council, parallel to the foreign policy council he created in his shake-up of Reich leadership last Friday.

These sources said Germany wants never again to find herself strong in arms, but weak economically, as she was in 1914.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, No. 2 Nazi and head of Germany's four-year plan for economic self - sufficiency, is charged with realizing that ambition. He is determined that Germany be prepared for all eventualities, not only during the four-year economic plan but also for all time after.

Informed quarters, therefore, believe a secret domestic policy council will be organized to bring internal planning into step with the objectives of the foreign council.

Wilhelm Frick, minister of interior, would be made president of the council, they predict, and would be succeeded in the interior ministry by Heinrich Himmler, now head of all German police organizations.

With Hitler and his closest advisers secluded at the Fuehrer's Berchtesgaden retreat, the political atmosphere was clear and calm. Whether this meant serene weather ahead, or a lull before another storm, political forecasters could not tell.

'Trickery in Gay Nineties'

Politics 'Indian Warfare' Then, Says John F.

Won Congress Fight When He Wore Enemy Down

As congressman, I got Boston its first big appropriation for harbor betterment, and channel widening...

Boston has never had a better port champion than John F. Fitzgerald, who since his first days in Congress has been a moving figure for a bigger and better port. Inset shows John F. in picture taken a number of years ago.

Foes Once

United Through Their Children

Boston Evening American Photos

PATRICK J. KENNEDY MRS. JOSEPH P. KENNEDY

Patrick J. Kennedy of East Boston, "Gay Nineties" colleague of Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald in the State Senate, Kennedy, late father of Joseph P. Kennedy, U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, who married Fitzgerald's daughter Rose, was in the camp of Fitzgerald's foe, Joseph H. O'Neil, when "Honey Fitz" won the battle for Congress.

ing six years as Congressman from our district.

Before O'Neil there had been Patrick A. Collins for six years, and before that Leopold Morse, also a Congressman for six.

IRISH VOTED FOR MORSE

Leopold Morse was a Jew, and I can remember him coming into my father's grocery in North street and talking politics. Yet he got the votes of the O'Briens and the Dalys and the Murphys and the Fitzgeralds, for there was a certain Arthur O'Connor 1798 liberality in the Irish wards in the eighties.

In the nineties, gay or not, trickery was rampant in Boston's political arena, with political strategy being a close resemblance to the ambush warfare of the aboriginal Indians.

LOMASNEY SUPPO[illegible]

The candidate who could plant a burly henchman in a voting line, to bluff off a voter for the other candidate, more power to you.

Under the system prevailing when I first laid plans to run for Congress, if you were "right" you could vote 15 or 16 times. If you were "wrong" you couldn't vote at all. Or if you did, it probably wouldn't be counted.

In my congressional fight against O'Neil, who was attempting to break the tradition in our district that congressmen should be satisfied with six years, I had Martin Lomasney with me, but O'Neil had most of the other leaders.

Knowing that under the old system a candidate persona non grata to the ward leaders had less chance than a snowball in the hot place, I had quietly introduced a bill into the State Senate to substitute the Australian ballot for the weirdly impossible balloting system then current. It became law.

ASSURED FAIR PLAY

O'Neil's field marshal was Jim Donovan, then head of the Democratic City Committee. Another man was Patrick J. Kennedy, my colleague in the Senate and father of Joseph P. Kennedy, who later was to marry my daughter, Rose.

I knew that in the South End I was a marked man—marked for slaughter. I went to Kennedy and Donovan and asked them if I was to be given fair play. They agreed that I didn't have a chance but they said I would have fair play.

"Let the best man win," they told me.

Then I went to John Morrissey of the South End and asked him how it was for a square deal. Grinning, he said:

"John, my boy, if you got every vote in the district you wouldn't get a delegate."

WORE ENEMY DOWN

I won in the primaries over O'Neil by 50 votes. On that day there were lines half a mile long outside the polling places and early in the day my brothers and Garrett Scollard, an old friend, went to work on those lines.

Our workers in the South End, where they probably wouldn't have been counted had they voted, were pulled out and sent into Charlestown and East Boston, where we figured I did have a fighting chance.

They were not to vote but to hold places in the voting lines because we reasoned some of the O'Neil men behind them would get tired and go home. It worked; we wore them down.

I was swamped in the South End, but made a clean sweep in the North and West Ends, for Martin Lomasney was with me strong. By a small vote I carried Charlestown and East Boston.

GOVE BOMBED OUT

Jesse M. Gove, lawyer and a strong vote-getter, a humorous and sardonic American, was nominated by the Republicans. He went to work on the Jews in Salem street, mostly business men who had been with Joe O'Neil.

In a Jewish hall, Gove started to address a rally, but some of my more ardent workers were there with asafoetida bombs and the rank odor filled the hall. Gasping for breath, Gove shouted humorously:

"Gang, open the windows. I'm through. So far as I'm concerned, Fitzgerald can go to Congress by unanimous consent."

My election caused ructions, not only in the more rarified circles of Irish-American political life here but in the clubs and drawing rooms of the Back Bay Brahmins.

I was a young, fresh squirt, while O'Neil was a sober, sedate and conscientious gentleman, well thought of by all.

ONLY N. E. DEMOCRAT

From the six New England states I was the only Democrat in that 1895-1897 Congress and, if I remember, I was the only Catholic in Congress, although I am told that the late Charles Curtis, afterwards vice-president, was born one.

When I was making a fight to save Catholic mission schools among the Indians a couple of years later, I know Curtis spoke to me. He said:

"John, I know what you're up against. I'd like to help you."

Kaw Indians figured largely in Curtis' ancestry.

My recollection is that not a single representative from Tammany New York was a Catholic. Their members included George Brinton McClellan, William Sulzer, Franklin Bartlett and Amos Cummings, famous writer.

McClellan and I were the two Democrats in closest touch with President Grover Cleveland, a grand man, bluff and burly and sometimes grim, but an honest man and one not given much to social amenities of Washington.

GROUNDED LINER AIDS

He was well known to many Massachusetts statesmen and citizens, because he maintained a summer home at Buzzards Bay and among his frequent visitors were Winslow Warren and Richard Olney, his mouthpieces here.

McKinley, who succeeded him only to fall victim to an assassin's hand, was a far different type, gentle-souled, kindly and invested with small-town courtesy.

As a congressman, I got Boston its first big appropriation for harbor betterment and channel widening—and it was made easy through a fortunate circumstance, to me and my aim.

At that time Josiah Quincy was mayor and Theodore Burton, afterward a senator from Ohio, was head of the ports and harbors committee. I brought the committee here and by one of those happy coincidences that used to check my political career, a Leyland liner stuck near Castle Island the day the committee arrived.

MAD DAYS IN CONGRESS

Without any further argument the appropriation came through. I think it was for five or six millions.

I served three terms as congressman, a total of six years, and they threw me into the middle of the maddest maelstrom of politics that had whirled and eddied around these shores since the Civil War.

Particularly heavy was the demand for jobs from this only Democratic congressman from New England, mainly demands from potential postmasters.

As a result of my arduous labors in Congress I contracted a malady that sent me to the Carolinas for a cure. It was then that I died—or at least one Boston newspaper, not the Advertiser, once reported me as dead. But it was a bit premature, I'm afraid.

My recollections of the Spanish-American War era, its prelude and its aftermath, are jumbled but very vivid. Everyone who could sing at all was bellowing.

"There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight."

COMIC OPERA ERA

Drums were thrumming, bugles were blowing, flags were waving, the strenuous, striding Teddy Roosevelt was emoting and in some respects it was a comic opera era—except for the soulless profiteers.

Beef was rotten, guns were useless, uniforms were badly made or made of shoddy; transport ships were floating pesthouses, shoes ground the feet off the infantry and saddles in the cavalry came apart in action.

Inefficiency was the order of the day, medical examination was a job, larceny ran riot—and the men in the war got $15 a month while the heartless profiteers and blustering incompetents ran them ragged and sometimes ran them into the grave.

Compared to the profiteers and the incompetents over the men, the Spanish soldiers were practically harmless.

My congressional activities were mostly concerned with saving the lives of our unfortunate soldiers, at least half of whom never should have been exposed to the rigors of warfare on a tropical island.

I spent a large part of my time with the men in uniform during my congressional service. I went to Camp Alger, at Falls Church, Va., from Framingham, with the Ninth Massachusetts, and later rode back from Montauk Point with the remnants of the historic regiment.

I suppose Camp Alger was named for the Secretary of War, incidentally a most unpopular secretary, who was booed in the streets of Boston afterward.

The late Lawrence Logan, to be universally and affectionately saluted as "General," was lieutenant-colonel of the Old Ninth; his son, Judge Edward L. Logan, was a lieutenant.

The colonel was Frederick Bogan, father of Dr. Frederick L. Bogan, later superintendent of Mattapan Hospital and a World War hero. Butler Ames was colonel of the Old Sixth.

EMBALMED BEEF

I met Colonel Bogan at the South Station when he was invalided home. He fell into my arms coming off the train—and died the next day. Most of the Bay State heroes who distinguished themselves in action are dead.

It was at Camp Alger that the late Father John F. Cummings and I got a whiff of the beef served the Ninth and Sixth regiments. I seized a sample, packed it back to Washington, bluffed my way past President McKinley's secretaries and flunkies and tossed the bad beef on his table.

He sniffed it, then took a good smell. He said:

"My Gawd, John, send for the analysts."

The President had the commissary officer discharged and began an investigation of other complaints.

(In the Boston Evening American tomorrow will appear another interesting chapter in John F. Fitzgerald's "Seventy-Five Years of Boston Life.")

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other Poisonous Waste

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 Miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 Miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Britain's Jobless Highest in 2 Years

LONDON, Feb. 8—Britain's list of unemployed stood at the highest peak in nearly two years today with reports that more than a million had joined the jobless ranks in the past five months.

The Labor Ministry reported that for the four weeks ending January 17, the total number of unemployed stood at 1,827,607.

U. S. Rally Planned By Young Democrats

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (INS)—Young Democratic Clubs of America will hold a nationwide rally at Seattle next July 14-16, Pitt Tyrson Manor, president, announced here.

James Roosevelt, son of the President, has accepted tentatively an invitation to speak, Manor said.

Leaders Hail 'Honey Fitz' At Ad Club Luncheon

The city's business and political leaders today will honor former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald at a luncheon party, given by the Advertising Club of Boston at the Hotel Statler in honor of his 75th birthday anniversary.

The former mayor, a member of the organization since 1910, will be 75 on Friday.

Governor Hurley, Mayor Tobin, civic and business heads and Boston editors are among those who will pay tribute to Fitzgerald's lifetime of public service and accomplishment.

The former mayor will be introduced by Tilton Bell, a club member, who was city councillor during Fitzgerald's term as mayor.

The regular business speeches have been dropped from the program with members bent on staging a fitting tribute to popular "Honey Fitz."

X-Rays Planned For Fuller's Hip

Doctors at Phillips House today planned an X-ray examination to determine extent of injuries former Governor Alvan T. Fuller, 60, received while playing hockey at his New Hampshire home.

Physicians announced there was no information they could give except that there seemed to be no immediate danger from a hip ailment the ex-governor sustained.

The former governor fell on the ice Sunday while playing hockey with a group of guests.

An active athlete in years past the ex-governor laughed off the injury at first and proceeded to attend to his business. Yesterday his pain became acute, however, and he was ordered to the hospital.

Mrs. Fuller, who has just arrived home from a European trip, hurried to his hospital bedside early this morning.

Flood of Letters Protest Pact

LAWRENCE, Feb. 8—Rallying to the pleas of Mayor Walter A. Griffin and other speakers on the educational broadcast, hundreds of Greater Lawrence business and professional men and women sent letters to city hall promising their support in the protest campaign against the proposed reciprocal trade pact with Great Britain.

"It is more than gratifying to myself and the members of the steering committee," Mayor Griffin declared today, "to note the whole-hearted manner in which Greater Lawrencians are putting their shoulder to the wheel."

Never before in the history of this textile city, according to members of the steering committee, has there been such a concerted movement and protest by the Lawrence people.

$108,000 to Be Paid By Haverhill Bank

HAVERHILL, Feb. 8—Distribution of $108,000 to 8000 Haverhill and outside depositors of the Essex National Bank of Haverhill, which closed its doors following the "bank holidays" of March, 1933, will commence tomorrow morning, Receiver John E. Donahue announced today.

Release of the funds, representing a 5 per cent dividend, has been authorized by Comptroller of Currency J. F. T. O'Connor.

'Discrimation' Charge in U. S. Revenue Act

Chamber Declares Many New England Businesses Hit

The Federal revenue act of 1938 today stood branded as "unworthy of democratic government" in a report by the Boston Chamber of Commerce's committee on federation taxes.

Lashing out at the national tax system, the committee charged that Treasury tax experts had not considered merits but based the tax on its immediate ability to produce revenue.

It stated that it discriminated against corporations which have few controlling stockholders in favor of those with many.

ARBITRARY METHOD

"To discriminate against corporations upon the sole ground of the number of stockholders is, if not unconstitutional, so arbitrary as to be unworthy of democratic government," the report stated.

"Less than a year has sufficed to convince even those responsible for the enactment of the undistributed profits tax law that it was economically unsound and one, if not the principal, cause of the current recession," the report added.

"While it is doubtless true that a corporation used as a device for accumulating profits would ordinarily be controlled by but very few stockholders, there are many instances, especially in New England, of an industrial or commercial enterprise controlled by a single family, or by a small group of persons actively engaged in the conduct of its affairs, organized and managed without any thought of reducing taxes.

IN PUBLIC INTEREST

"In fact much could be said in favor of corporate organization in which ownership and management lie in the same hands, and the securities of which are not subject to speculation on the stock exchange."

2000 From N. E. To Fight Pact

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—More than 2000 representatives of labor and industry in New England will protest against proposed Anglo-American trade agreements when hearings on the agreements begin in Washington, Representative Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, declared today.

Representative Martin revealed he had sent letters to President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull asking that the United States consider a trade agreement with Australia as a protection for American wool markets.

He said consideration of the two treaties at the same time would remove uncertainty of raw wool prices and determine what the woolen industry can depend on for tariff protection for manufactured goods.

Town Bill Veto Hurley's First

Governor Hurley sent his first veto to the present session of the legislature today.

He vetoed the bill providing for a reduction in the number of town meeting members-at-large in Dedham. The measure also would have provided that elected town meeting members in Dedham would cease to be town meeting members if elected to certain town offices.

"The passage of this bill . . . would place the town of Dedham in a category not in keeping with the recognized form of town government," the Governor stated.

State House Briefs

Because the measure failed to specify the method of raising the money, several members of the joint legislative committee on education today criticized school superintendents and representatives of teachers' groups appearing in support of a bill requiring the state to distribute at least $16,000,000 annually for support of public schools.

Legislation to invest the state department of public health with broader powers over the manufacture of food was proposed today at a hearing of the legislative committee on public health.

William H. Hearn, secretary of the State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission, today told the joint legislative ways and means committee that most local liquor boards "are pleased with the activities of the State commission."

His answer was made to Representative William B. aker of Newton who asked, "Isn't it about time ABC inspectors stopped dabbling in local affairs?"

Councillor Off Of Grand Jury

In an action unprecedented in Middlesex County, Louis B. Connors, president of the Waltham City Council, was discharged today as a member of the grand jury by Judge Wilford D. Gray, presiding justice.

Announcement of Connors being dropped was made following a conference attended by the Waltham councillor, Judge Gray and Assistant District Attorney Julius Wolfson in the judge's lobby.

Judge Gray declined to comment on the discharge other than to make the bare announcement that Connors was relieved from further service.

Wolfson would say only that "the situation arose because of Connors' attitude as a member of the grand jury."

Connors was drawn to serve on the grand jury for the full year, but actually served only yesterday and a few minutes of today.

He had been excused from the January sitting, early last month, to attend the Waltham inaugural exercises and the council election which returned him as president.

Ice Cream Melt? Not at 65 M.P.H.

You could have floored the Metropolitan officers with a fudge delight, they intimated today in East Cambridge Court when Joseph Gemellaro of Truro avenue, Medford, told them he was driving 65 miles an hour because he had ice cream in his car and was afraid it would melt.

Gemellaro, trapped in Memorial Drive, Cambridge, January 8, appealed a $10 fine. The ice cream has long since melted.

Naumkeag Pay Cut Before State Board

Representatives of employes and the management of Naumkeag Steam Cotton Mills at Salem will confer today with the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration over a proposed 12½ per cent pay cut.

Scheduled to become effective yesterday, the reduction was delayed. It is now scheduled to go into effect next Monday, but it is expected that today's conference will provide a basis for salary adjustments.

Two Steal Auto On Dare, Die In Flames

Golfer and His Chum Crash in Car They Took as Prank

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 8—Spurred by a dare on their alleged first venture in defiance of law, Louis Brassard, well known amateur golfer, and his life-long chum, Curtis Beauregard, both 22, died as human torches early today.

Leaving their homes last night for an evening of fun, the pair went to a downtown night club and during the evening a chance acquaintance, as yet unidentified by police dared them to steal an automobile.

Taking the "dare" police were told, the pair went to a down town auto parking lot, stepped into the automobile of Leon St. Jean, of Norwood street, and together drove off.

With Brassard at the wheel, they drove out of Springfield over Memorial bridge and took a right turn over into West Springfield. On Main street, West Springfield, the car came to a right curve.

HITS TREE POLE

According to the police, the machine swung headlong into a maple tree, bounded off and then struck a pole across the street.

Immediately following the second crash was an explosion and the machine burst into flames.

A police cruising car carrying Patrolmen John J. Hall and Leon Hamilton hurried to the burning car which, by chance, had summoned fire apparatus when it struck the pole on which was a fire alarm box.

The officers succeeded in dragging the two victims from the car despite slight burns on their hands and faces. Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze.

SOBS PRANK STORY

Both Brassard and Beauregard were rushed to Mercy Hospital, and Brassard was pronounced dead on arrival. Beauregard still conscious, but badly burned and injured sobbed out a story to police:

"The whole thing was just a prank. A fellow dared us to do it."

Beauregard quickly lapsed into unconsciousness from which he failed to rally and died two hours later.

Night in Nude Colony, Sues

Husband Told of Body Beauty, Beat Her

CHICAGO, Feb. 8 (AP)—A day and night in an Indiana nudist camp caused "embarrassment, mental anguish and agony," Mrs. Evelyn Hamilton Grover, 28, alleged today in a cross bill for divorce from Charles F. Grover, 30, a radio engineer.

The bill said Grover drove his wife to a nudist camp near Valparaiso in July, 1934, on a pretext he was taking her camping.

She alleged that while she huddled in a tent, he sent "various female members of the camp" to try and coax her to undrape and join them.

On the way home, she charged, he lectured her about "the body beautiful," and then beat her.

Dean Acheson, Women Rap Equal Rights Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Dean G. Acheson, former Undersecretary of the Treasury said today a proposed constitutional amendment to provide equal rights for women would "void a great many existing statutes."

Acheson testified before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee studying the amendment. It would provide for equal rights between men and women in all activities.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the former Pennsylvania governor, described the amendment as a "poorlaw, sentimental feminism and extremely poor economics."

Mrs. Edith Valet Cook, speaking for the National League of Women Voters, urged federal and state legislatures be left free to solve women's legal problems.

Adoption of the proposal, she said, would result in women sacrificing allowance for support of a widow for one year after the death of her husband; inheritance tax exemption rights; sole liability of fathers for support of illegitimate children, and support of wives and minor children by husbands.

Johnson Blames Recession on New Deal

Declares Trade Boom Could Be Started Within 24 Hours

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 8 (AP)—Declaring the current business recession was "federally caused," General Hugh S. Johnson says:

"The government has taken into its own hands so many arbitrary economic controls that the future is almost at the mercy and whims and fancies of a single man—and he is a fanciful man.

"The very value of money is on a 24-hour basis," the former National Recovery administrator said yesterday in a coast-to-coast radio broadcast.

Calling the business slump "appalling silly," he said, "I believe it could be reversed in 24 hours and carried forward into the richest prosperity of many years."

SYSTEM ON TRIAL

"Business," he said, "is asked to co-operate with a government official to control production at the very moment when business is being convicted of a crime for doing precisely that thing.

"The whole profit system is said to be on trial—and yet it is put in chains and prevented from defending itself, and rescuing the country, by being refused a chance to act.

"This is a federally caused depression, so clearly the effect of political policies that there is no obscurity at all about cause and effect. The policy is to condemn and batter and threaten the (profit) system as such—with nothing offered to take its place.

EVERYBODY'S FEAR

"It isn't the fear of big business that has paralyzed recovery. It is the fear of everybody—the man that guesses he can get another month's wear out of a pair of shoes or another season out of an overcoat, as well as the man who thinks it is a fine time to keep out of the long side of the stock market."

Sister vs. Sister, $100,000 Balm

woman was led from the courtroom.

Mrs. Munger had testified that Mrs. McDevitt had gone to live with her other daughter and the latter's husband, William A. Guyette, in Rochester 10 years ago, following the death of Bertha's own husband.

The mother told the court she had a "heart to heart" talk with Mrs. McDevitt about the situation while all the principals were living in the same house.

TELLS OF AFFAIR

Ada and William, at that time, had been married some two years, it was stated.

According to Ada's attorneys, Bertha's interest in her sister's husband began in 1929—in Ada's absence. Ada, her attorneys explained, was at work.

In the Spring of 1930, finally, Ada's lawyers said they would show, Bertha and William left Rochester together and went to another city.

Ada, taking the stand as the first witness, testified that before he left her, William struck her.

ON THEIR TRAIL

She trailed him and Bertha to Toledo, O., she related, and found them living there under the name of Jarvis.

"I went to the house in which they were living," she testified. "I asked my sister to give him up. She replied she would spend her last cent to hang on to him."

According to Ada's attorneys, Bertha and William still are living together. William and Ada, however, are divorced.

HAD SISTER ARRESTED

Testifying in her own defense, Mrs McDevitt denied she had ever lived with Guyette or had attempted to win his affections

She declared she had been arrested in Toledo on a morals charge preferred by her sister, but said the complaint had been dismissed.

The defendant declared further that she had been left only a $10,000 insurance policy by her late husband and had converted it into real estate. This property has since been deeded to another person, according ot testimony.

William, Ada's attorneys told the court, got "a New York divorce" first. Later, they said, Ada herself obtained a decree.

Lynn Hubby 7 Times on One Charge

ANNA PORTNOY

She Told Court

HENRY PORTNOY

Used to It Now

Henry Portnoy, 58, of Lynn, today began his seventh term on nonsupport charges at Salem jail after being found in contempt by Judge Harry R. Dow in Salem Probate Court.

Judge Dow made his finding on testimony of the defendant's daughter, Anna Portnoy, that her father was $85.60 in arrears in alimony due the wife and mother, Mrs. Esther Portnoy. An appeal that he was out of work was to no avail.

In another action, Mrs. Celia Vantola of Beverly testified her husband, Nicholas Vantola, took girls riding in his laundry truck and that she found him parked with a woman at Salem Willows.

She said she had been punched in the face after she allegedly trapped her husband. She further gave details on alleged hairpulling.

Judge Dow took the case under advisement as he did that of Carl D. Taylor, who sought a divorce from his wife, Alice Taylor, on grounds of desertion. His daughter, Ruby Taylor, testified that she remembered meeting her mother but once. She said that on that occasion, her mother asked her a few questions and then disappeared.

Mattapan Woman Freed as Fugitive

United States Commissioner Harry N. Guterman today dismissed a fugitive from justice charge against Mrs. Lillian Sherman of Mattapan, sought in connection with the alleged shipment of lottery tickets in New York.

She was discharged on the recommendation of Assistant U. S. Attorney George F. Garrity, who said an indictment against her was to be nolle prossed.

Progress on CIO Steel Pact Reported

'No Fight Yet,' Say Chief Negotiators at N. Y. Meeting

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—Progress toward a new working contract between the United States Steel Corporation and the Committee for Industrial Organization was reported by leaders of the two organizations today after a brief conference.

Emerging from the second of his preliminary talks with representatives of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, second largest of the CIC groups, Benjamin Fairless, president of "Big Steel," said:

"I would say progress is being made."

Philip Murray, chairman of SWOC, nodded assent.

"And not a fight yet," Fairless added jovially.

"No, not a fight yet," Murray agreed.

"The conference is continuing," Murray said. "It is adjourned now. We will meet again tomorrow afternoon at 2 p. m."

PACT EXPIRES SOON

While the negotiations are concerned primarily with employes of Carnegie-Illinois, whose agreement expires February 28, any new contract would serve as a standard for new agreements with all other companies which have contracts with the SWOC, comprising the bulk of "Big Steel."

The present contract with Carnegie-Illinois provides for a minimum wage of $5 a day, an eight-hour-day and a 40-hour week.

Members of the workers' committee were understood to be directing their efforts toward maintaining these standards, holding that continuance of present wages in the steel industry would help bolster wage levels generally.

WORK ON DETAILS

Those close to the situation expressed belief that the basis for a new agreement was reached recently at a meeting here between John L. Lewis, chairman of the CIO, and Thomas Moses, vice-president of the United States Steel Corporation of Delaware, and the present negotiations were merely to work out the details.

Rush Worcester Graft Probe

WORCESTER, Feb. 8—Examination of a dozen witnesses in the local investigation of alleged attempted shaking down of applicants for appointments to police jobs was rushed today by District Attorney Owen A. Hoban in preparation for opening of an inquiry by a special grand jury tomorrow.

While details were withheld, it was understood the probe will be extended to alleged graft in other city departments.

Six men, who lead the Civil Service list as applicants for police appointments, were examined before noon. Those questioned were John P. Mustonen, William J. Nevins, Vincent F. Rice, William G. Dineen, Homer Levigne and Clifford E. Johnson.

Later in the day Robert P. Barrett, Thomas V. Barron, George G. O'Neil, John F. Griffin, James A Kelliher and Otto W. Mustonen were examined.

Seize 'Trooper' Fraud Suspect

A 49-year old man believed to have been victimizing Boston residents recently by posing as a New Hampshire state trooper in need of a "loan," was arrested by Back Bay police today. He is one of several men engaged in this racket, police believe.

After two appearances of a "trooper" in Back Bay last night, police arrested a man answering his description on Massachusetts avenue.

Lawrence H. H. Johnson, Jr., of Fairfield street told police he loaned the "trooper" $5 last night on a plea he had no money to repair a tire. Earlier a man answering the same description accosted Rudolph Ruter of Dartmouth street near his home. Ruter became suspicious and notified police.

GOP Claim 'Gag' In Fight Over Farm Bill

House Leaders See Vote Late Today or Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Administration leaders, bent on jamming the revised farm bill through the House, encountered delaying tactics today.

Representative Lambertson (R.) of Kansas forced a quorum call at the opening of the session when Speaker Bankhead counted less than 200 present.

Leaders anticipated other roll calls would be demanded by those incensed at a proposed five-hour limitation on farm bill debate. Bankhead and Majority Leader Rayburn asserted, however, they expected final action late today, or tomorrow, despite the cries—chiefly from Republicans—that a "gag" was being applied.

ASKS LYNCH VOTE

In the Senate, Guffey (D.) of Pennsylvania, urged opponents of the anti-lynching bill to permit it to come to a vote so the Supreme Cour mitght pass on its constitutionality.

He said he opponents "should not, as members of this body, usurp the functions of the judiciary."

"The Pennsylvanian contended Southern senators "flatly refused to allow the American people, even though they be in the majority, to express their will on this all absorbing subject of lynching."

RAPS FILIBUSTER

By filibustering, he said, opponents of the bill created a situation where a minority of 30,000,000 persons defeated "the right of 100,000,000 people to express their views."

Guffey's address gave a temporary breathing spell to the Southerners, aided by Westerners, in their prolonged filibuster against the measure.

Rumors Blasted By Judge Hurley

TAUNTON, Feb. 8—Judge Joseph L. Hurley, former lieutenant governor, in a terse statement today quelled rumors that he would become the New Deal candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the next election.

Reputedly offered the backing of the national administration, Judge Hurley asserted:

"I am not a candidate for governor or for any other office, either appointive or elective. I am quite content in the performance of my duty as a judge of the superior court. My only ambition insofar as my public life is concerned is to continue to perform my judicial duties to the best of my ability."

He refused to confirm the news of the offer or to answer questions as to who made it and when the support was tendered.

Policeman Asks $20,000 in Balm

SALEM, Feb. 8 — Arthur J. Murphy, 35, of Henry street, Lynn, a police officer, filed a $20,000 alienation of affections suit in Superior Court here today naming a storekeeper as defendant.

According to the suit, Murphy alleged that Frederick Michelson, 35, of Leighton street, Lynn, alienated the affections of his wife, Eldora, 32, "gained her confidence unlawfully and persuaded, procured and enticed her to leave home and continue to be absent."

Last Rites For Kilduff In Norwood

Newspaper Veteran Paid Honor by High Officials

Funeral services were held today for John H. Kilduff, well-known newspaperman and father of Paul M. Kilduff, a member of the editorial staff of the Boston Evening American.

With more than 75 public officials, friends and newspapermen in attendance, a solemn requiem mass was celebrated at Our Lady of Precious Blood Church, Hyde Park, by the Rev. Jeremiah H. O'Neil. Burial was in Highland Cemetery, Norwood.

Honorary pallbearers included City Councillor Clement A. Norton; Alfred D. Whelton, night city editor of the Boston Evening American; Thomas J. Lyons, Lieutenant Edward J. Welsh and James E. Conlin.

Other pallbearers were Edward A. Costello of the Boston Globe, Eugene Scanlan of the Boston Traveler and Edward Burns of the Boston Evening American.

Kilduff, 51, died suddenly at his home, 32 Tacoma street, Hyde Park, on Saturday morning from a heart attack believed to have been caused by the shock of the death of his brother James, who died Friday and was buried yesterday.

For many years Kilduff was on the staff of the Boston Sunday Advertiser and the Boston Evening American.

He is survived by his widow, three sons, two sisters and a brother.

Twin Brides Wait Blessing

Watertown Mother Absent, Girls Elope

Waiting anxiously at home for their mother's blessings today were pretty 19-year-old twins, formerly Matilda and Elizabeth Hudson of Watertown, who eloped to Milford, N. H., Saturday night while the mother was out of town.

Last night in Milford, Matilda was married to Benedict Joseph Leonard, chauffeur, and Elizabeth to Thomas Wightman, a Watertown baker, by Arthur B. Rotch, justice of the peace.

According to Town Clerk Donald C. Bruce of Milford, he waived the five-day marriage notice and issued licenses Saturday night.

Mrs. Thomas J. Hudson, a widow, returns to Watertown tonight where she lives with her daughters at 10 Lawrence street.

The brides expressed hope that "mother won't be mad."

U. S. to Hunt Sailor Missing in Hamburg

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (INS)—The American government today ordered an investigation into the mysterious disappearance of an American seaman on January 14 from the liner City of Baltimore at Hamburg Germany.

American consular officials at Hamburg were ordered to start an inquiry after Senator Tydings (D.), Maryland, informed the state department he had received reports that Fireman Francis Arnold Sullivan of the American merchantman had disappeared in the German port.

'Tax Cuts Like Wall St. Asks' Seen in Bill

Foes of Repealing Levy Call in Vain on Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—House liberals who laid before President Roosevelt demands for heavier taxes on big corporations said today that tax revisions being worked out by a House committee were "nothing short of the Wall Street version."

Rep. McFarlane (D.) of Texas, the group's tax spokesman at the White House conference, declared the committee's program thus far disclosed was "unsatisfactory, not only to our group but to others informed on taxation."

The committee expects to recommend substantial modifications of the excess profits and capital gains taxes. Both these levies have been condemned by business interests.

CAN'T GET INFORMATION

McFarlane said the liberal group was "willing to go along with tax revision to relieve small corporations according to their needs, as shown by government records."

"But we can't even find out what their needs are," he added, "because we can't get the information from the revenue department."

The liberals, led to the White House by Representative Maverick (D.) of Texas, recommended modification of the undistributed profits tax to permit small corporations that need capital to "accumulate minimum reserves" from tax-free earnings.

A TAX ON SUCCESS

The capital gains tax, they said, should be strengthened and revised to take a bigger slice out of the "gains of the successful," but to make greater allowance for "the losses of the unsuccessful."

A tax on dividends, payable by stockholders, also was advocated, and the group expressed opposition to a federal sales tax.

Maverick said 39 House members approved the tax proposals.

Those attending the conference said Roosevelt accorded the delegation "a courteous hearing," but gave no expression of his attitude.

More $1000 Bills Now in Circulation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—Treasury officials said that $1000 bills had gained in circulation in the last year. These bills have increased $22,000,000 worth to $288,000,000. That's a $1,000 bill for every 450 persons in the country.

The $20 bill suffered the worst slump in usage — a drop of $20,000,000.

Roaming Insane Laid to Chiefs At Medfield

Perkins Says "Policy" Lacks Control by State Bureau

Blame for allowing mental patients "to roam at will" was placed today on "officials of the institutions" by Dr. Clifton T. Perkins, acting commissioner of the department of mental diseases.

Dr. Perkins made the statement in connection with a protest filed by residens of Dover, Medfield and Sherborn with the Executive Council complaining against the alleged practice of Medfield State Hospital in permitting patients to roam about surrounding towns.

LACK CONTROL

"The state department of mental diseases has no control over this practice," Dr. Perkins stated.

"That is a policy fixed by officials of the institutions."

Just three hours after the petition was drawn up, James Hill, 24, of Framingham, and Maurice Boguss, 25, of Malden, patients at Medfield, escaped from the institution. They were captured later in Natick.

Hill put up a terrific fight as he was being placed in a car for transfer back to Medfield and was subdued only by efforts of seven officers. It was his third escape. He had been committed to the hospital after running amok with a rifle on Tremont street, Boston, firing shots at passersby.

PATIENTS HURL ROCKS

Hill and Boguss had escaped from the hospital by picking the lock of a door with an improvised wire key. While state troopers hunted them, they walked up the railroad tracks toward Hill's Framingham home.

The petition prepared for the Governor's Council asks that a high wire fence be erected around the Medfield State Hospital, scene of a recent double murder, and where homicidal maniacs are now confined.

Signed by 72 residents of the three towns, it was turned over to Councilor Joseph B. Grossman of Quincy for presentation to his colleagues.

It states that "patients are allowed to roam at will through the neighboring countryside and throw rocks at you from the road." It further claims that residents "hardly dare let their children out of sight" and charges hospital authorities have led them into a feeling of false security by saying the patients are "harmless."

BLAMES OFFICIALS

The petition was prepared following a revelation that superintendents of 15 state mental hospitals were demanding transfer of 200 dangerous patients to Bridgewater and the statement of Dr. Clifton T. Perkins, acting state commissioner of mental diseases, that there was no room to accommodate them there.

Man, 52, Accused In Child Attacks

A 52-year-old Mattapan man today admitted in the lineup at police headquarters that he had molested four small children, each about 10 years old, during the past four months.

The man was arrested last night and held on suspicion of attacking small children.

According to police, he stated he had enticed the children to his room by giving them small sums of money. Police said he would be arraigned later today.

Bank Takes Control Of Oland Property

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Feb. 8 (AP)—Property of Warner Oland, filmland's "Charlie Chan," went into the control of a bank receiver today at the request of his estranged wife, Mrs. Edith Shearn Oland, who listed his holdings at $220,000.

She said Oland, who walked out last month on "Charlie Chan at the Ringside" and later was treated for a nervous breakdown, is about to leave the country for several months.

State Compensation In Murder Sought

Grief-stricken relatives of Isaac E. Fry, late inmate of the Medfield State Hospital, who was murdered by another inmate on January 22, today began action to obtain compensation for their loss from the State.

Representing the family, Attorney Herbert Alpert is seeking to get permission from the rules committee of the Legislature to file a bill for compensation in the House of Representatives. Permission is necessary since the regular time for filing bills in this session is past.

In conference with Attorney Alpert yesterday and today were Miss Helen M. Fry, of Bowdoin street, Dorchester, sister of the murdered man, and her brother, John H. Fry.

Isaac Fry died of injuries received when the other inmate, Augustus Lopreti, struck him over the head with a wooden shoe box.

Quins Quit Bed; Have Colds Week

Fitchburg Eagles Denied School Gym

FITCHBURG, Feb. 8—The School Board today has rejected a petition of the Fitchburg Aerie, F. O. E., for free use of the new senior high school gymnasium on March 7 for an All-Star basket-ball game.

The proceeds of the game were to be entirely donated to the city for charitable purposes.

Society Beauty Fights Love Suit

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (INS)—Piquant Mrs. Marian L. Woods, erstwhile Washington society belle, today was busily planting a charge of legal dynamite with which she hopes to blast her wealthy husband's allegations that she was excessively friendly with six men and a 15-year-old football athlete of Rye High school.

The young wife's counter blast against the accusations of Louis Woods, Jr., manufacturer and Memphis cotton heir, will be contained in affidavits to be filed Thursday in Supreme Court.

Woods named the school boy as Bob Royster, and described him as "an overgrown member" of a high school football team.

Overwork Cited In Death of Heir

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—Overwork and overstudy were blamed today for the death of Honore Palmer, Jr., 28-year-old heir of a prominent Chicago family.

Palmer had been ill since Saturday when he said he "did not feel particularly well," after an athletic workout with his trainer, Bill Waring. Waring said the young man had collapsed shortly afterward.

N. Bedford Officer On Duty Kills Self

NEW BEDFORD, Feb. 8—Raoul O. Schneider, 52, New Bedford policeman, today shot himself in the head while in uniform and on his beat on Belleville avenue, police reported. Death was instantaneous.

Schneider was said to have been despondent after recommendation had been made for suspension of his driving license after he was involved in an auto accident Sunday night.

Charges Husband Was Jailed by Rival

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 8 (INS)—An investigation of charges that William Rosenwald, a former policeman, "railroaded" Joseph McDermott, 25, into jail so he could carry on a love affair with the prisoner's wife was ordered today by Judge Ralph H. Smith. Rosenwald was the chief witness against McDermott when he was convicted of burglary.

Thieves Burn Auto Stolen in Back Bay

An expensive sedan, reported stolen in Back Bay yesterday, was drenched with gasoline and turned into a flaming torch early today in a secluded section of Forest Park, Woburn.

A pair of youthful petters were the only witnesses to the fire except those who set it.

Maniac Slaying Newstip Wins $25 Prize

Brookline Woman Gets $10 Award; Salesman $5

By THE NEWSTIP EDITOR

In a maniacal rampage, a 78-year-old, six-foot-three inmate at the State Infirmary in Tewksbury ran amok with a mail order pistol and murdered four fellow inmates as they slept.

A passerby saw attendants rushing around the grounds of the infirmary minutes after the shooting.

That readers sensed an important NEWS story and immediately called the Boston Evening American News Tip Editor.

It WAS a NEWS STORY—enabling the Boston Evening American to be on the street FIRST with the complete story.

To that alert newshawk goes this week's first prize of $25.00 in the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser NEWSTIP CONTEST in which $50.00 in prizes are awarded each week.

When an insane patient slugged three others in Medfield State Hospital last week—this was NEWS, too.

A Brookline resident is the $10.00 second prize winner for her tip on the Medfield maniacal attack.

Third prize of $5 goes to a Somerville salesman for tip on Harvard coach capturing a burglar.

The ten $1 awards follow:

A Chelsea salesman for tip on suicide; a Westboro clerk for tip on an airplane crash; a Medford student for tip on Medford shooting; a Marblehead engineer for exclusive picture tip; a North End waitress for tip on fire.

Also a Medford painter for rescue story; a West End typist for tip on feature story; a Beverly resident for fire tip; a Back Bay woman for Back Bay crash; and a Wellesley resident for Natick shooting tip.

There's easy money waiting for you, too, at the investment of only a telephone call.

CALL LIBERTY 4000 when you have a newstip—information that will interest others.

Remember, however, that ALERTNESS AND SPEED are important. For the person who calls in FIRST will be given the prize money. It's very simple. There are no rules.

Just remember LIBERTY 4000 when you have a newstip! Ask for the American Newstip Editor.

Troopers Curb Rival Voters

Fists Fly at Polls In Burlington

BURLINGTON, Feb. 8—Peace was restored early today in the local election after state troopers, called from the Andover barracks, quelled a series of fist fights in town hall.

While 500 persons milled around during the vote counting, fists were swung by supporters of rival candidates. The troopers were called to augment the eight local officers on duty at the polls.

Rival factions were cleared from the hall and orderly vote counting continued throughout the night.

Out of a total registration of 1173, votes were cast by 1016 men and women.

Chapter 32

BRAD Talton crossed the controls of his plane, waited for it to come out of the spin. Something was wrong.

The tail flapped round, jerking him harshly at every turn. The rate of descent increased. He gunned his motor, tried again. No response.

The ground leaped up at him. Fifteen hundred feet. A thousand . . . She'd never come out now.

Well, this was the end . . . Out of the clean sky, down, down, down . . . Five hundred . . . still down . . . He'd been a sap . . . Better to have stayed in Boston and fought for her . . . Sheila! . . . Sheila Kelly . . . Sheila!

A brief moment of hope as the plane showed signs of coming out . . . But the ground was too near . . . A rending crash . . . Darkness.

"Sheila!"

"Yes, Brad."

"How did you?—Wait. I remember. You were at the airport! Weren't you? With Whit and Trudy."

"And Jane," said Sheila.

"Was she there? I didn't notice. When was that—today?"

"No, Brad . . . Last week."

"Last week!" He frowned, gazed at her incredulously, comical in his astonishment. "Who am I—Einstein? I'd take a Boy Scout oath it wasn't an hour ago . . . Look, what's going on? Have I been playing with the squirrels or something?"

Sheila noted with intense relief that he was looking—and talking—like the old Brad.

"You've been pretty ill," she said.

"It must have been something I ate," observed Brad. "It certainly wasn't liquor, because I haven't had a drink since—wait a minute. I'm getting it now . . . I took a couple of quickies . . . then I gave you a ring . . . and got on a train . . . and the next thing I knew I was flying some place with Bert . . . A swell guy! . . . Then the crate wouldn't come out of the spin, and I washed out . . . But I guess I didn't. Or I wouldn't be here . . . Would I? And by the way, where am I?"

Sheila told him.

"Well," he said, "that teaches me a lesson I shan't forget. You're never washed out until you're washed out. If you'll pardon me, I'll just make a mental note of that. It's important . . . And now tell me something else. Who performed the miracle?

"I mean—how does it happen the first thing I see is you—in all your beauty and wonder?"

"You can blame yourself for that, I'm afraid," said Sheila, with the ghost of a smile. "You've refused to recognize anyone else."

"That's pleasing to me," said Brad, with a grin. "It proves I'm intelligent, even when I'm out of my head. But, of course, that isn't all of it?"

No, it was a long way from all of it. A great deal had happened during that week. But Sheila wasn't troubling Brad with it.

"I think I'd better call the doctor," she said. "He'll be so glad to see you're all right again." She hesitated. "You ARE all right, aren't you, Brad? You remember things?"

"In painful detail," he said ruefully. "Except how I started to fall on Texas and landed in Boston. Could you clear that up?"

"Your father brought you here in a plane."

"He did?" Brad looked thoughtful. "That was sporting of the old gent. I'll keep that in mind."

"Now," said Sheila, "I'm going to call the doctor."

"Old Cuttle, I suppose?"

"No, he's out. Another doctor is looking after you. He said you were getting better. He'll be glad to know you are."

"Sheila." His voice halted her at the door. "I don't know much about this yet, but I know one thing.

"You're not just wonderful. You're right. You're so damned right you hurt . . . And look . . . Tell that doctor I want my clothes."

AFTER she'd spoken to the physician, Sheila went to a booth phone, called a Liberty number.

"Jerry!"

"Yes." His voice was cold and flat, but she went on.

"He's all right now. I won't have to come here any more."

"You never had to go there!"

"Don't say that, Jerry. You know I did . . . I'm going home in a little while. Could you—come over?"

There was a momentary pause. Then, hoarse and tense, no longer cold—

"Yes. You know I will!"

"And you do understand, don't you?"

"Well—I'm open to conviction. If that bird's really through taking up your time!"

"I think I can convince you—Jerry—dear!"

Sheila sighed happily as she turned from the phone.

That had been the hardest part of the long week. Jerry's refusal to understand why she had to spend so much of her time at the hospital.

She hadn't intended to. Not after that clash with Brad's father. But when she found Brad really needed her — that her presence was actually the only thing that lifted him out of the dark mists of forgetfulness—she couldn't refuse.

But she was glad it was over. All that time—or nearly all of it — sitting by Brad's bedside, talking to him, coaxing him out of his world of hazy half-knowledge — she'd been thinking of Jerry.

When she'd get and bored, she'd think:

"It's strange. I'd never get tired if it were Jerry."

And she wondered how much longer she could stand it.

She knew she should feel delighted that Brad was himself again. But her real gladness rose from the fact that she would now be able to see Jerry—without the spectre of Brad between them.

Poor Jerry. He was so generous about everything else. So kind-hearted. She recalled how he'd gone to Brad's aid in the matter of those traffic charges. But when it came to HER going to Brad's aid — no, Jerry couldn't stand that.

STILL, it was pleasant to hear the doctor say:

"You've done more than medicine, Miss Kelly. I think we'd have had a real mental case to handle except for you."

Pleasant to know that Brad would soon be well, and back at his classes at Harvard, probably.

Then she wondered if he would.

He looked a lot older, somehow. More like a man, less like a playboy. Harvard might seem tame to him after his air adventures.

The doctor met her outside Brad's room.

"Mr. Talton and Mrs. Wendell are on their way here. But I think the patient would like to see you again."

"Does it really make any difference? Now?"

"Oh, no. Whatever was wrong, has been repaired. I shouldn't say there was the slightest danger of another relapse."

"Then," said Sheila, "please tell him I had to go. Tell him I'm needed at home. Tell him anything."

Without waiting for a reply, she hurried out.

A uniformed chauffeur was waiting at the hospital entrance. He touched his cap.

"I'm to drive you, Miss Kelly. Wherever you wish to go. Mr. Talton's orders."

He'd been there every time she left the hospital. And she'd been glad to use the car sometimes—even though she didn't like Brad's father.

But tonight—no, she wanted to go home on the subway. To feel people around her. Friendly, unassuming, everyday people. Acting natural. Being tired, or angry, or sad, or gay, or in love. And not afraid to show it. Not people who were cast in a mould—a mould that tried to make them alike, even though they were all different, too.

JERRY arrived just after the family had finished dinner. He hadn't taken time to eat, and was glad to let Ma Kelly "dish him up a little snack."

But his eyes, at least, were hungry only for Sheila.

Ma Kelly wouldn't have an opportunity to cook for her family again for awhile. With much urging from all, she and Barney had finally decided to use the steamship tickets Del had so generously provided. In a quiet way, they were as happy as if starting on a honeymoon.

Patsy was the only problem. Surprisingly, Patsy didn't want to go to Europe. And there could be only one reason for that, Sheila knew. Whit Prentiss.

It was a point that remained unsettled as her parents went ahead with their own preparations. Privately, they imagined she'd change her mind at the last minute. If not—well, they could manage without her well enough.

"You're sure you're through playing nurse to Talton?" said Jerry, when he and Sheila were alone. "The Lord knows I've tried to be real sorry for the poor devil, but all I could think was, 'She'll be falling in love with him!'"

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Jerry," said Sheila. "How many men do you think a girl can be in love with at once?"

"That's something I don't know nor care about. There's only one particular girl whose capacities along that line interest me."

"I wonder who she could be?"

Jerry told her in a way that left no room—nor breath—for doubt.

BIG Gus Mornick couldn't make it it out. He had a notion to dump the whole deal.

His phone rang.

"Yeah?"

"Mr. North was at Miss South's tonight," said a careful voice. "They're palsy-walsies again."

"Is that straight?"

"Yeah. An' she traveled subway."

"Okay."

Well, that was different.

Unknowingly, Brad Talton had temporarily upset all the plans of the racket boss respecting Mickey and Jerry O'Donovan.

Learning that Sheila was going to the hospital every day, scarcely seeing Jerry at all, Big Gus had begun to doubt that she was the way to get at his arch-enemy.

Nor was he sure he cared to mess with anyone who drove home nightly in Cabot Talton's limousine.

So everything had stood still, while he waited to be sure of his ground.

The latest information from his scouting department was cheering.

Apparently, O'Donovan was still reachable that way.

"Get hold of the Doc," Big Gus ordered a henchman. "Tell him to start the ball rollin' again. He'll get it."

IT was the following noon that Patsy met Whit in front of the Washington street subway station.

"Oh, Whit," she said, her eyes big with alarm. "I'm scared. I think they're going to make me go with them!"

"They are?" said the scion of the Prentisses. "Huh. We'll have to do something about that."

"But what?"

"Well, as a start, let's loiter this way." Deftly, he guided her along Summer, into the door of Smith-Patterson's, and up to the correct counter.

"Something swingy in solitaires," he said to Clerk William R. Tuttle.

It begins to look like a race against sailing time for Patsy and Whit. Meanwhile, Mickey's brief reprieve from Mornick's subtle plotting seems to have ended. The story is told in tomorrow's chapter of this unique all-Boston novel, appearing daily in all editions of the Boston Evening American.

While some old Boston and Beacon Hill names are used for purely fictitious characters in this story, they refer to no actual persons.

Patsy Picks Out That Important Stone

"Something swingy in solitaires!" orders Whit as he leads Patsy Kelly into Smith-Patterson's and halts her before the diamond counter. Clerk William R. Tuttle obliges, and Patsy looks over dazzling array of engagement rings with Whit.

The Story All Boston Is Talking About

What Has Gone Before

GENUINE, decent, lovely. That's Sheila Kelly, of South Boston, heroine of this novel, as she trips down the steps of the State House into a maelstrom of adventure and romance.

Typical of the best in Boston is the Kelly family—former Sgt. Bernard F. Kelly, police strike veteran; his devoted wife, Moira; their children, Sheila, Patricia, Michael, Delphine (Patsy, Mickey, and Del.)

Sheila is a temporary State House employe when the story opens. So far, the only man to stir her heart has been Gerald (Jerry) O'Donovan, of Roxbury, former B. C. football star, and rising figure in Boston politics.

Accident brings her into contact with Bradford Cabot Talton, Beacon street, Harvard, and Social Register. Though she does not encourage his attentions, Jerry grows jealous, and she drops the Harvard youth.

But chance brings them together again, and Sheila finds herself swayed by Brad's charm—even though she rejects his proposal of marriage.

A sinister element enters the affairs of the Kelly family when Big Gus Mornick, Boston racket boss, seeks to obtain possession of a coded police report on racketeering, which Sheila has typed.

His fury turns against Jerry O'Donovan when Jerry, campaigning successfully for city council, promises to clean up the rackets—number pool, bookmaking, and so on.

Meanwhile, Vince Barton, of Jamaica Plain, Delphine's crooning husband, blunders into Mornick's net by being among the innocent bystanders when Greefy Koopman, a Mornick gunman, commits a racket murder.

Mornick learns of Jerry's devotion to Sheila, plots to frame her brother, Mickey, on a "murder rap." Rather than see Mickey go to the chair, he believes Sheila will induce Jerry to cease his anti-racket campaign.

Mornick orders Greefy to find a victim for the faked murder, and Greefy returns with Vince, whom he has recognized as a witness of the gang slaying. But Big Gus, who "goes big for crooners," won't permit Vince to be killed. However, he holds the crooner prisoner.

Like a gayer echo of Sheila's love complications is the romance of her 17-year-old sister Patsy with Whit Prentiss, Brad's Harvard roommate. It reaches a climax when Whit proposes during a party at the Prentiss' Beverly estate, while his parents are in Bermuda. Patsy accepts. As they are both under age and fear parental opposition, Whit urges an elopement.

Brad has been arrested for speeding while driving Sheila to Boston from the Dover estate of his socialite sister, Mrs. Trudy Wendell. After Sheila again rejects him, he quarrels with his father, the wealthy and politically-powerful Cabot Talton. Sulking, the Talton scion vanishes from Harvard, and is missing for months. Then a newspaper dispatch brings news he has crashed while flying as a "barnstormer" in Texas.

His memory has been affected by his injuries, and his sister persuades Sheila to meet him when he is brought back by hospital plane. Brad recognizes her, and is overjoyed. But Sheila is furious when his father coolly tells her he expects her to "remain" with Brad, adding that she may "name her own compensation."

Jewish Group's Offices Opened

Permanent headquarters of the American Jewish Congress, to serve the entire New England section, have been established at 333 Washington street, it was announced today.

A concentrated drive to have all Jewish organizations and individuals affiliate themselves with the congress is being conducted by Samuel Kalesky, president of the New England division of the congress.

The necessity for the Boston headquarters was pointed out by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise at a recent banquet.

Rabbi Joseph Shubow of Temple B'nai Moshe, Brighton, has been elected vice-president of the division, and his place as executive director of the New England division has been taken by Ellis Swartz.

Arthur O'Donnell To Run for House

In response to urgings of Brighton, Allston and Back Bay civic associations, Arthur L. O'Donnell, past commander of Oliver Ames Jr., Post No. 117 A. L., has announced himself as a candidate for Democratic nomination as representative from Ward 21 next fall.

O'Donnell served two years in France with the First Division. He resides with his wife and two children in Blenford road, Brighton.

City of 1000 Contrasts Law-Abiding Always

Paul Gallico, roving reporter of International News Service, flew to Reno, Nev., to see for himself whether the weird stories he had heard about the divorce mecca were really true. He has written a series of articles on what he terms "the most amazing city in the United States, the Reno, Nevada, of today."

By PAUL GALLICO

International News Service Staff Correspondent

RENO, Nev., Feb. 8—The first impression of Reno, Nevada, 1938, will curl your hair.

It's the greatest show in America!

It is the city of a thousand contrasts. Wide open, life rides high, wide and handsome here. The red, blue, green and purple neon lights of the clubs and palaces burn their messages of pleasure and excitement into your brain, and blind you to the fainter glow of pathos and tragedy, the undercurrent of the town. It is the city of women who have failed.

It is as fresh, salty and naive as a mining camp in the roaring 40's, and as smart and sophisticated as Fifth avenue or Michigan boulevard.

It is tough and crude and hard and yet full of strange gentleness and tendernesses and sympathy for the female flotsam of the country washed up onto its shores in search of freedom from marriage, escape from life.

LAWS ARE FEW

It is almost impossible to break the law in Reno, because there are so few laws to break. You cannot expose the city because there is nothing to expose. All the human and animal passions are legalized. When you come to the line in one of our national anthems—"Let Freedom Ring,"—you must think of Reno, because it is the last stronghold in the United States where the tocsin of liberty peals 24 hours a day.

It is a clean, orderly, gentle, wicked, bawdy, joyous, manly unpretentious, unregenerate little city, that admits frankly and without sham or hypocrisy that it lives on divorce, on the golden grist ground by the best oiled, sweetest moving divorce mill in the world.

MARRIAGE HAPPENS

Twenty-four hour drinking, gambling and prostitution are legalized in Reno. But Reno, too, has sixteen churches.

The little city of a thousand contrasts!

Reno is known all over the world for its six-week divorces. But Reno annually celebrates three times as many marriages as divorces. If Reno is a divorce mill, it is also a marriage hopper. Reno is the solvent for the inhibitions of other states. The three-day-gin-marriage-law of California sends thousands of couples into neighboring Nevada to be united.

The marriage bureau is in the same white marble courthouse that frees the miserables who have tired of their mates.

An airline out of San Francisco runs all-expense wedding trips to Reno at $60 and $75. This includes two round trip fares, marriage license, fee for marrying judge or minister (any sect, any creed included), wedding supper, overnight in the bridal suite of the best hotel, and the necessary number of whiskey sours the next day to enable the newlyweds to reach the airport.

Reno is a masculine town and conceived and operated by men—for women.

CLUB IS EXCLUSIVE

No woman need be lonely in Reno during the taking of "the cure." And no woman need worry about being annoyed or molested. The divorce colony in Reno is as closely guarded and exclusive as a private club and harder to crash than most. Divorce is the chief industry of Reno. The Reno-ites are smart enough to protect their racket. Gigolos are not wanted. Fortune hunters and phonies, most of them, cannot get to first base. Some of them are run out of town.

Some dark alleys of Reno have a dangerous reputation, but women have no business in dark alleys. The main thoroughfares of the city are brilliantly lighted the night through. A woman who keeps to them is as safe as she would be at home—safer.

Liquor, the divorcee's anodyne, is cheap, good and plentiful, and available at any hour. The bar of the Riverside Hotel and most of the other big bars and clubs work on 24 hour shifts.

NURSE PROVIDED

The hotel also provides a nurse, a big, comfortable woman who is handy when the new arrival begins to come out of it, sober up, and for the first time look herself in the eye.

The secrets of most of the unhappy women who come here are locked beneath the white jackets of the bartenders of Reno. The sympathetic friend hears one side of the story, the attorney hears another, but the bartender eventually hears it all.

Reno, once a cow and mining town, serves in some six or seven of its restaurants and clubs some of the best food in the United States—far above anything to be obtained in any other city of similar size (just under 20,000 in population) and equal to the best of the big cities, such as New York and Chicago.

NICKEL BETS TAKEN

Wealthy spenders who want to gamble and have money to risk can play practically without limit. But the best clubs in town will sell you roulette chips for a dime—twenty for two dollars,—and most of the gambling houses on the main drags will take nickel bets.

The city is full of professional gamblers, ranchers, sheep-men, miners and cowboys. And one rarely sees a policeman. And rarely sees disorder. But don't walk into a gambling house with your hands shoved down into your pockets. You might get hurt.

The thing you are most liable to be arrested for in Reno is walking across a street against a red light.

(Tomorrow's article—The Divorcee's First Impression of Reno.)

Tufts Society Hears Chemist

The Tufts College Chemical Society will be addressed this afternoon by John Happell, head of the Research Department of the New York laboratories of the Socony Vacum company at its regular meeting to be held in the Chemistry building, at 4:15 p. m.

Happell will speak on "The Chemistry of Refining our Petroleum Products" and his lecture will be followed by an open forum. Happell is an expert in the field of petroleum chemistry and has had much experience in chemical problems connected with the developments of the petroleum industry.

Frederick M. Wilson, president of the club, will occupy the chair.

Asks Lincoln's Birth Observed

Celebration Feb. 12 Urged by Hurley

State-wide observance of Lincoln's birth on Saturday was urged in a proclamation by Governor Hurley announced today by Secretary of State Frederick W. Cook.

Lincoln, "more than any other, typifies all the splendid attributes of the ideal American," states the proclamation.

"He was destined to be the leader who would preserve a nation, who would liberate a race, who would give to the youth of all time a model of truthfulness, justice, and devotion to a principle."

The Governor asks that Lincoln be honored by "exercises in our schools, churches and other meeting places and that all public buildings display on Lincoln Day the flag to which he gave new significance."

Asks $2,200,000 Fund

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (INS)—An annual appropriation of $2,200,000 for the next two years, to encourage adult civic education, was proposed in a measure introduced by Representative Randolph (D.) of West Virginia. The federal funds would be distributed to state and local governments if they provided equal amounts.

Society Leaders Turn Out For Wilbur Premiere

By BETTY ALDEN

LAST SEASON, WHEN "Stage Door" was presented to the theater-going public, erudite drama critics said that the play was an instance of the theater dining upon its own head . . .

Along the same line it seems to us that the famous Theater Guild has been doing a bit of dining upon the heads of its patrons and subscribers . . .

MRS. CHARLES G. MIXTER, JR.

As far back as three years ago the guild gave us the canting, communistic revue called "Parade" . . . and it has, on several occasions since, handed out left wing propaganda in exchange for the capitalistic dollars of the fashionably dressed subscribers who came to sit on the dark side of the footlights . . . and eventually left the theater mentally upset, if not disappointed . . .

We don't know whether this verbal waving of the red flag in the faces of theater goers has proven to be impractical intellectually or financially . . . but, at any rate, the guild has given the capitalistic side a voice in this comprehensive debate in "Wine of Choice," which opened at the Wilbur Theater last evening . . .

Such able debaters as Alexander Woollcott and Leslie Banks pointed out that there are a few compensations in the present order of things after all . . .

No matter what the guild presents, Mrs. Henry Endicott and Mr. and Mrs. William Dana Orcutt are right down in the front row in their accustomed seats . . . Mrs. Endicott made her usual aristocratic appearance last evening in a gown of black velvet with diamond trimming . . .

Mrs. Fitzwilliam Sargent, a former Boston society girl who has tread the boards in a number of successful shows, was on our side of the footlights with a party of friends . . . her black gown had a fitted jacket of shiny sequins and her shoulders were swathed in silver fox . . .

Novel Color Effects in Dinner Gown

MRS. JAMES LAWRENCE, JR., maintained her reputation for wearing novel color effects in her dinner gown of wood violet with a high standup neckband of cerise, finely embroidered with gold . . . Catharine Lane, the sculptress, and her escort sat directly behind the Lawrences, but chatted so amiably during the intermissions they scarcely noticed who was around them . . .

Angela Lang and her sister, Helen, were both in the audience, though in different parties . . .

Mr. Edward Jackson Holmes, director of the Museum of Fine Arts, was present with Mrs. Holmes, who wore a colorful gown of turquoise taffeta . . . Still other socially prominent folks in the audience were Miss Elizabeth Leland of Milton with her brother, Joseph, the well known architect; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Nickerson, Jr., Mrs. Edward Osgood of Beacon Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred McIntyre of Louisburg square, who were in a foursome with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Codman . . Mrs. McIntyre's gown of lipstick red chiffon was delicately shirred and topped by a brief mink jacket . . . a short bolero of shirred turquoise chiffon topped Mrs. Codman's nice black dinner gown . . .

Mrs. Saltonstall Meyer was escorted by one of her attractive Harvardian sons, and still others present were Arthur Feidler, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Badger, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Toppan, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Aldrich, Hubert Ripley, Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs and Mrs. George Dunckiee . . .

Winter Sports Fans Plan Gay Holiday

LONG BEFORE skiing reached its present wide spread popularity, Washington's birthday was considered by the small and valiant group of hardy souls who went in for winter sports, to be the greatest holiday of the year . . . As it was usually the last holiday which could be depended upon to provide good skiing . . .

Nowadays, it seems that half the population goes out on the slopes in Tyrolean garb to celebrate the birthday of the father of our country, by indulging in a sport of Norwegian origin . . .

For a number of years, Larry Damon of Chestnut Hill and Marblehead and a group of his friends have been packing up their belongings and trekking up to the mountains for a few days of rural quiet and winter sports . . . and some of their acquaintances regarded them with mild curiosity for sacrificing the warmth and convenience of the city for a snow covered farmhouse and a log fire . . .

But this 22nd of February there will be hundreds of similar affairs all over the mountains . . .

While they are counting the days from now until the 22nd, the thousands of downsliders are breathing a silent prayer to Old King Winter that the skiing conditions will be good . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Damon and a group of their friends have taken over the whole of Green Hite Inn at Woodstock, Vermont, for a four-day holiday . . . and skiing or no, they are determined to pack a lot of fun and relaxation into the brief vacation from city life and everyday cares . . .

Young Set Will Be Well Represented

IN THIS JOLLY PARTY will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Mixter, Jr., (Elizabeth Sawyer), and the latter's brothers, Henry, Jr., and Avery Sawyer . . . Also Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Blodgett, who have been devoting their energies to the Community Fund Campaign and will be ready for a rest by the time the holiday rolls around . . . Also Mr. and Mrs. Kimball Prince of Short Hills, New Jersey, and Mr. and Mrs. Alden Dally of New York, who are friends of the Sawyers . . .

Still others making up the group will be Mary D. Chase, Elsa Domerich of Greenwich, Ct., Mr. and Mrs. Oliver S. Leland, Elizabeth Hovey, Joseph Bent, Tracy Buell, Anne Halle, Priscilla Damon, Carol Perry, Jr., and Ellen de Normandie, who will be going "stag," so to speak, for her fiance, who is a doctor, is on the staff of a St. Louis hospital and cannot be here for the holiday.

Painting A Hobby

PAINTING CARICATURES is one of Mrs. Louis McClennen's hobbies. Here she is photographed with her clever likeness of Mrs. Frederick Johnson (Shirley Swaim) which all her friends recognize at once. Mrs. McClennen has laid aside her paints and brushes, for the next few weeks, and is devoting her energies to the Bali Ball at the Balinese Room in the Hotel Somerset February 16. She is chairman of the affair which will benefit the Sarah Lawrence College Scholarship fund.

Emmanuel Grads Flock To Theater Benefit

Emmanuel College held a winning hand in staging its annual theatrical night last evening at the Shubert.

No vehicle for alumnae fund benefit could have been more aptly chosen than "Murder in the Cathedral" and no more swanky audience could have been found in Greater Boston than the one which surged through the theater doors before the first curtain call. It had both quality and quantity.

First Lady of the Commonwealth, Mrs. Charles F. Hurley, headed the subscribers' list. Her simple black crepe dinner dress was worn beneath a mink coat. Accompanying her was Alma Boudreau, who snuggled into a voluminous fur coat.

"Very fine indeed," was Kay Connell's only comment as she viewed the crowd. She scored twice last evening. Not only as alumnae president but as one of the best dressed. Her brocaded evening wrap was edged with mink. Orchids the last word in luxury.

WEARS WHITE SATIN

Equally elated over response to the party was the evening's chairman, Elizabeth Logan, whose white satin sported a maribou cape. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward Logan turned out in black velvet and ermine while Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald was also numbered among those who chose the snowy fur for their evening wraps.

Another unusual evening coat was affected by Mrs. Thomas Herrigan. Fashioned of black velvet, it was topped by a waist-length cape of white fox.

Before the night's performance she was numbered among the dinner guests at the Longwood Towers apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Keane. Mrs. Keane's velvet frock was topped with a gold damask clock while Eleanor Monahan Shay and her mother were also among those who viewed the performance from orchestra seats.

TOBINS ATTEND

Members of the city's official family attended in goodly numbers. Mrs. William Arthur Reilly represented the fire department a slim black crepe beneath her Persian lamb, while Mr. and Mrs. James Tobin staged an impromptu reception between acts. Mrs. Tobin, whose brother-in-law guides the city's destiny, wore peacock blue satin with her simple black velvet evening wrap.

Discussing the evening's presentation most seriously was a group from Cambridge which included Margaret Kelly, her beige and brown chiffon worn beneath her yellow velvety jacket, Martha Doherty who boasted two escorts, her brother Walter and Bill Baker, and Helen Attridge, whose dusty pin moire sported sapphire clips for accent.

Grace Maloney and her party occupied one of the boxes. In the group were Agnes McHugh and Bill Hogan and Irene Ryan, who circulated about the lobby greeting everyone.

Silver foxes and black crepe were her choice for costume.

Cecilia Gilgun cut quite a smooth figure in heavy white crepe and gold accessories as she entered with Dr. John Kelliher. Mary Dowd bound her dark coiffure with a velvet cowl while Dr. and Mrs Paul Hinchey numbered about their guests, sister Mary, who wore a polka-dot taffeta beneath her chinchilla cape.

Glimpsed among the alumnae's former presidents were Mrs. Daniel Sheehan, white lapin collaring her black velvet wrap, and Mary Sheehan, who has just retired as leader of the group, wore a matching turban with her bottle green velvet.

Also listed among the subscribers were Mrs. Henry Fitzgerald who attended the benefit with daughter Mary. Former Mayor and Mrs. Frederick W. Mansfield, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nolan, the latter's ankle-length wrap topping her spring print, were also present.

Another merry group included Betty Cunningham and Neil Callaghan and Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLaughlin, the latter was accompanied by her sister, Mary, whose black velvet ensemble was an excellent foil for her orchid corsage. Colette Fulham's black velvet dirndl was edged with heavy white lace.

Society Notes

MRS. WALTER R. BAYLIES of Taunton has joined the large colony of Bostonians sojourning at Miami Beach, Florida. Vacationing with her are her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Allen and the latter's aunt, Mrs. Andre E. Rickmere. Mr. Allen is the noted young author.

Group Sponsors Community Dinner

Mrs. Arthur T. Lyman of Ricefields, Westwood, who has put in a few busy weeks as one of the general vice-chairmen of the Community Fund campaign, has shouldered part of the responsibility for the big victory dinner which will wind up the drive on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Lyman heads the sponsoring committee for the dinner which will be held at the Hotel Bradford at 6:30 p. m. Assisting her are Mrs. F. Gregg Bemis, Mrs. Wilbur S. Higgins of Brookline, Mrs. Lawrence G. Brooks of Medford, Mrs. Sylvester B. Colbert of Charlestown, Miss Margaret I. Connolly and Mrs. Max Ulin of Dorchester, Mrs. Lawrence Coolidge of South Hamilton, and Mrs. Leslie B. Cutler of Needham.

Additional sponsors include Mrs. Gelston King of Sherborn, Mrs. John Wells Farley of Needham, Miss Amelia Peabody of Commonwealth avenue, Mrs. Frederic Winthrop of Berkeley street, Mrs. Morton C. Tuttle of Newton Center, Mrs. Raymond Emerson of Concord, and Mrs. John G. Flint of Chestnut Hill.

Emmanuel Grads at Benefit

MRS. JAMES TOBIN JAMES TOBIN

ONE OF THE SMARTEST benefit affairs on the winter calendar was the Emmanuel College alumnae theatrical party last night at the Shubert. Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. James Tobin. Mrs. Tobin, one of Emmanuel's most active alumna, is the former Mary Spencer.

KATHERINE CONNELL

GREATLY PLEASED with the outcome of Emmanuel's benefit party was Katherine Connell of Cambridge, president of the alumnae group.

Mt. St. Joseph's Grads Make Merry

Scholarship Fete Draws Many

Mt. St. Joseph's alumnae drew the city's first family as its guest at the annual scholarship soiree in the Sheraton Room of the Copley-Plaza last evening.

And neither formal civic receptions nor the social duties attendant on being mayor and first lady of the community seems to have dulled their sense of enjoyment.

It was a particularly happy party for Mrs. Tobin who was delighted with the unexpected reunion with her classmates. She was as pretty and girlish as the youngest graduate, her billowy frock of peach taffeta very attractive.

They were the guests of Mrs. Frank McKeen, chairman of the evening. Mrs. McKeen's dubonnet velvet was trimmed with a cluster of bright red flowers, her hair smartly styled in the approved brushed-up fashion.

She did an excellent job on arranging all details. Younger members alternated in selling flowers while still others "shagged and big-appled" to their heart's content.

GOWN OF WHITE CREPE

Peggy Hogan and Jim Walsh occupied one of the evening's ringside seats. Peggy's white crepe was topped with a bolero, cleverly embroidered with braid and offset by a cluster of orchids. Marguerite Butler, their guest for the evening, chose black sheer trimmed with gold, a Juliet cap of gold an effective accessory to her costume.

A group of graduates bustled about doing their bit by the undertaking. Mrs. Frank West, the former Rose Boland, took her turn at the door checking tickets and making table arrangements. Her wispy frock of light blue chiffon was combined with sapphire blue while her sister, Alice Boland, chose a puffed-sleeved number of peacock blue slipper satin.

Bill Bennett concentrating her attention on Alice Sullivan, the decolletage of her coral chiffon edged with matching flowers while Mary Duffley removed her shell pink jacket to dance about with her brother-in-law, Walter Gildes.

Most of the evening's activities centered about Mrs. Frank McKeen's tables where many members of the medical profession seemed to hold forth. Numbered among them were Dr. and Mrs. Albert Malone, red velvet jacket topping the latter's black crepe. Mr. and Mrs. James Casey, bright flowers splashed on a dark background, and Dr. and Mrs. Cyril Lydon, the bodice of the latter's white sheer effectively beaded in silver.

CERISE TAFFETA

Mrs. Leo Birmingham, current leader of the group, chose blue lace sashed in cerise taffeta not unlike the frock which Mrs. J. Leo Sullivan, a former president, effected for the evening's fun.

Faith Frazier captured the city's youngest and best looking councillor, Ted Lyons, while Mary Coughlin paused in her dancing to renew some school day acquaintances. Mary was arrayed quite simply in dark blue marquisette.

Frank Sweeny entertained a gay group at her table. Among them Kay Delaney, whose garnet velvet was trimmed with gold lame, and Margaret Kennedy, who was escorted by Carl Carcillio.

Others glimpsed in the merry throng which had turned out for the gay event were Jane Murphy and Paul Gildea. Jane's dark frock sashed in tri-colored taffeta. Clare Kelly, who glittered in a combination of white net and sequins, and Mrs. Lawrence Moran, whose blue crepe was edged with matching paillettes.

Alumnae Dance

MARIE McQUEENEY CLARE CONNELLY

PRETTY GIRLS with trays of flowers and a glib line of sales chatter proved a deadly combination for customers at the supper dance of Mt. St. Joseph's alumnae at the Copley-Plaza last evening. Marie McQueeney of Dorchester and Clare Connelly of Milton were two graduates who did their share by the scholarship fund at last night's suiree.

NICHOLAS FORSYTE RITA DUFFLEY

RITA DUFFLEY of Boston danced gracefully about with Nicholas Forsyte of Belmont at last evening's scholarship benefit in the Sheraton Room of the Copley-Plaza. The occasion was the Mt. St. Joseph's alumnae dance capably directed by Mrs. Frank McKeen of Milton.

Cast Tops In Wilbur Play

Gleaming Dialogue Features 'Wine of Choice' at Wilbur

THE CAST

Charles Dow Ranley	Herbert Tost
Togo	Akihiko Toshiwara
Binkie Niebuhr	Alexander Woollcott
Wilda Doran	Claudia Morgan
Dow Christophson	Theodore Newton
Ryder Gerrard	Leslie Banks
Laddy Sears	Donald Cook
Leo Traub	Paul Stewart
Collins	John Maroney

By PEGGY DOYLE

Strictly for the carriage trade is S. N. Behrman's latest comedy, "Wine of Choice," which came to the Wilbur last night under Theater Guild auspices.

Literate playwriting and Grade-A cast combine to make this sixth Guild play as distinguished and [illegible] a theatrical offering as the season has offered.

Its gleaming dialogue must delight that [illegible] Alexander Woollcott, once a drama [illegible] who is playing his second [illegible] [illegible] heavy going for the [illegible] even though it is [illegible]

[illegible] Morgan's gifted daughter, Claudia, is now playing the [illegible] feminine role [illegible] essayed by the screen's Miriam Hopkins in Chicago.

Woollcott now playing himself as the playwright wrote him succeeds Harry Wagstaff Gribble who also directed the Chicago company. The present Binkie, an [illegible] cupid and philosopher who lives on the bounty of his friends couldn't be better. Mr. Woollcott's acting has improved vastly since his "Brief Moment" debut thanks probably to his radio training and if you were a keyhole peeper you couldn't catch him in a less self-conscious mood and tense than he is on the Wilbur stage.

There is force and sincerity in Leslie Banks' Senator Ryder Gerrard of New Mexico, who loves and loses the heroine, Wilda Doran, whose affections are as variable as last week's weather.

[illegible] has interested the [illegible] playboy, Laddy Sears played [illegible] by Donald Cook [illegible] in Wilda's career as a [illegible]. Whether or not she [illegible] will decide her answer to the senator's urgent marriage proposal, she tells him.

The fourth entry in the Wilda Doran sweepstakes is Dow Christophson, a thorough-going Left Winger who has his emotions completely under control. His complete indifference at first intrigues Wilda, then inflames her desire.

They enjoy an unhallowed interlude, indirect cause of a Right and Left debate between Leslie Banks and Theodore Newton (who plays Christophson) which is arresting until it exceeds the word limit for stage speeches.

If you've ever seen a buddha walking, and with clothes on, of course, it is the insatiably curious "Binkie" Woollcott, busily but calmly untying the knots all these people get their lives in to and getting vast amount of enjoyment out of it.

He and every member of the cast is excellent or if you prefer, "naturals" as Wilda's movie-producer discoverer describes her.

Herman Shumlin has directed with flawless skill, and Lee Simonson's setting is a perfect background for this smart, smooth comedy that should be right up Mister Woollcott's New York rue de la smarty-alecks.

Romance Plus At the Repertory

The Repertory Theater on Huntington avenue and Medford's Square Theater will offer "The Soldier and the Lady" with Anton Walbrook and Elizabeth Allan and "Romance and Riches," with Cary Grant and Mary Brian tomorrow and Thursday.

June's Screen Hero

Wayne Morris and June Travis are plenty happy in this scene from "The Kid Comes Back," Warner film which comes Thursday to the Paramount and Fenway Theaters.

'Snow White' At Keith's Thursday

The greatest sensation in all screen history, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Walt Disney's long awaited first full length animated film, in Multiplane Technicolor, with dialogue, songs, dances and a complete musical score, has its Boston premiere on Thursday at Keith Memorial theater. Wynn Murray, singing feature of the Broadway musical success "Babes in Arms," will head the new stage show "Rhapsody in Rhythm."

There will be a preview showing of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" tomorrow evening at 10.15.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was three years in the making, its cost being estimated at $1,500,000. The picture is an adaptation of one of the most loved of the Grimm Brothers' tales. First published in the early part of the last century, it has been translated into every civilized language.

Meeting "Snow White," the dainty [illegible] Princess on the screen is the same as greeting an old friend who has not been seen for years. Her adventures begin when the wicked Queen, jealous of Snow White's budding beauty, first degrades her to the level of a scullery maid. Even then the Queen's magic mirror informs her that "Snow White," though attired in rags, is still the fairest in the land.

The palace huntsman is ordered to take the Princess to the forest and kill her. But he permits her to escape. She is befriended by the pitying birds and animals and finds refuge with the Seven Dwarfs in their wood and home. Thither comes the wicked Queen in the guise of a Witch. "Snow White" eats a bewitched apple given her by her rival, and falls into a death-like slumber.

So lovely is she that the Seven Dwarfs, instead of burying their beloved little housekeeper, place her in a coffin of glass and gold by which they keep watch. The tiny chaps have already wreaked vengeance on the Witch who has fallen to destruction over a precipice. Then came the handsome Prince, who loved "Snow White" when she was only a scullery maid, awakens her with a kiss, and the sweethearts leave together for their castle home.

Gravet's Next Film Is 'Maiden Voyage'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8 — Doing a little personal sleuthing I discover that Fernand Gravet's next Screen appearance is in "Maiden Voyage," with Luise Rainer.

Naturally it won't be until late spring because Gravet has a stage engagement in his own Paree, and little Rainer has "Frou Frou" first on her movie schedule.

Louella O. Parsons

More than being Gravet's next "Maiden Voyage" will be one of the first Mervyn LeRoy productions for M-G-M—if not his very first on the new contract. He is now in Phoenix resting, and there is a chance he may prevail upon Gravet to return to Hollywood sooner since M-G-M expects to concentrate on Rainer and get out as many pictures as possible.

Robert Sherwood's visit to Hollywood was for the purpose of conferring with Hunt Stromberg and [illegible] Brown on his play "Idiot's Delight" in which Norma Shearer and Clark Gable are to be costarred. Norma will make it as [illegible] following the Stern [illegible] play with [illegible]

Clark will be starred in "Too Hot to Handle," the newsreel epic which Jack Conway megaphones before he goes into "Idiot's Delight." Norma has liked the idea of "Idiot's Delight" from the beginning and after "Marie Antoinette" this amusing comedy should be a good contrast.

They're telling a funny one about the Weaverville premiere last Saturday night. One of the natives got so excited when George Brent and Barton McLane put on the big fight in "Gold Is Where You Find It" that he pulled out a 22 rifle and took a shot at the screen.

The sheriff hustled the offender [illegible] and some of the citizens were terribly embarrassed that one of their number should make such an exhibition of himself at Weaverville's first premiere. But, the visiting firemen from Hollywood enjoyed the enthusiastic shooter's exhibition.

Chatter in Hollywood: Ariana Borg, who was one of M-G-M's early foreign imports, has been here almost two years without ever having made a picture. She came to Hollywood from France and there was much written about her beauty and ability.

She even created quite a lot of attention by dressing eccentrically but nothing happened in her career except that she has been kept on salary all this time and it is estimated that the studio has spent nearly $[illegible] grooming her.

Now she finally goes on loan to [illegible] Zanuck will try her out in the [illegible] "Trip to Paris."

BETTY ROSS CLARK must be good to be signed by M-G-M at a time when 30 other players have been let out by this studio. She plays one of the leads in "Judge Hardy's Children" which is to be in the order of the JONES family. The HARDY family consists of LEWIS STONE, CECILIA PARKER and MICKEY ROONEY. SALLY EILERS starts "Nurse From Brooklyn" at Universal on the 14th. She has made four pictures since her return from Europe in September. That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

"HOLLYWOOD HOTEL," with Louella Parsons, Benny Goodman and his swing orchestra, Dick Powell and Frances Langford, is now being shown at the Paramount and Fenway.

'Kathleen' Screen Treat

A breath of Old Ireland, replete with country fairs, shamrocks, steeplechase racing and tender Irish love comes wafting from the screen of Tremont Temple this week.

It emanates from "Kathleen," film based on the legend of Kathleen Mavourneen, portrayed by Hollywood's own Sally O'Neil, who has kept that piquant [illegible] for which she was famous on these shores before she deserted American pictures.

"Kathleen" is a gentle romance enriched by Sally's charming brogue and the attractive accents of the splendid Irish players in the cast.

Kathleen is admired by stalwart Tom Burke, with a rich tenor voice and a magnanimous heart, the stevedore who hides his broken heart when young Jack Daly wins the love of Kathleen.

Both Tom and Jack give splendid performances. Tom's [illegible] voice at its best in the Mavourneen [illegible] [illegible] and Jack appearing as [illegible] as any Hollywood [illegible] Sara Allgood, portraying [illegible] [illegible]

Firestone Rites Set for Friday In Akron

3 Sons to Accompany Body From Miami To Ohio City

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8 (AP)—Three sons of Harvey Firestone were here today to accompany their father's body to his Akron, O., home where funeral services will be held Friday for the 69-year-old industrialist.

Firestone died peacefully in his sleep early yesterday at Harbel Villa, his mansion by the sea at Miami Beach.

IN THE warehouses Mr. Pinnix has managed in Georgia, North Carolina, and South Carolina, 46,000,000 pounds of tobacco have been sold. Farmers travel many miles to bring their crops to Mr. Pinnix's warehouse for sale. Reason is that they respect his tobacco experience and business integrity. So surely Mr. Pinnix's views are worth your respect, too.

"At every market I've ever attended," says Mr. Pinnix, "Lucky Strike has bought the ripest, mellowest tobacco offered. That's why I've smoked Luckies ever since I first became a warehouseman 20 years ago."

Mr. Pinnix's statement is borne out by sworn records which show that, among independent tobacco experts—auctioneers, buyers, and warehousemen—Luckies have over twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.

GIRL About TOWN

By MARJORIE McBRIDE

Marjorie McBride

If some bright young man will only invent a pair of trousers that will stay creased without pressing every day or two, the world will not only "beat a path to his door," but pay him big royalties and make him independent for life.

That is one of the bits of philosophy out of the experience of Munroe H. Hamilton, active State street patent attorney. He scoffs at the idea the golden age of the inventor has gone by. He sees industry perched eagerly on the edge of its chair waiting for some new contrivance that will meet a popular demand and make money. Not that he would encourage everybody to take up invention. Between five and ten per cent of all inventions make "big money" for inventor and promoter. Lots simply lie in the patent office forever. Others find backers and don't work out.

Mr. Hamilton is not one of those persons who [illegible]

Just Try This Game And Then Forget It

[illegible]

THIS Is LIFE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

This is a kind of Comminatory Psalm addressed to publishers. Not any publishers in particular—some of my best friends are publishers—but publishers in general, the genus and the species, people who make books. I am not at the moment concerned with the kind of books they make, their qualifications as to literary excellence, intellectual profundity, spiritual uplift, or even their capability of furnishing instruction, entertainment or amusement to while away the passing hour. I am not even speaking of the quality of the paper out of which these books are made, the legibility or beauty of the type, the perfection of the proof-reading, or the decorative quality of the end papers.

Robert E. Rogers

No, I am speaking of one thing and of one thing only, the size of the books and the impossibility of packing them neatly.

Shapes and Sizes Balk Packing Plans

A week ago I had to pack several boxes of books for transportation to Cambridge. There were a good many of them, a lot more than I had taken up to Rockport last June. Then I had taken only the [illegible] references books. I got them all into a soap box. But [illegible] accumulated during the summer. Some I bought. Others I made special trips to [illegible] to get. And a whole raft of the new Autumn titles were sent me from the publishers out of the goodness of their hearts that I might write or talk about them. So there were quite a lot of them, [illegible] a wooden box intended to [illegible] pounds of fresh fish packed with [illegible]. The books were [illegible] than the fish would have [illegible]

[illegible]

Oval, Circular Books Still to Come

[illegible] There was a time when [illegible]. There were a few accepted sizes into which most books fell. The sizes depended on the number of times a printed page was folded to make a "signature" for binding.

There were the big folios followed in order by the quartos, octavos, duodecimos, 16mos and so forth. You could tell from the name what the size of the page was likely to be. You could arrange your book-shelves by sizes, by the height of the page. They made a good-looking and quite regular shelf.

Why Not Standard Sizes Like Hardware?

But for these new books that publishers are putting out nowadays they must cut and fold their paper by calculus or trigonometry or something. Bookmakers seem to have gone crazy on odd sizes and shapes. Half the books you receive you cannot get on a normal shelf.

Furniture manufacturers still insist on making at least the top shelf of a bookcase for the smallest size books, but no books are made any more to fit them. And the bottom shelf is never wide enough to take care of the high books which are put out [illegible] and which you have to stack on the shelves in odd ways, sidewise, every way except the normal way of standing a book on the shelves. And as for the really eccentric books, the skyscraper books or Seven-little-dwarf books, there is nothing to be done but have a carpenter build shelves for you with every kind of graduated distance between shelves.

The United States has done great things in standardizing of sizes in hardware and machinery and ready made clothes and packages. Now it is time to expend a little serious thought on standardizing book sizes. To the publishers of America—I'm telling you!

Issue Warning On Thin Ice as 5 More Drown

Newest Victims Die At Brockton and Worcester

Police and school authorities today issued a state-wide warning [illegible]

Here Are Don'ts For Skaters

Safeguards to prevent thin ice tragedies were issued by Joseph Lee of the Boston school committee today. They were:

"Don't wear a belt with large button or buckle in front. This might prevent climbing out after a fall through the ice.

"Don't be fooled by apparently thick ice which has been eaten away underneath.

"Don't try to rescue persons who have fallen in unless you wear skates or have contact with some firm base on shore."

Women of State Band for War On Sales Tax

$1,000,000 Increase In Cost of Milk Cited in Plea

Women of Massachusetts today banded together in a great consumer movement to prevent passage of the proposed 2 per cent sales tax.

COX HEADS GROUP

Those heading the drive are Elizabeth M. Cox, director of the Consumers Institute; Mrs. Mary [illegible] Massachusetts State Grange; Mrs. Edward H. [illegible]; Mrs. William J. [illegible], Eastern Massachusetts [illegible] Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs; [illegible] of Massachusetts.

"Milk will cost Massachusetts housewives $1,000,000 more a year if the proposed 2 per cent sales tax is enacted law," declared Mrs. Cox, elected chairman for the consumer opposition.

SEE MILK BOOST

"The consumption of milk in the metropolitan Boston area is 675,000 quarts a day, 85 per cent of which is sold at retail, either at the stores or delivered to the home. With milk at 13 cents a quart, this means gross sales of over $25,000,000 a year so that the sales tax on this area alone will be $500,000 a year.

"I am assuming that milk consumption in the metropolitan area is only half that of the entire state, though less than half the population lives here. Thus, when I say that the sales tax will add $1,000,000 to the housewives' bill for milk, I am ultra conservative."

Critics Who Blame Big Business Hit by Earle

America's recession [illegible] depression.

[illegible]

"Our recession is rapidly going into a depression," Earle said, "and there's no use kidding ourselves about it. But I have tremendous respect for the resourcefulness of our great President. He's never failed us yet and he's not going to fail us now."

He drew cheers when he stated he was not at all in sympathy with some New Dealers who blame big business for America's [illegible] recession.

"I think it's a lot of nonsense," he declared. "If customers come to business, business will produce the goods to sell them. I don't think business went on any strike. I do think they had built up a big inventory, couldn't sell it and stopped buying. To say business turned down customers to discredit the administration is too ridiculous for words."

[illegible]

"You don't get that kind of thing unless there's something wrong economically. There's a fundamental flaw in our present civilized set-up. Out of 10,000,000 people in Pennsylvania, 1,200,000 are on relief. What's wrong is the machine.

"We stopped the pump-priming too soon," the Governor continued. "We've got to give everybody, big business, little business and labor, fair play. But there's no getting away from it, we're in a tailspin and we've got to get out of it before we go into a nosedive. There's only one answer to it: customers."

Win the Game Though Cards Are Poor

Pass	2 ♠	3 [illegible]	Pass
Pass	3 ♠	4 [illegible]	Dble.
Pass	Pass	Pass

North was entirely too aggressive in his repeated heart raising. Having bid two clubs freely and later raised the hearts he certainly should have passed the three spade bid to his partner for decision.

West opened the diamond Jack [illegible] the queen [illegible] with a diamond [illegible] the hope that the queen was a [illegible] card and [illegible] had started with two [illegible]

THE RIGHT PLAY

[illegible] saw that dummy's club suit was a menace and the only attack on it was through dummy's trumps so that the heart Queen could not be a third round entry to the club suit if and when established. On this basis East shrewdly returned the spade nine.

Declarer ducked, and West signaled with the eight spot. A second spade lead was ruffed in dummy, and declarer then led a low club toward his own Jack. As declarer clearly recognized it was vital to establish the club suit while maintaining hand control of the trumps and spades.

West won with the Queen and made the best return of a [illegible] spade. But declarer had already laid his plan against this attack. He ruffed with dummy's heart Queen, then led dummy's remaining heart and finessed against the Jack.

When his ten held, the hearts were picked up and the club suit was run off without difficulty

A GOOD ANALYSIS

It is true that declarer's play could have gone wrong—West might have held the heart Jack. But declarer had analyzed correctly in placing East for the greater heart length.

First he had doubled and, although this did not necessarily guarantee the Jack the assumption was that East would have doubled more readily with three hearts than with two

Moreover, West had been located with a six-card spade suit, whereas the length of East's diamond suit was not determined.

Why the Wicked Flourish

By Elsie Robinson

TOUGH—isn't it?—to see some hard-boiled Slickster sitting pretty while so many Nice, Kind People are taken for a ride

Perhaps you've felt considerably burnt over it yourself . . . wondered if goodness pays As young James G. Luts of Pittsburgh, Pa., is doing

"Why do the wicked flourish?" says he. "There's a problem I have never been able to solve. Everyone knows lots of cases of worthless, irresponsible creatures who never go to church, or say the Lord's Prayer, yet have tidy bank accounts and homes fit for a king.

"On the other hand, there is the good but poor man who goes to church every Sunday. Yet his wife is always sick—his children wear tattered clothes. It seems that God-fearing people are doomed to live in want while sinners have wealth and health and happiness.

"THERE MUST BE SOMETHING WRONG SOMEWHERE!"

Yes there's certainly something wrong—but why blame it on the Creator? The wicked flourish, not because God is an Old Meanie but—nine times out of ten—because the Righteous are softies

Our own conception of Good and Evil is often completely wrong Goodness isn't a negative performance—it's a positive one

Righteousness doesn't mean merely staying out of jail. To the contrary it means WADING INTO LIFE WITH ALL THE WALLOP YOU POSSESS.

And when it comes to wading and walloping, the wicked, all too often, have the good backed off the boards.

Mind you I'm casting no aspersions on the Truly Good . . . those brave, aggressive citizens who make a flaming adventure of fine living, and who are always to be found in the front line trenches of Holiness.

Rather I am referring to those rocking chair saints who think God should come across just because they can recite the 23rd Psalm and don't gamble I have yet to see this brand of goodness blessed

As the old slogan says—"IT IS NOT ENOUGH TO BE GOOD . . . YOU MUST BE GOOD FOR SOMETHING." Any stupid, lazy, cowardly heel can LOOK good, but it takes gobs of gumption to BE actually righteous. Examine the record of all REAL saints and you'll find plenty of spiritual brass-knuckles

The wicked flourish, not because God has a sneaking liking for them, but because THEY ARE GO-GETTERS. Life needs go-getters and rewards them.

Man was created to be the greatest go-getter of all. He was intended to think definitely, plan positively, act vigorously And, it is both strange and sad, but the wicked frequently fulfil this admonition far better than the Godly.

In their warped and wanton way, such 16-cylinder sinners come nearer to obeying the Law of Life than the sanctimonious Do-Nothings.

They will undoubtedly Get Theirs, some day, but at present they're apt to be making 12 per cent on most investments.

FAITH and FORCE—these qualities lie behind all achievement. They are psychic dynamite, and they work as energetically for the sinner as the saint.

If good people had a tenth as much faith in themselves and their principles as the bad people have, we'd have Paradise pronto. But again the sinner monopolizes the fireworks and leaves the saint to his Psalms and self-pity.

God doesn't desert the righteous. They desert themselves—and Him.

God has given the good exactly the same makings for an abundant life which he has given the wicked—BUT THE WICKED USE THEIR MAKINGS AND THE GOOD DON'T.

They, all too often, go on relief instead.

Winter Sports Point Way to Good Health

By IDA JEAN KAIN

WITH the warm sun and balmy breezes to lure us to the beach, tennis court and golf course, summer has always produced its share of outdoor women.

In the winter time it has been a great temptation to snuggle up to a fire and get our exercise by twirling a radio dial or flipping a magazine page.

But not this year! Turn on the radio, and the voice of adventure beguiles us with news of the snow trails. Flip a magazine page, and what do you see? A snow queen vying with the bathing beauty in rotogravure!

It is smart to be a winter sport and the great majority who do not sally south for the winter are turning into a race of Vikings who skate and ski as if they had all been born in Norway where skates are as common as shoes.

BEAUTY INSURANCE

This new snow cult is already paying its dividends in health and beauty. One efficient secretary whose accurate shorthand is a marvel but whose looks never stopped a second glance, is getting known as the girl with the gorgeous figure, since she took up skating.

I know a harassed mathematics teacher who, usually at this time of the year, is about ready for a quiet sanitarium. But this winter she began spending her week-ends in the snow country and she is as radiantly healthy as one of her own high school freshmen

Hours on the ski-runs have done their work and she is more than equal to her task of instilling math into the disinterested freshman mind.

There is a great difference in well being as the result of the use to which we put energy. Sitting around by the fire lets the fat settle on those parts of the body you'd rather it wouldn't

You feel colder when you go out, more sluggish when you stay in, and by spring you'll be prime for the old reliable sulphur and molasses

SNOW AIDS HEALTH

But why stay indoors? Cold is good for you when brisk action stirs up the circulation

In the large cities ski trains leave every week-end for nearby resorts where you can master a new sport and share amusement and exercise with a jubilant crowd For some of you opportunities for these recreations are practically in your back yard

You can always find a frozen pond. All you need is a pair of skates and, at first, a little determination. You will soon enjoy yourself so much you will wonder why you haven't been skating for years

And here are a few hints that may be useful. Dress warmly and keep moving

Breathe deeply, and you won't feel the cold so much. Be sure that your heavy shoes and woolen stockings are long enough so that your blood can circulate freely and carry warmth to your toes.

Beware of frostbite at extreme temperatures and apply snow directly to the affected part at first hint of freezing

See you on the next hill.

Send for the "Business Girl's Daily Half Dozen," and "Hips, Hips-Away." Enclose a large, adequately stamped envelope for these leaflets.

Helpful Hints

TO WARM over biscuits, muffins, or rolls place them in a pan and place the pan in another pan with hot water, and put in oven for a few minutes. This will keep them soft.

ONE CUP medium white sauce seasoned with one tablespoon prepared mustard and chopped parsley makes a grand sauce for fish. Shredded shrimp or anchovy paste may also be added, if desired.

TO TAKE grease stains off wall paper mix Fullers earth with enough benzine to make a stiff paste. Spread it over the spot and let it stay on overnight. Brush off with a soft brush and be careful of fire

A COAT of shellac on the inside of the new metal waste baskets will make the basket easier to clean.

Stunning Simplicity

EXTRA!
Many knit dresses are not kind to curves—except curves that deserve
to be exploited.
This one may be worn with impunity
by the girls who still eat pie.

We simply can't wait to get our knitting needles into this. This smartly simple, expensive looking knit dress is the type that can appear with perfect poise in any company. Imagine it in white, with a wide-brimmed rough straw hat, at tea on a Palm Beach patio Or, to be more practical, at a June garden party in New England. On the other hand it would be a great help, in dusky rose or soft, muted blue, in bearing up under the last month in your old fur coat. A perfect choice, too, for luncheon in town, spectator sporting, or visiting your snooty Aunt Harriet, whose eagle eye approves only of well-bred clothes

The lovely lines, aided by the clever ribbing, are unbroken from the chic, high neck line to the slightly flaring hem, as you will observe. The dressmaker touches of the lacy pattern makes it feminine, too And we are going clinging-vine this season, girls—but definitely!

If you get busy right now, you can whip this up in no time. Write to Annice Brink, Fashion Editor of the Boston Evening American, for complete knitting directions for this lovely frock. Enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Married Comrades

DICKY VENTS HIS ANGER

CHAPTER 535

I CAUGHT back a panic-stricken exclamation as Dicky interrupted Katie's passionate protest against leaving her supper dishes unwashed.

There is only one person in the household who speaks to Katie in that fashion; that is my mother-in-law.

Although Katie usually keeps her temper in check because of the advanced age and frailty of Dicky's mother, there has been several occasions when I have ridden the whirlwind of Katie's tempestuous tantrums, condoned only because of her long, faithful service and because of my recognition of the great provocation she had received from my husband's mother

But how would she react to this unexpected sternness on Dickey's part, Dicky, who leaves every detail of household management to me and whose general method of addressing her holds a jocular note?

VENT FOR RANCOR

I guessed what lay behind his truculence. He knew as well as I did that Katie did not mean to be insolent to me; that she was simply uttering an involuntary cry of protest against being shut out from the exciting melodrama in which she had just played an heroic role.

But he was taking out on hapless Katie the rancor which Allen Drake's attitude toward me had aroused in him.

In his masculine code, he could not betray that jealous anger by outward irritation toward either the brilliant operative or myself But it had to find a vent, and Katie's unmeant insolence had given him the opportunity

I wondered for an instant whether he might not be counting upon Katie's probable resentment of his rebuke and its consequences of unpleasantness to me But I dismissed the conjecture as unworthy Dicky has a temper and is jealous but he is never mean.

I was watching Katie narrowly during my husband's tirade and afterward. I think we all expected her to explode into a tantrum.

But beneath her grafted independent Americanism lurks the ingrained alien peasant awe of the man of the house, and after her first involuntary angry glare at Dicky, she turned without a word and scuttled back to her improvised kitchenette

But there was a forlorn, disconsolate droop to her shoulders which aroused a feeling of pity in me. After all, I told myself, if it had not been for Katie's heroism, this safe colloquy around the fire would not have been possible.

Harry Underwood, certainly, and, in all probability, Lillian and myself, would now be lying dead or seriously wounded at the hands of the murderous marauder who had crept through the cordon of guards and come over the roof to the balcony above the kitchen.

LILLIAN TO RESCUE

Without flaunting defiance of Dicky before Allen Drake, something unthinkable under the circumstances, I could do nothing to comfort my disconsolate housekeeper

But Lillian had no such inhibition, and, besides, it was her husband whom Katie had helped save from murderous assault. I was not surprised, therefore, to see her rise abruptly from her chair, and to hear her voice say clearly

"Wait a second Katie! I'll help you clear up."

Dicky uttered a low-toned word of exasperated protest, which did him no good whatever; for Lillian with no indication that she even had heard him, went swiftly to Katie's side and slapped her hand upon the woman's shoulder, saying "Cheer up, Katie, I'll tell you what's up," which was perfectly audible to the rest of us.

Drink Water

WATER drinkers usually have good skins. Water helps to award off constipation, aids digestion and stimulates the work of the skin as an eliminating organ

Take a glass of cold water with a little lemon juice added when you get up in the morning. During the day have four glasses, take one more before going to bed. Women who have sallow skins should climb up on the water wagon. They also need tomato and orange juice and lettuce.

Stock Up on Jokes

HE—"I'm so shy I have to say it quick———"

SHE—"I wish I were not so awfully shy———"

JUDY and Will are getting along famously—as is to be expected when there are witty, teasing jokes and toasts to pave the way.

The funny part is they—like the rest of us really are a little shy. But they've found it doesn't matter if you always have a store of jokes and toasts on the tip of your tongue.

Yes, the party crowd's with you if you can rise and say with a twinkle: "Here's to love the only fire against which there is no insurance"

You show you're poised and gracious, too if you can give a fitting toast at formal affairs This one's for a wedding

"May your joys be as deep as the ocean, your cares as light as its spray."

If you're toasted, you neither rise nor drink; if you toast, you do both.

And everywhere a joke is welcome. Here's one you can get off easily: "Today in a trolley a man rose and offered a woman a seat She fainted. When she recovered, she thanked him. He fainted"

Advice for Wife When Husband Strays

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Some pundit supposed to know all the secrets of the human heart (the masculine heart, of course; we don't count) once divulged a secret

I can't recall for the moment whether the speaker was Byron, Casanova, Old King Solomon or just some modern crooner in need of a [illegible] eration. But [illegible] had discovered a truth [illegible]

THE BEST METHOD

Alas these unchic and dingy sirens pretend to be anything [illegible] to please. Perhaps they too are escaping monotony at home, as well as the man.

But there is one thing for the tearful wife to remember and that is that men are almost as much creatures of habit as cats.

Unless a man has gone absolutely berserk over a "grande passion" for some woman he'll have his lucid interval when he'll consider if it's really worth while.

He'll consider the disruption of the home the cold criticism of his children the amused smiles of friends the attitude of his boss and the dislocation of all his habits.

The a la carte excursion is relished by the majority but the sensible wife knows how to look the other way

Timely Tips for Charm

QUESTION. I wonder if you can help me? Mine is not exactly a beauty problem—rather one of family harmony. My husband is terribly hard to suit in the matter of soap. While I have found a brand that is kind to my hands and satisfactory in every way, he is still mumbling about one with a real lather—by which he means a super-lather. After experimenting with a dozen soaps, I am appealing to you for a suggestion.

MRS. J. A. D., Belmont.

ANSWER: Indeed I can. In fact, I have told a number of men about a new super-fatted soap that is being put out by a famous house, and they are my friends for life. This rich, gentle soap lathers like mad in the hardest water, and the very name of the manufacturer who made smelling salts and eau de cologne for our grandmothers is a guarantee of its quality If you will call me at Liberty 4000 or drop me a note, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope, to the Boston American, I shall be delighted to let you in on it.

ARLINE GOULD

DANDRUFF appears on dry and oily scalps. It is caused by a fungus growth, not unlike yeast. The best way to combat it is to brush the hair vigorously, apply hot mineral oil to the scalp, let it stay on all night, and shampoo hair next day with melted soap.

This treatment should be given once a week

HOW do you look when you mount stairs? Or don't you know? Hold the body—erect and tall, don't bend Place the hands on the hips, fingers turned toward the back. Go from step to step on tip toes. This is an excellent exercise to limber the joints and make one graceful.

The Colonel called time. The man snapped to his feet in one bronze motion. The steer lumbered up, panicky, bewildered.

"But—I don't know—burying him in the sand that way—"

[illegible] "It does seem brutal, Miss Ferris."

[illegible] "I don't see that it's any worse than cutting their heads off with an ax. After all, it was good riding. And you don't have to watch it."

"If he knows a horse, he ought to know better than to drive drunk. You might ride a flat-race drunk but harness takes brains."

[illegible] stiffened. "Harness! [illegible] you mean to say you put your harness racing against real racing? When I see a race, I want to know what the horse can do—not some smart Yankee driver. Southern horses run on their own heart and speed, not what some tradesmen—"

"And northern bred horses beat 'em." [illegible]

"Southern horses are aristocrats!"

"They think they're aristocrats—till the real thing comes along."

The games were over. American games that Americans had made out of their work, their daily lives. Tomorrow they would go back to play the wheat game, the cattle game, the sewing game. But now—

HARMONY REIGNS

Golden shafts of sunlight shot through the under-water green beneath the oaks. The shadows lengthened.

Around the plank bar, tongues were loose. At first the small ranchers had been inclined to stick to their kind. [illegible] were discovering good sense in Jase Cryder. Jase Cryder had had a drink with [illegible] Benbow from the Montgomery ranch.

Tolliver Parsons urged a lobby at Sacramento. James Montgomery [illegible]

[illegible]

"More to it than that, James. You can recollect when we loaded wheat at Marysville for Liverpool. Been a long time since we did that. Now they blockin' the Sacramento River."

"And when the Sacramento's gone, we'll have to ship short-haul by the S and W. You know what that's going to mean, if they get us by the throat."

THE LAWYER'S VIEW

"Colonel!" the S and W attorney [illegible]

"I beg yo' pardon, sir! You'll have whiskey with me—show there's no hard feelin's. Yo health, sir!"

[illegible] "As a member of the bar, sir, you'll agree with me when I say I put my faith in the courts. There's already a decision against the hydraulickers."

"It won't stand!" Tolliver Parsons growled. "You know that."

"And Colonel," one of the small ranchers put in, "seems like them fellers didn't care for no decision. They're throwin' slickens at us worse'n ever. I just can't stand another season like last." His mouth set. "An' I don't aim to."

James Montgomery [illegible]

"If my father had waited for the law to protect him in the 'fifties I wouldn't be here today. I was born in Massachusetts—I believe in law. But you've got to meet force with force. Time comes when there's a lot of law in the muzzle end of a rifle."

JARED SPEAKS

[illegible]

"Why—I don't stand on the question one way or another. I don't believe, in the long run, mining can be let to ruin the country the way it seems to be doing. Still—where there's gold, men are going to get it. We might put in dams to impound the slickens."

[illegible]

Jared felt Serena's hand tighten on his arm. [illegible]

[illegible] "Mr. Hatch, we haven't heard a word from you."

[illegible] "Why, I guess [illegible] know where I stand. I agree with Parsons that we need [illegible] I know we need [illegible] and we'll have them. We [illegible] fight if we've got to, but I don't believe it'll come to anything as bad as that.

"What we've got right now, you fellows have heard me say it a hundred times—is the greatest fruit country in the world. Now go ahead and laugh!"

One or two did, but it was tolerant, kindly laughter. You couldn't help liking Hatch, with his [illegible] acres of pears and his gospel preached eternally of California fruit.

Beauty Hints

[illegible]

IF YOU would have eye-lashes [illegible] they should go.

ONE false note and the harmony of appearance crashes into a discord. Lipstick awry, stockings with zizzy seams, hat at the wrong tilt, shoulder bands of the slip revealed, shoes that need new taps, all these are very bad.

Besides these small errors, there are other matters to be kept in mind. It is well to know that the shape of the face is affected for better or worse by the cut of the neckline of the frock, that cross lines of the robe make one look shorter, while long ones contribute toward an appearance of slenderness.

An understanding of line and an appreciation of beautiful colors are necessary for the development of the dress sense. Some women never get the "hang" of them. They seek out the ugliest dress in the shop. Others gravitate toward the lovely model that "looks like them," so they merit a reputation for smartness of attire.

They know that soft fabrics are more flattering than those of shining surfaces, that the brimmed hat is more kindly to a face that shows the wear and tear of time than the back tilted affair or the bonnet of page boy size. They also realize that the colors they could wear in their young days don't fill the bill after one gets along in years.

Curb Fear!

NAGGING thoughts and emotions that have to do with fear, jealousy or envy cast their shadows upon the face. They are like clouds that turn a summer landscape gray.

Happiness is the greatest of all beautifiers. Look at the bride as she walks down the aisle. Every girl looks lovely on her wedding day.

Brooding discontent and worry have a more devastating effect upon the human face than all the mean tricks of Father Time. They bring premature wrinkles. They sap vitality, have a dreadful effect upon the health. Mind and body are a single unit; if the mind is sick, the body is not in normal condition.

Super Speed In Air Likely

500-Mile-an-Hour Rate Predicted

By G. B. LAL

International News Service Science Editor

(Copyright 1938)

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (INS)—Airplanes flying at a speed of 500 miles per hour, as part of England's new war machine as well as for civil aviation, are foreseen by Prof. G. T. R. Hill, noted British engineer, it was disclosed here today.

Dr. Hill, professor of engineering at the University of London, revealed through science progress of London the results of latest investigations about airplane designing.

"The key principle in airplane designing is to understand what is known as 'air resistance' and its effects on the airplane speeds," said Dr. Hill.

The British scientists are trying to model planes with a minimum of air resistance.

AUSTEN LAKE

Never a Dull Moment, Always in Action

AUSTEN LAKE

MR. MARCUS T-BONE CLARK IS IN our town today. His card reads, "M. T. Clark, Eastern representative," though neglects to state what he represents in the East. But Mr. Clark is an old acquaintance whom I met in Florida some years ago when he was senior partner in the firm of Clark Bros., Inc., Walkathon Dance Enterprises, whose slogan was, "Never a dull moment in a Clark production—always in action".

The firm, said Mr. T-bone Clark, had been temporarily dissolved because his junior partner, Mr. Fisty Clark, is at present residing under Federal glass at Atlanta for an indiscretion which he finds too painful to recite.

"Suffice it to say," said Mr. T-bone, "that it was due to a miscarriage of justice. My brother did not realize that the car he was driving had been stolen. It was, I assure you, most circumstantial."

"What are [illegible] athon dancing [illegible]

"O yes," said Mr. Clark, "I am in action. I am in beer now. But I am on my way to better things. I am acquiring a little stake with which to enter the Bingo business near Miami."

[illegible]

"No," said Mr. Clark, "the profession was pretty much repealed before the latest slump. The Southern Bible societies became obnoxious and caused the dance proprietors to get pinched on one pretext or another, the noise nuisance, the fire hazard, the labor laws.

"One grows tired getting pinched," said Mr. Clark, "especially in the Southern towns where the jail facilities are seldom modern and one has to share cells with some very itchy characters. The question of bail too, is always embarrassing. So I quit the business. But next year my dream will come true and I am opening a Bingo establishment in a spot near Miami where my career will not be repealed out from in front of me just as I am growing into it."

The Walkathon Scene

WHAT BECAME OF YOUR TROUP OF Walkathoners?" I asked Mr. Clark, who had employed some thirty girls and boys at the height of his career.

"They dispersed," said he, wistfully, "a few of the more talented went into roller skating derbies or other tests of strength and endurance. But the rest . . ."

(Mr. Clark made twiddling motions with his fingers.)

"I think you will agree," said he, "that I was most humane with my workers. I never produced a walkathon without having my own hospital ward adjoining where a nurse took charge of the overwrought dancers and arranged them head down on slanting cots, or broke ammonia crackers under their nostrils before sending them back to the floor."

The social and physical [illegible] confessed Mr. Clark [illegible] of refined entertainment. There were [illegible] the premises [illegible] characters [illegible] ting rude remarks at the dancers and people who [illegible] slumming [illegible]

The floor around the dance arena was [illegible] of litter that such crowds [illegible] and a weary and red-eyed [illegible] having occasional bursts of [illegible]. And as the center of this scene a dozen or more couples [illegible] of exhaustion shuffled or [illegible] in a competition to keep awake and [illegible]

A Fascinating Business

"I AND MY BROTHER," SAID MR. CLARK, "always did our best to delouse the business of uncouth types and I frequently admonished the audience that this was an exhibition of skill and grace and that therefore all present must refrain from vulgar comment—and throwing objects at the performers."

"Your brother Fisty, must have been a handy helper," I said.

"Yes," said Mr. Clark, "though he lacked social polish and the mind for business detail, he was excellent at throwing drunks into the alley. But then, he was not entirely consistent in alcoholic matters and I was sometimes moved to wonder whether Fisty, at the top of his delirium, was not more pestiferous than the drunks."

"It must have been a fascinating business," I said. Mr. Clark nodded for a moment, saying nothing as he seemed to struggle with emotion.

"It was once very profitable," he said finally, "but it had its drawbacks, such as when some temperamentally unfitted girl would go to clawing her partner for sheer hatred of having looked at the same face for several weeks. Then later, of course, there was that wretched matter of the sheriffs and shortage of funds."

What happened to that little brother and sister team, Danny and Martha Brockel?" I asked, referring to the prize winners of his 1934 St. Petersburg contest. They had been sallow, underbred children with a ripple of ribs under their cotton jerseys and Martha had a hard, bass cough like the bark of a sealion.

"If I recollect," said Mr. Clark, cogitating, "that was one of the girls who lacked the robust strength requisite to the walkathon business. I believe she went to a government lung camp. Our business was much handicapped by inferior types."

Mr. Clark's face [illegible] faintly. It was a thick face resembling that of a sheep. He looked at his watch.

"I fear," said he, "that I must plug some beer for my firm. But I trust next year when my dream comes true, you will be my guest in Florida, where I can clap my hands and say, 'waiters, many waiters, bring champagne for the ladies and gentleman!' and everybody will say 'That is Bingo Clark, the famous man about Miami'."

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—"Lar[illegible] Lou Gehrig, [illegible] first baseman of the New York Yankees, [illegible] today rejected [illegible] Owner Jake Ruppert's offer of $36,000 again this year and demanding an increase of 15 per cent, [illegible] $40,000.

"I told the colonel how much I wanted. He said the club couldn't afford it and wouldn't pay it. That's how matters stand and it's Ruppert's next move," said Lou. "I will stay right here if they don't pay me what I want, and that isn't hokum."

Louis Thesz, world heavyweight wrestling champion, has declared war on all Irish wrestlers.

"I've already disposed of one Irishman," Thesz wrote Promoter Paul Bowser. "I fairly crushed Dan O'Mahony. He lasted but 15 minutes against me. Well, I'm going to do an even better job on Casey.

"I understand Casey's three brothers are heading for America. Well, when I finish with Steve it will be a lesson for his brothers and all other Irishmen to stay over in their own country where they belong."

"Steve certainly is taking this match seriously," said Jack Albright, his manager. "I've never [illegible] him work so hard."

He told his friends in Ireland he was coming to America to win the world championship, and he wants to make good his word.

Connolly, Nicholson Play First Game In Chi Spangles

By BILL GRIMES

With each club using minor league replacements, due to injured regulars, Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks will wind up their third home and home series of the season tonight at the Garden.

Bruins have "Dit" Clapper and Ray Getliffe on the hospital list, while the Hawks will be obliged to carry on without "Mush" March, Art Wiebe and Hal Jackson and [illegible] Jack Sh[illegible] sparingly.

CRAWFORD A HUSKY

In order to have his charges at war strength, Manager Art Ross recalled Mel Hill and Jack Crawford from Providence.

Hill gave a fine account of himself in Chicago Sunday night playing at right wing with Roy Goldsworthy at center and Art Jackson at left wing. He topped the entire Bruin club by making a pair of goals.

Crawford will be assigned to work on the [illegible] defense with Jack Portland.

Husky, Tech Sixes Battle Saturday

Northeastern's varsity hockey game with M. I. T., originally scheduled for Thursday at the Arena, will be played Saturday night instead.

The Huskies still are trying to arrange a suitable date on which to play off the game with New Hampshire, which was postponed last Saturday because there was soft ice at Durham, N. H.

The game would count in the New England Intercollegiate League ratings, so Northeastern is anxious to arrange the contest.

B. U. Six Meets B. C. Tonight

The first of the crucial three-game series between the Boston College and Boston University hockey sextets will be waged at the Boston Arena tonight.

Both sextets will be at full strength for the meeting which will have so much to say with determining the championship of the New England Interscholastic Hockey League.

The Eagles have finally hit their stride, taking the last three games in that order. Captain Joe Hartigan, injured in the St. Anselms game on last Thursday night, will be fully recovered to take over his pivot post on the first line in tonight's tilt.

He will team up with Jim Davis and Tom Sharkey on the wings, Joe Powers and Tom O'Callaghan on the defense and Mario Roscio in the cage.

The formidable Terrier first triumvirate of Caravelli, Gerry Dearosiers, former Cambridge Latin schoolboy star, and Albie Woodward. [illegible] "Red" Hoard and "Chubby" Chandler will team up on the defense in front of Bob Colburn in the Terrier cage.

The Tufts team plays host to Colby this evening in its first home basketball game since the mid-year recess.

Coach Arthur Cochran anticipates a not too difficult victory but is by no means optimistic because of the defeat the Jumbos suffered at the hands of New Hampshire University last Wednesday.

Coach Arthur Cochran of Tufts stated that Co-Captain Albie Galuszka who suffered a leg injury last Friday night will not play against the Mules. Galuszka's berth will be filled by Sophomore Phil Varney.

With Varney filling in for the Jumbo co-leader, Freddie Jenkins, sophomore, returns to the starting lineup at forward.

FROZEN FACTS

Four New Faces At Garden Tonight | Crawford Tested By B's Last Year

By BILL GRIMES

ON THEIR TWO PREVIOUS VISITS here, Chicago Black Hawks did not prove a howling success as a box office attraction. To be perfectly truthful, the Hawks-Bruin games were the poorest attended of the season

BILL GRIMES

Tonight, there will be four new players in action at Walter E. Brown's North Station rink. New faces appeal to sport fans, and in all probability a new high will be established this evening.

Manager Art Ross will offer Mel Hill and Jack Crawford for the approval of Bruin fans. Hill was "up" earlier in the season but Crawford is making his debut of the 1937-38 N. H. L. campaign.

Hill is a right wing and played most of his hockey around Sudbury, Ont. before turning pro last fall. He was with the Saskatoon Wesleys four years ago and then migrated East to join the Sudbury Wolves with whom he played during the 1934-35 season.

For the past two years he has been with the Frood Tigers. He's 23 years old, weighs 175 and stands 5 feet 10 inches.

After a trial with the Bruins a year ago last fall, Crawford returned to the amateurs and spent the season with the Lakeshore Mines. He's a husky 21 years old who packs around 190 pounds and is an inch short of six feet.

[illegible]

EDDIE GERARD, who was a [illegible] exceptional [illegible] hockey talent, stated [illegible] before he died that Sprague Cleghorn was the best [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] Montreal, and is rated as one of the most strenuous defense [illegible] in the amateur ranks. [illegible] Maple Leafs of the Montreal Senior Group are trying to wean The Hammer from Valleyfield of the Provincial League. [illegible] Reeves, who was unable to [illegible] has 18 points to his credit with Valleyfield. [illegible] Eddie Powers Jr., who was declared ineligible by [illegible] [illegible] has been reinstated by Pres. Hanser. [illegible]

[illegible] Owen Sound [illegible] And so, by the way, did Cooney Weiland, but apparently the Owen Sound fans have lost track of [illegible] Brown, who is now a resident of Boston. [illegible] Detroit Red Wings scored exactly one quarter as many goals against Americans and Canadiens last week as they did in their previous 33 games. [illegible] that the Red Wings [illegible] snapped out of their scoring slump against the [illegible]?

The Mysterious 'Mr. O'Sullivan'

AFTER a THOROUGH investigation the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association suspended Rene and Marcel LeCavelier and Roger Forget for playing with the Lafontaine club in Boston against the Olympics under assumed names.

The powers that be also demanded that A. E. Saucier and Rene Leveille, directors of the Lafontaine club, sever their connections with the team, which, however, was allowed to play out its schedule in the Provincial League.

Years ago, it was a common practise on the part of Canadian amateur clubs to bring "ringers" here and play them under assumed names.

The Hochalaga Club from Montreal came here to play the old Arena H. C. and brought with it a great right winger who played under the name of O'Sullivan.

O'Sullivan made such a favorable impression that steps were taken to bring him here the next season. Finally, a very snappy young man reported to Fred Rocque, coach of the Arena team, and said his name was O'Sullivan.

He proved to be a very clever hockey player but he was not the O'Sullivan who played for Hochelaga, for the latter was a right hand shot.

The O'Sullivan who turned up here was Paul, and upon his recommendation his brother, Ed, came to Boston, but still Rocque had not obtained the much sought after "O'Sullivan."

Years afterward "O'Sullivan" came here with the Berlin, N. H. team, and it was not until then that we learned his name was McLaughlin.

Drillon Refuses to Back Check

PLAYING THREE GAMES in two days the Valleyfield squad was torn to a frazzle when it departed for home . . . The Canadians stopped off for an exhibition game at Springfield on their way down from Canada and after losing to the Olympics Sunday afternoon at the Arena, jumped down to Providence that night and beat the Rhode Island Scarlets, 12 to 2 . . . Cooney Weiland had a close call from serious injury in Toronto. He received a few cuts but got off easy compared to what happened to Bill Finlayson, who was driving him, and Reg McIlwain, operator of the other car. They were all sent to St. Mike's Hospital for treatment . . . Since the start of the season, "Red" Beattie, Ray Getliffe and Cooney Weiland have been treated at St. Mike's . . .

Percy Nicklin, who, although rated with the best amateurs in Canada some years ago, never turned professional, is coaching two clubs in Harringay, England. Except when his clubs oppose each other, Nicklin sits on the bench but when his teams are the entire attraction, he keeps away from the rink and allows the captains to run the clubs . . . Bill Cook made his debut in the International American League recently. Bill is coaching the Cleveland Barons. He failed to score but he did manage to pick up a major penalty . . . A couple of weeks ago, the Jackson-Apps-Drillon line of the Maple Leafs were being referred to by their home town scribes as the "Dynamite Line," because they blew up quicker and better than any of the other trios . . . Although he is leading the league in scoring, "Lefty" Drillon is not registering any too favorably with Connie Smythe because he refuses to do any back checking . . .

Vic Ripley, formerly of the Bruins, is now playing for the Spokane Clippers of the Pacific Coast League . . . And Irving Frew, who was the pet hate of the Canadian-American League a few seasons back, has been purchased by Guy Patrick for the Vancouver Lions . . . Upon their return from Toronto last Friday, the Canucks yelled murder over the refereeing of Babe Dye and Clarence Campbell for allowing the Maple Leafs to horse them around. The Canucks have never cottoned to heavy body checking but at least they should have entertained a slight suspicion that they were going to get the "business" after beating the Leafs 6 to 1, in Montreal on Smythe's birthday.

Walter O'Hara Willing To 'Vacate' at 'Gansett

Stockholders Meet Tomorrow for Vote On Issue

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 8.—Walter E. O'Hara today declared he was willing to "vacate" his position as general manager and president of Narragansett Park for the present year, but that he would "not resign."

O'Hara declared the reports that he was willing to "resign" were a distortion of the fact.

"I said," declared O'Hara, "I was willing to vacate my position for the present year.

"James E. Dooley and Raymond J. McMahon have asked me to resign at meetings of the board of directors, knowing I have a $300,000 contract with the Narragansett Racing Association which would be cancelled if I resigned."

Legal minds declared that if O'Hara were to merely vacate his positions at Narragansett Park he would protect his contract rights and again be in position to move in as head of Narragansett Park in the event Governor Robert E. Quinn is defeated at the fall election.

It was pointed out that O'Hara would be surrendering what contractual claims he has against Narragansett Park if he were to resign.

MEETING TOMORROW

Meanwhile the Second Battle of Narragansett Park is set for a climax tomorrow afternoon at the swanky clubhouse at Pawtucket, R. I.

James E. Dooley, vice president of Narragansett Park, who has been leading the fight against O'Hara, says he has close to [illegible] proxies and that O'Hara will be ousted as general manager and president at tomorrow's meeting.

It is not necessary to have [illegible] to [illegible] at tomorrow's meeting.

Dooley is being supported by [illegible] McMahon [illegible] for Narragansett Park and by Morgan [illegible] of New York [illegible] New York holders of Narragansett Park stock.

O'Hara made a last minute call [illegible] Many of the small stockholders [illegible] have not given either side [illegible] their proxies.

It is possible that many of these small stockholders are planning to take in the meeting tomorrow afternoon and [illegible] their own [illegible].

O'HARA IN CHARGE

O'Hara [illegible] Narragansett Park with [illegible] restrictions recently placed on his authority by the directors [illegible] of the [illegible] is in regard to signing of checks. [illegible] O'Hara must now sign all checks issued by the track.

If the Dooley-McMahon-Beiment group wins out, Dooley will act as president until the annual meeting, which takes place in June. The new group would go ahead with their application for racing dates, which under the Rhode Island law must be made before February 1[illegible].

If O'Hara is ousted he is almost certain to start legal proceedings against Narragansett Park under his present contract.

The atmosphere will be a la Boston at the Second Battle of Narragansett, but Mayor John McCoy may send a few of his policemen over to the track tomorrow to give the place some of the color it attained during the First Battle of Narragansett last fall.

Governor Quinn, in a last-minute statement, reiterated his stand against Narragansett Park as long as O'Hara is connected with the track.

Kaplan Looks For Title Bout

[illegible]

1. To run his unbeaten string as a professional to 30 straight fights.
2. To carry off the New England lightweight championship, now held by Melody. 3. To move toward a title bout for the world crown, with Lou Ambers, Herkimer Hurricane.

KAPLAN FAVORITE

Rip Valenti, matchmaker of the Goodwin A. C., continues to carry on negotiations with Ambers management. Rip feels he might get word today that Ambers has agreed to come to Boston to fight the winner of tomorrow night's feature.

Kaplan fairly to the top in the lightweight section of [illegible] is likely to step from his corner a slight favorite to upset the Charlestown comet.

Melody is reported to be as fast, hitting as hard and in as good condition as ever.

Roy Kelley gets a chance to redeem himself in the eight-round semifinal with Lou Poster, New York.

Kelley and Poster put on a Pier 10 brawl in a previous meeting, Kelley going down no less than six times in the final two rounds to lose a wide margin built up in the early heats.

Sammy Garcia, Quincy, returns to local warfare in a six with Salvatore Bartolo, East Boston. Abe Denner, West End, meets George Harper, New York, in another six, while Joe Glasgow, Quincy, tackles Jimmy O'Boyne, Boston, in the third six-round preliminary.

Norwood Novice Kayo Winner

The Irish-American A. A. held [illegible]

One bout went by default. A [illegible]

The novice classes afforded the highlights of the night, with the [illegible] between [illegible] of Gardner and [illegible] of Natick [illegible] down the house.

The pair stood and slugged toe-to-toe, with the former winning the decision in three rounds.

John Amber, Norwood 160-pound class novice, KO'd Chet Wunschel, Fisherville, in the first round of the final, after previously sending Dennis Cronin of [illegible] to the rear and winning by decision over Joseph Rugito, of Worcester in an earlier go.

Amber's work was by far the most impressive individual performance of the night. The bouts:

135 Pound Novice Class—Emile Poirier, Gardner, beat [illegible], Natick.
160 Pound Novice Class—John Amber, Norwood, knocked out Chet Wunschel, Fisherville, first round.
135 Pound Open Class—Dominic [illegible], Providence, beat Arthur Morris, Boston.
147 Pound Open Class—Sylvio LeFeele, Worcester, beat [illegible] Bennett, South Boston.
160 Pound Open Class—Edward Sumners, Roxbury, won by default over Louis Vitale, Boston.
Heavyweight Class—John Burns, Roxbury, knocked out Antone Perry, Fall River, first round.

Triple Feature On Arena Card

A triple feature will headline the bill at the Boston Arena tomorrow night.

In one bout, Paul Adams will risk his light heavyweight title against Art O'Mahoney of Ireland. Adams faces a difficult task when he tangles with the pride of the Emerald Isle and many experts are of the opinion that the crown will change hands.

Seelie Samara, colored claimant to the world's heavyweight title, tackles Jack Lutze of California. Lutz was the idol of the coast wrestling fans and is reported to be the best of the current group.

The windup of the triple bill will be a free-for-all melee between Chippewa Charlie, Ike Goldberg, Dutch Schmidt and Ted Germaine. Bill Dolan will referee the battle royal.

Other bouts include Mike Casey vs. Ted Germaine; Bruno Garibaldi vs. Tony Papalino and Sandy McDonald vs. Pat Schaffer.

Royal Mail Pointed For Aintree Classic

NEWMARKET, Eng., Feb. 8—Royal Mail, 1937 Grand National winner, made light of his 175-pound burden when he made a successful return to racing in winning the two-mile Astor Handicap Steeplechase at Birmingham recently.

Royal Mail never looked better. He will be given many easy races by his trainer, Ivor Anthony, and in that way be made fighting fit to again take on all comers in the Grand National at Aintree next month.

Crisler Mentioned As Michigan Coach

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 8 (AP)—Unconfirmed reports persisted on the University of Michigan campus today that a successor to Harry Kipke, dismissed two months ago as head football coach had been appointed and awaited only approval by the board of regents.

President Alexander G. Ruthven withheld comment but said that an announcement would be made "at the proper time." Topping the list of candidates in campus discussions were Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler of Princeton, Lieut. Tom Hamilton, former Navy coach, and Dick Harlow of Harvard.

Ohio Grid Aces to Play With All-Stars

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 8 — Ralph Wolf, center selection for last New Year's Day East-West game, and Jim McDonald, backfield ace, both members of the Ohio State football team last season, have signified their intention of playing in the annual All-Star football game at Chicago next summer.

The players, co-captains of the 1937 Buckeyes, have received offers to play from Arch Ward, Chicago promoter of the event.

Umpire Berth Appeals to Pipgras

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 8 [illegible] for the New York Yankees [illegible] in the majors.

"I've had my share of thrills during my years of service with the Yankees and the Boston Red Sox, but I get just as much kick out of baseball in the umpire ranks," declared the veteran pitcher whose ambition now is to break into the big leagues again —this time as an umpire.

"You don't get any newspaper headlines," he remarked, "but it's great work nevertheless."

[illegible]

"Bill Klem used to say that he never made a mistake in his life. I never believed him until I started umpiring, and then I realized what Bill meant.

"Bill was calling 'em from the heart every time—in his own mind he knew he was always right."

Keen knowledge of the rules, a [illegible] mind and [illegible] eyesight are chief attributes of a good umpire, Pipgras said. And he takes care of his eyes [illegible].

"No reading at night, as little night driving as possible and a minimum of picture shows," is his formula.

For the past two years Pipgras has been umpiring spring exhibition games as part of his tune-up work for the regular season. He receives no compensation, just does it "for practice." Next month he starts calling them for the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees in the Grapefruit League.

Olympics Face St. Jacques

Boston Olympics, who triumphed over the second-place Valleyfield Braves at the Arena Sunday afternoon by a 5-3 score, will meet St. Jacques at the Garden next Sunday afternoon, in a Provincial League game.

The locals came out of the Valleyfield game in very good physical condition considering the type of hockey they threw at the opposition.

Johnny Lax, the slamming center iceman of the fighting third line, has an elbow the size of a baseball to show for his efforts. Aside from John, the rest of the squad is in excellent shape.

The new first line, with Jack Costello working the wing on the Spain-Guilbord wave, made a real impression. Costello has added plenty of weight to the hitherto light frontier.

Baer on Trail Of Joe Louis

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (INS).—"I'm absolutely confident I can regain the world heavyweight championship," Max Baer, former title-holder, said upon his arrival from California to begin training for his bout with Tommy Farr on March 11.

"I know I will beat Farr," [illegible] said, "then go on from there to the championship—and I hope Joe Louis is still the champ when I make my next challenge. He's the one I want."

As part of his climb to the throne he took from Jim Braddock, Louis [illegible] Baer out in four rounds.

Irish Team Due Here Tomorrow

An international boxing tournament will be held at the Boston Garden Monday night under the auspices of the Irish-American A. A., when the "cream" of the amateur ranks of the United States, Ireland and Canada battle for supremacy.

The last big international show held in Boston was sponsored by the Irish at the Garden in November, 1936.

Four of the finest flyweights ever to grace a Boston ring will do their stuff in the Garden Monday. The color bearer of Ireland will be Patrick Connolly from County Dublin.

CLEANUP KID

Connolly holds the Irish flyweight championship of 1932-33-34-35-36 and 38, and has been the Irish Army champion for the past six years. He is the only boxer who can claim a victory over Pat Palmer of England when the latter was at his best as British and European champion.

Connolly won the Golden Gloves championship at Chicago in 1933 and has defeated the champions of England, Scotland, Wales, Norway, Germany, Belgium and Italy. This season he defeated Enekes of Hungary, champion of Europe.

The Canadian representative will be Alistair McGinnis of Montreal. He is of Scotch parentage and has been boxing for about three years.

McGinnis has had about 40 bouts, winning the majority, and last fall he defeated the Canadian champion, who is today representing Canada in the British Empire Games in Australia.

Uncle Sam will have two strong and sturdy defenders of the flyweight honors in Charlie Morris of Natick and Larry Bolvin of Providence.

BOLVIN CAN HIT

Morris recently won the state boxing championship title at the Arena, and last Friday night at Washington in a big inter-city show he easily defeated the Golden Gloves champion of the Capital.

Bangtail Owners Embarrassed in Havana

Feed Skyrockets Almost 200 P. C.; Purse Higher Than Take

By BILL SMITH

Horsemen at Oriental Park, Havana, are having headaches aplenty these days. Local merchants have skyrocketed the prices of hay and oats to such a point that it borders on the clip side. Thoroughbred upkeep has soared to an increase of almost 200 per cent and living conditions for horse owners and trainers has jumped proportionately ... A mutuel handle one day last week was less than the purse distributed to the winning horses ... Top notch jockeys are picking their mounts and won't ride horses that haven't a chance to win ... Canadian Boxers Win 4 Matches

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 8 (INS) —Prospects brightened somewhat for Canada's wrestling team today as Evans, middleweight, for the North American division [illegible] two other British empire grapplers more or less on [illegible].

In his first bout Evans [illegible] pointed Hardwick of Australia. A little later he won a decision over the English middleweight champion Jeffers in a hard battle.

These successes made the [illegible] fortunes for the Canadians [illegible] a little brighter. In previous wrestling competition Australia captured the first three titles with Blake of Montreal and Clarke also of Montreal falling victim to the Australian grunt and groan artists.

In the preliminary boxing matches however, Canada gained four victories to three defeats. When today's contests began Canada was in second place with 62 points trailing Australia, the leader, with 86.

As in other departments of the British empire games Australia appeared to hold virtually undisputed supremacy in the cycling contest.

In the 1000-meter event the time trial was won by Robert Porter of Australia in one minute 15.2 seconds for a British empire record.

Harvard '41 Plays Lawrence Academy

Coach Neil Stahley's Harvard freshman basketball team faces the Lawrence Academy quintet at 4:30 today in the indoor athletic building court.

Two undefeated freshman teams will resume competition tomorrow when the strong first-year hockey and swim teams meet Exeter Academy and Boston Boys' Club, respectively.

Particularly powerful freshmen swimming teams in the past few years are one of the explanations for the strength of the varsity and Coach Larry Peterson's mermen are no exception to the rule.

The Crimson swimmers have already taken the measure of Lynn Y. M. C. A., Gardner high, Worcester Boys' and the Brown 1941 outfits and will be out gunning for triumph number five tomorrow afternoon.

Menow, Kentucky Derby Favorite, Doubtful Entry

By BOB CONSIDINE

International News Service Sports Writer

HIALEAH, Fla., Feb. 7—Menow, Hal Price Headley's winter book favorite for the Kentucky Derby, has only a [illegible] of starting in the classic. Headley's [illegible] trainer [illegible] Duval Headley [illegible] Joe Widener's [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible]

LEG STILL A QUESTION

Charley Kurtsinger who [illegible] Menow [illegible] season has a different idea.

"Don't let anybody tell you that colt's got a bum leg. He'll be okay. I know. I've had him out every morning." But the trainer isn't as optimistic.

"I'd give him only an even chance to make the Derby," young Headley told us. "We can't tell for certain, one way or the other, until we wind him up a little more. I'm bringing him along slow, and of course he hasn't had a real workout yet. If the leg swells, when he does start breezing, there'll be nothing to do but take him out of the Derby and hope to gosh we can get him in shape for something later in the year. If he's okay, we'll ship him from Florida around the end of March and send him either to Keeneland or up to Jamaica for the Wood Memorial."

NEVER CLOSE

He masked the shadow of intense disappointment that hovers over the Headley family as it awaits the verdict on the star oat muncher in the stable. It will be a crushing blow to the Kentucky banker breeder if Menow has to skip the Derby. Winning the race has always been Hal Price's chief aim in racing. He never came close, but only a few short months ago he appeared to have the 1938 classic in the bag. The equine fates had given him a tremendous 2-year-old, the best, some said, since Man O'War.

Menow had been ill during the early part of the season, but beginning with the Champagne Stakes—after poor Sky Larking's death—he was a tremendous 2-year-old. In the Belmont Futurity, with the cream of the 2-year-old crop against him, he whirred down the long straightaway to crack Pompoon's futurity record, the world record, and the time set by Man O'War, 17 years before, in winning the event.

He was an odds-on favorite to take the Pimlico Futurity, but a few days before the gallop he came down with the deep scratch on his leg, and young Headley promptly took him out of the race. He was retired for the winter at Charleston, S. C., and while there he was voted the outstanding 2-year-old of the year by U. S. turf writers. He came down here a couple weeks ago, to test the hopes—and fears—of his trainer, and his owner.

MUST BREAK PRECEDENT

Only one deep-south-trained colt ever won the Derby. That was Black Gold in 1924. The black beauty of thoroughbred racing wintered part of 1924 in Florida then went over to New Orleans to knock off a few cheap purses at the Fair Grounds. It came on to win the Derby, hurt itself, went back to its New Orleans stamping grounds, and broke a leg as it [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] writers have [illegible] for the [illegible] and been [illegible] three years to whom they had [illegible] as two-year-olds. Pompoon was the latest example [illegible] War Admiral [illegible] the [illegible] and then [illegible] Admiral [illegible].

STICKS WITH MENOW

There are intangible things [illegible] the [illegible] think that Menow's winter book price is not right and that even if he starts in the Derby he will be beaten by William Woodward's Fighting Fox. The Fighter is wintering in the North and doing well. He is a full brother of Gallant Fox. He is out of the mare Marguerite by Sir Gallahad III as English as Menow's heralded pappy. He is a dead image of the superb Gallant Fox except that his head is slightly smaller. But these things do not often work out on the turf. There were four colts by Fair Play-Mahubah, but the couple never produced another Man O'War.

So if it's all the same to you we'll string along with Menow at least until the fears of its trainer are put to rest.

Woodman Trains Le Mar Horses

By Associated Press

Conny Smythe, manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey club, has a pretty [illegible] in Stand of Swim, a three-year-old [illegible] of Swift and Sure. After winning only one of her first 14 starts the filly has chalked up three straight, the latest triumph coming in a mile and 70-yard feature at the Fair Grounds yesterday. The victory was an improvement over her recent races in that she was meeting a slightly better grade of horses.

A. G. Woodman has succeeded Moss Shapoff as trainer for the Le Mar Stock Farm horses at Hialeah Park. Woodman will have 17 head under his wing. The Le Mar Stock Farm is owned by Leo J. Marks and comprises a couple of hundred acres in the blue grass region of Fayette county, Kentucky.

An entirely new complexion has been injected into the running of the $20,000 Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Park, Feb. 26, as the result of Lavengro's victory in the Bahamas Handicap last Saturday.

In Sir Oracle, Norman Church has a sprinter that can step with the best of the sprinters at Hialeah Park. After winning two straight at Tropical Park and then trailing in Hialeah's Inaugural Handicap the four-year-old son of Bull Dog came back yesterday to spread eagle a field that included DeWitt Page's Maeriel, Mrs. T. Stevenson's Kingsbury, Hal Price Headley's Fraidy Cat and the Bomar stable's Grand Slam. Sir Oracle was clocked in 1:10 1-5, only two-fifths of a second off the track record as he beat Maeriel by five lengths.

Steve Casey Makes Hit With Fans | Mellody-Kaplan Go Is Natural

By JACK CONWAY

STEVE CASEY, Irish heavyweight wrestler, has made a decided impression with those persons who have seen him training at Buckley's Gym for his world's championship match with the brilliant Louis Thesz of St. Louis at the Garden on Friday night ... Casey is already in fine physical condition, and is confident he will make it a victory in two straight falls over the Mid-Western champion.

Mr. Boston

Casey is one of the few wrestlers who have never met defeat ... In more than 300 matches the giant Celt has yet to be tossed for a fall ... Thesz has been getting into condition at a St. Louis gym, and will arrive here Thursday morning prepared for his tussle with Casey at the Garden on Friday evening.

I believe Bob Gregory, English light heavyweight champion, is displaying good judgment doing some training for his job as referee ... Gregory knows Casey and Thesz are big, powerful fellows and exceptionally fast ... The Englishman wants to be able to keep up with the spirited pace Casey and Thesz are certain to set ... Princess Baba will occupy a royal box, and will present two championship belts to the winner ... The dolls, as well as members of the sterner sex, will be anxious to get a close-up of Princess Baba who is the last word in beauty ... I have already gone on record as saying Princess Baba is more beautiful than the vivacious Sonja Henie.

Harry Kelley says the lightweight bout between Honey Mellody and Kid Kaplan at the Garden tomorrow night should be a stirring affair.

"Mellody has had the most experience and if he has one of his good nights, has a fine chance of winning," said Kelley ... "Personally, I am making a small bet on Kaplan whom I consider the finest ring prospect to bob to the front in New England in several years ... Kaplan is a natural, and does everything right when under fire in the ring.

"Kaplan came to me and asked me if he should fight Young Jack Britton who at the time was rated highly ... I told him to take the match as I felt he would win, and he didn't disappoint me ... Mellody is Italian and Kaplan is Jewish ... This combination has always drawn well in bouts in Boston ... This bout will start the fans talking about such famous New England lightweights as Matty Baldwin, Eddie Murphy, Freddy Yelle, Joe Egan and Steve Kennedy."

FRANK CHLUDINSKI, according to Tom Sheehan, was a sensation in the recent intercity amateur boxing tournament in Washington. The Hyde Park heavyweight displayed amazing speed and punching power. Chludinski keeps improving with each bout. He will represent the United States in the international tournament at the Garden.

Tommy Parle says the ticket sale for the Casey-Thesz bout reminds him of the boom days in wrestling when Dan O'Mahony and Gus Sonnenberg were drawing record gates. The public was quick to recognize the Casey-Thesz match as a top attraction ... The news that Bob Gregory will referee with Princess Baba in a royal box has also attracted attention to the match.

3 Stations Granted Basketball Rights

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (INS)—The Federal Communications Commission today disclosed an interest in sports. The commission announced it had given three broadcasting stations special temporary privileges to broadcast basketball games. The stations were WILL, the University of Illinois, at Urbana, for games at Topeka, Kans., and Charleston, W. Va.; WSAJ, Grove City College, Pa., for all home games, and WQM at St. Albans, Vt., for locally-sponsored games.

M'Cluskey May Push Lash To 2-Mile Record Saturday

Indianan Passes Up Mile in Effort to Lower Mark

By MURRAY KRAMER

Don Lash is going to confine his activities to the two mile event in Saturday night's B. A. A. games at the Garden.

This may be a bit of routine news to some, but to others, it means a world indoor record.

For some reason, this mania for records has been a vital factor for the track fans, and new marks mean added enthusiasm and assure any meet of success.

Take last year for example.

Lash ran away from his field in the Billings Two-mile. With about three laps to go, the crowd sensed a record, and the vocal support he received was terrific.

Then came the announcement, "And a new world indoor record of 8 minutes, 58 seconds."

Needless to say, Lash was the hero of the night despite the fact he wasn't even pressed.

DOUBLING TOO TOUGH

Don had high hopes of cracking the mark he set last year but, due to pressure, he has been competing in both the mile and two mile events.

This "iron man" stunt is a bit too tough, and Lash has had to conserve his energy as much as possible.

Last Saturday night he was forced to drop out of the Millrose mile, and made up his mind then and there that he would confine his indoor running to the two mile.

With this in mind, he will run not only to win Saturday night, but to register an 8:56 achievement. He's capable of doing it, too.

The thing that should help more than anything else is the fact that the competition will be much better than it was last year.

For one thing, Joe McCluskey is running better than ever before, and in the past two big meets has forced Lash to the limit.

Joe has a hunch the tables are going to be turned and believes Saturday night is the evening.

SEARS IMPROVED

Then there is Ray Sears, who has run the fastest two miles ever recorded by an American outdoors. Ray wires he will be a much improved performer over his Prout games showing.

For other possibilities there are Floyd Lochner of Oklahoma and Norman Bright of California, a pair of pretty fair distance lads.

As in the K. of C. games, Saturday's two-mile may steal the play away from the mile.

No news yet on Archie San Romani. The former track king of Emporia is waiting for a doctor's O. K. and will not know until tomorrow whether he can run or not here Saturday.

Just how long can Cunningham last?

George Arnold is entered in the Hollis 600. He's from the Milrose A. A.

But for a dual meet in Pittsburgh, Tom Kanaly would have been able to bring George Woodruff, the best half miler in the world, to Boston for the Lapham 1000.

Pouring Out Victories?

International News Photograph Service

Glenn Cunningham quaffs from the Millrose trophy after his 4:11 mile victory. The ace Kansan miler is expected to repeat this performance at the B. A. A. games at the Garden Saturday. The trophy is but one of the many captured by Cunningham in his star-studded career on the boards.

Bob Quinn Going To Hartford Tomorrow

Bob Quinn, president of the Bees, will make a trip to Hartford tomorrow to see if he can arrange to have his Eastern League franchise transferred there.

"If we can come to a satisfactory arrangement for the rental of the baseball park tomorrow, we may close the deal then and there," Quinn said.

The franchise was operated last year in Scranton, Pa.

Allentown, Harrisburg and Reading, all of Pennsylvania, have been angling for the franchise but Quinn prefers Hartford.

Vin Di Maggio Signs With Bees

The Bees have received the signed contract of Vince DiMaggio, center fielder, thus ending reports that he was a holdout.

Boston Schools Hold Own Relays

English, Mechanic Arts, Memorial Vie In Class A—Haverhill Five Invited To North Shore Tourney

The Boston schools will stage a dress rehearsal of the meet next Saturday at the Garden when the district and city schools hold their annual relay carnival at the 101st Infantry Armory tomorrow afternoon.

Competition will be held in the regular four classes with medley races thrown in to spice the program.

Headlining the card will be the class A fight which should present a leading contender for Saturday's seaboard relays.

English, Mechanic Arts and Roxbury Memorial are due to lead the parade to the wire, and all are capable of turning in some fine times.

Coach Bill Ohrenberger has eight boys who have all looked good this season, and from this group should produce a quartet capable of turning in a good mark in any race.

This group includes Rupe Leonard and Joe Concannon, ace dashmen; Dick Francis, George Melaugh adn John Ballantine.

ENGLISH WINNER

Mechanic Arts probably will start the team that has impressed in Armory meets earlier. Bill Maze, star 300-yarder, holds down the anchor post for Ed Goode, Chick Femea and Randy Gray.

These lads recently were unable to match the strides of the Blue and Blue legmen, finishing second in a tri-cornered match with Memorial pulling up third.

The Tom Campbell forces had Jerry Alcorn, Clarence Henderson, Charlie Knowles and Wes Taylor combining and these four will probably be picked to face the field.

Dark horses will be the Roslindale and South Boston teams.

The Green and Gold has an impressive team with Geoghegan at anchor while Southie hopes will rest on the speed of Jim Stokinger, Fred Ahearn and Claude Peck, the last named one of the most consistent performers in city ranks.

BRIGHTON STRONG

Mechanic Arts with Peter Gough, John Flaherty, Calvin Folkes and Bill Friary looks like the strongest entry in Class B with the strongest competition probably coming from Commerce.

Classes C and D will be wide open affairs with Brighton having a slight edge in C and Trade, English and Mechanics topping the field in D.

Haverhill High school basketball team has been invited to participate in the North Shore interscholastic tournament, to be conducted at Holton High in Danvers, March 2, 3 and 4. Though no definite decision has been reached, the Brown and Gold five will probably be in the tourney.

Last year Haverhill turned down an invitation expecting to get into the Tech tourney, but was disappointed when it did not receive an invitation. The quintet is now tied for fourth place with Beverly in the Essex County League, with a game scheduled for tonight against Salem at the Witch City.

WRITERS PICK SPECIALS

Wood, Hines, Walker, Taylor to Start in Garden Dash Saturday—McKinnon Mainstay in Hurdles

After a lengthy session, the Eastern Mass. Interscholastic Sportswriters' Association ironed out practically all the details of the Eastern Seaboard Relay Carnival, to be held Saturday afternoon at the Garden—leaving but a few minor points to be straightened out before the meet.

The 52 schools entered in the relays were paired off. Then followed much discussion on the choice of schoolboys for the five special events.

Seventeen trackmen, added to those who had won first and second places in the Northeastern meet two weeks back, were selected. These are a few vacancies yet to be filled.

Frank "Bud" Hines and Bill Wood, on the merits of their showing in the first major meet of the year, find themselves with Gil Walker, of Everett, third place Winner, and Wes Taylor of Roxbury Memorial, Class B state champion and also Reggie champ, added to the list. Private and prep school representatives have still to be chosen.

In the hurdles, the names of Russ Lisle, Lowell, and Ed Goode, Mechanic Arts, third and fourth place winners respectively in the Northeastern, William Gilman, Moses Brown, and Earl Fisher, Hope street high of Providence, Rhode Island state champion in this event, were added to that of Don McKinnon, Newton. The prep school entry has yet to be named.

In the 300-yard run, Harley Masters of Lynn Classical and Dick Whedden of Roxbury Latin were selected with the prep schools again lacking in representation.

Masters and Whedden will find themselves pitted against Dick Herlihy, Medford, and Bill Maze, Mechanic Arts, winners in the past two Northeastern runs.

Boston English's sole entry will be either Keady or Ballatinie in the 600-yard run.

Also in this event will be Art Hughes, Newton, Warren Nute, NewBedford, both automatic nominations, Joe Farrow, Mechanic Arts, Paul Hanlon, Roxbury Latin, and John Watson, Huntington, former Watertown high ace.

Frank Fletcher Hope street high, will be Rhode Island's second representative and second state champion in the meet, entered in the 1000.

His name was added to those of Basil Babcock, Newton, Francis Maloney, Worcester North, Dick Faulkner, Somerville, Lloyd Ohellman, Roxbury Memorial, and possibly Dan Doherty, St. John's Prep school.

Jean Bauer's 74 Stroke Off Medal

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8—Kathryn Hemphill of Columbia, S. C., took medalist honors in the women's Palm Beach tournament with a 36-37—73 card, two under par.

Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., was a stroke behind the boyish South Carolinan. A two-foot putt on the 18th green missed the cup and prevented Miss Bauer from tying for the medal.

Diana Fishwick, former British and French champion who arrived Saturday, failed to qualify.

Patty Berg, winner of three winter tournaments, is not playing.

Wildcat Hoopman Loses 15 Pounds

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 8—Ad Vance, star sophomore guard on Northwestern's basketball team, has lost 15 pounds since the season started. The youngster does not attribute the loss to the speeded up game, but rather to the fact that he was considerably over his regular playing weight at the start of the season. He weighed in at 197 at the start of practice last fall and now scales 182.

Business Chief Warns Deal on 'Unwise Taxes'

Charles R. Hook Sees Big Slump Unless Abuses Cease

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 8 (INS)—Unless the federal government reverses many policies and punitive measures against business the current recession will grow into a disastrous depression, Charles R. Hook, newly elected president of the powerful national association of manufacturers, declared today.

"Excessive and unwise taxation, restrictive legislation, government competition with private enterprise, and the unwarranted abuse of industry are militating against that steady flow of earnings which we have described as industry's life blood," he asserted.

ASKS TAX REVISION

"The extent of the possible damage is far greater than most people think, for attacks against industry do not fall against the imaginary 'few,' but strike with brutal force against multitudes."

Hook said the outlook was brighter than it was a few months ago and that industry, given favorable conditions, was ready to embark on a great prosperous era.

He recommended a reduction of governmental expenditures, a balanced budget and reduction and revision of the tax structure, including the repeal of the undistributed profits tax.

MUST BARE ABUSES

Business, on the other hand, must police itself and correct evils and abuses, he asserted.

"American industry should follow and 'open book' policy, and not neglect to tell the public what it is doing, what it would like to do, and how it is serving society," he declared.

"But if industry is to have its side of the story accepted by the public, it must be as ready to expose abuses in its own ranks and condemn improper business practices as it is to oppose legislation and regulation which is obstructive to business progress."

Trade Upturn Due As New Deal Halts

Radical Legislation Untimely Now, Declares Haney; Building Gains

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of economics, New York University)

Special to the Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—Industrial and business activity slipped off a little last week. Current levels are so low, however, that no further great recession can occur.

Furthermore, the main maladjustments that marked the end of the boom of a year ago, have been so well corrected that it would take some violent shock to push business into a panic.

The chief significance of recent events at Washington is to show that there is little probability of such a shock. What goes on there is much talk and little action. The talk is mostly "politics" and probably means little. If this keeps on, as now seems likely, business will wake up some morning and find itself enjoying a breathing spell!

It is easily possible that the administration will be more concerned about an alibi for its failure to plan successfully, than about actually forcing new laws upon Congress. The only chance it has—and that is a slim one—is to lie low now, and then encourage business recovery this summer. It would then try to shift the blame for the depression to "business leaders," and claim the credit for starting recovery!

In any case, however, it is not going to go in for further radical New Deal legislation. Even if it did, Congress would not pass it.

This is one good result of the outburst by "little business." It will greatly stiffen congressional resistance to radicalism. Fortunately, the administration attempts to cover up the recommendations made by the little fellows were quite futile, as the newspapers faithfully reported the real resolutions as originally adopted by the conference.

The statistics and trade reports of the week show no great change, aside from a natural reaction from the slight January rally.

The steel industry slipped off two or three points to about 30 per cent of capacity. The situation remains practically unaltered, namely no demand for steel from the normally heavy consumers such as the railway, building, and automobile industries. The current negotiations between the U. S. Steel Corporation and the CIO Union tend to retard buying, since many expect a wage reduction to be followed by a price reduction.

It can be said that actual transactions last week definitely established the $14-$14.50 level for heavy metal steel scrap at Pittsburgh. This suggests that a base has been established.

Perhaps a little progress has been made toward moving the surplus of "used cars," but that is the most any one can say of the automobile industry at present. In Cook County (Chicago), Ill., the new registrations in January were a few over December, but not much more than half of those of January, 1937.

The building industry has shown some gain in activity. Apparently, however, this is all in heavy construction and attributable to government work. Aside from this sort of thing, the chief hope lies in the stimulants to be given the new Federal Housing Act. That measure may start some speculative real estate operations. Why anyone should expect much more than that to come from merely extending easier credit, is more than I can see.

Railway carloadings, bank debits, and wholesale trade, all show declines. Of course, they are at much lower levels than a year ago.

Nor is a turn yet indicated by commodity prices. Last week, the averages were lower, declines occurring in hides, livestock, corn, sugar, wool tops, and rubber.

But the changes in the averages were small, and the decline was chiefly in agricultural products, where it may be explained by seasonal conditions. For the most part, industrial products remained unchanged, and the markets were characterized by lack of buying. I believe that it would take but a little improvement in political security and in labor relations to start the buying that would be the first sign of recovery.

Sees Incentive Sole Requisite For Prosperity

Forbes Relates Dog Incident to Prove What U. S. Needs

By B. C. FORBES

Students of a class in economics were surprised to see a sleepy old dog drowsing on the rostrum when they entered the classroom.

"Gentlemen," explained the professor, "I have experienced difficulty in making you understand the fundamentals of economics. I propose to make one thing clear."

He walked to the door, opened it, snapped his fingers, whistled, called to the dog. But old Rover didn't budge. The professor turned to his desk, took from a drawer a long stick, twine and a sausage.

He strapped the stick along the dog's back, so that the sausage dangled a couple of feet in front of his nose. Rover immediately sniffed and bounded through the door in pursuit of the hot dog.

"That, gentlemen, was INCENTIVE in its most fundamental form," observed the professor.

The incident was related to a Pittsburgh gathering of engineers yesterday by Charles R. Hook, president of the National Association of Manufacturers and president of the American Rolling Mill Company.

He proceeded to emphasize that what business and industry need today "to solve our very serious problems" is simply incentive, incentive in the form of understanding and cooperation on the part of the federal government.

"Piled up behind the fears and uncertainties as to what the legislative future holds are billions of dollars in idle capital and millions of jobs. There are dollars enough and jobs enough to dwarf any amount of money that might conceivably be spent by government upon relief or job-making.

"To state that America is overproduced, overbuilt, oversold is the sheerest tommyrot. It has been estimated that in the durable goods industries alone, annual production of $33,000,000,000 a year would be required until 1941 to re-establish production on a 1929 plane, giving employment to 8,000,000, or 9,000,000 additional men."

What is damming up this potential prosperity? Mr. Hook answered:

"Excessive and unwise taxation, restrictive legislation, government competition with private enterprise and unwarranted abuse of industry."

But he concluded on this cheerful note:

"I feel more hopeful about the business future now than I did two months ago, because I believe there is, on the part of Congress, a more sympathetic attitude toward business and a better understanding of the factors which have caused the current recession."

Has not the administration just received "incentive" to cease baiting business and to start extending encouragement.

Little business has proclaimed in no uncertain tones that it wants, above everything else, governmental encouragement, not discouragement, for all business.

After all, what is America's most fundamental problem? Let Chairman Percy H. Johnston, of the sound, century-old Chemical Bank, reply:

"The biggest job in this nation is the filling of pay envelopes. We believe in the old-fashioned principle that business men can do this better than politicians and theorists whose backgroudn is devoid of any practical business experience."

If New Dealers are more anxious to bring about good times than to foist on a suffering nation still worse suffering, will they not give the country a respite from disruptive innovations, experiments, regimentation?

Hub Financier Says Fears Burden Business

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—A spokesman for the financial world pleaded with a Senate committee today to avoid burdening "business with additional fears, restraints and intimidation if you want it to make good."

Francis E. Frothingham, of Boston, distinguished white haired president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, made this request of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

OPPOSES UNLISTED BILL

The Boston financier was one of a group of investment bankers who opposed legislation to enable over-the-counter dealers in securities to regulate themselves under supervision of the securities commission.

Frothingham said legislation sponsored by Senator Maloney (D.), Connecticut, actually "did not provide real self-regulation" because, he contended, the commission would have power over the proposed regulatory associations.

He said the bill as now written was "over-regulation of an already sorely harassed industry" and said the "general welfare of the security holders and the public will not be best served by passage of this bill in its present form."

Earlier he asserted that investment bankers had supplied 85 per cent of funds for new issues for industry in past years.

PRIMARY FUNCTION

Primary function of investment bankers was to supply new capital for industry, he said, and should not be confused with stock operations (buying and selling stock securities after they have been issued for the account of others) or with brokerage (buying and selling for others in the over-the-counter market).

John K. Starkweather, New York city, suggested the first part of the Senate bill permitting self-regulation by associations be revised and clarified, and the second part, permitting commission controls, be eliminated.

RFC Wool Loan Is Requested

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Senator Schwartz (D.), Wyoming, said today he understood Agriculture Department officials, at the request of the President, were studying a proposal for a $10,000,000 reconstruction corporation loan to stabilize wool prices.

Schwartz said he thought the RFC, in response to a request by Western congressmen and ranchers, had set up necessary machinery for the formation of a corporation to which the loan could be made. He explained the RFC could not make loans to individual ranchers.

"Effect of the loan, the wool men believe, would be to strengthen the market and peg the price of wool, Boston delivery, at 81 cents a pound," Schwartz said.

To Bolster Franc Equalization Fund

PARIS, Feb. 8 (AP)—Finance Minister Paul Marchandeau said today tax changes were being planned to relieve French industry of a part of the burden it now bears.

He also announced that the equalization fund for the defense of the franc would be reinforced.

The finance minister said a series of decree laws, already approved by Premiere Camille Chautemps, would be submitted to the next cabinet meeting.

SEC 'Short' Rules Now in Effect

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—New Securities and Exchange Commission regulations designed to avert any possible evils that might arise from "short" selling of stocks, went into effect in the New York Stock Exchange today but brokers said the immediate result was negligible, explaining that it would take some time for the new rules to be thoroughly tested.

The regulations provide that no "short" sale may be made at or lower than the quotation of the last "long" sale—in other words a seller disposing of stock which he does not own, but hopes to purchase later at a lower price, must sell it at least ⅛ of a point, or 12½ cents a share, above the prevailing market. The trend was uniformly higher on the stock exchange today.

The rule, it was expected, would prevent heavy short selling on a declining market, which, the commission held, tended to accentuate the fall in prices. It was promulgated after a long study of sales in last fall's "bear" market.

G. C. Murphy's Sales Off 1.1 P. C.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—G. C. Murphy Company reported January sales at $2,490,097, a decline of 1.1 per cent from the $2,519,024 reported in January, 1937.

December sales showed an increase of 3.3 per cent over December, 1936.

Equipments Good Trade Barometers

Locomotive Orders Are Of Real Value in Forecasting

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Railroad equipment orders in general, and locomotive orders in particular, provide one of the most sensitive trade barometers we have discovered. And insofar as the heavy industries are concerned locomotive orders present a nearly perfect forecasting record. Hence a study of the present status of the industry is well worth while.

The attention of this writer was drawn to the barometric qualities of the rail equipments by the current Administrative and Research Corporation's Weekly Letter. It contained a charted record of orders from 1926 to 1937 and if a trade activity line were laid over it the two would be almost exactly parallel. Sole discrepancy would show up in 1926-27; and in those years, let it be noted, many a good observer felt a decline in trade and the markets should have taken place. A bit more of the record, before considering the outlook, reveals that orders generally hit a low in '32-'33, turned up in '34, dipped in '35 and then shot upward through '36 and subsequently dipped in '37. An almost exact duplication of the stock market's trend path.

CONTROLLING FACTORS

In considering the outlook for rail equipment orders, with the emphasis on locomotives, the controlling factors are rates, obsolescence and heavy industry activity. If the I. C. C. grants higher rates some new business for equipment makers may materialize. But if general trade conditions are such that an increase in the traffic load is not anticipated the chances are railroads will emphasize other considerations. Chief of these is the widening obsolescence gap. There is a real need for new motive power. None-the-less caution in filling the gap seems sure to prevail until traffic prospects are given a fillip.

* * *

What is really needed by both the railroads and equipment makers is a revival of heavy goods industries. The housing program and hopes of an all-around trade revival are possible stimulants but until such time as they are not obscured by fear psychology and government-business enmity the outlook must be considered as hazy. The year 1938 will probably be a year of gradual improvement for the industry. Which ties in forecasts of moderately better trade conditions as the year progresses.

ENGLISH RECESSION

While there have been all sorts of statements regarding the prosperity of England in comparison with the United States that country is not without its troubles. The increases in unemployment reported to the Wall Street Journal today by its London correspondent are all the evidence needed. They have been rising sharply of late and now stand at the highest level since April, 1936. Practically every branch of business not directly connected with armament shows a fast growing percentage of workers on the unemployment roles. Thus the ability of such programs to hold prosperity at relatively high levels is opened to question.

While it would be unfair to even suggest that conditions in England have deteriorated in a frightening manner there are some things that cannot be overlooked. First, the increase in unemployment since last September has been of more than seasonal proportions. Second, some months ago Dow theorists maintained the London market had given a bearish signal, which they felt forecast a trade dip. In fact, the writer so reported in this column.

STOCK PRICES HOLD

It would take an optimist with a lively imagination to say that the week's initial session presented positive evidence that the decline had come to at least a temporary ending. However, the resistance shown by industrials and the lack of volume which accompanied the rail dip may have some significance. Especially if hooked up with today's early action. Selling pressure seems to be completely absent and declines lose momentum. All of which may lead bullish forces to try their hand in several of individual directions where recent behavior has been fair to promising. It is such tactics that uncover worthwhile leaders.

* * *

On a purely temporary basis for those willing and able to assume the risks and with the further proviso of stops under recent lowests the following stocks may be rated on recent chart action as: Chrysler fair, Anaconda fair, Atchison fair, U. S. Steel, Allied Stores, Glidden, Westinghouse, General Electric and Texas Corp all promising. American Can, once through 83, will have all the earmarks of the real leader.

U. S. Paperboard Production Up

Paperboard production in the United States picked up in the week ended January 29 and averaged about 58 per cent of capacity, compared with only 54 per cent in the two preceding weeks, 43 per cent in the first week of January and about 30 per cent in the week before Christmas and New Year's.

There has been some softening in prices, but that movement has not yet become widespread. Kraft board prices, however, have not declined, the board holding firm at $52.50 a ton.

The low level of production reached in December and January is believed to have been under the rate of consumption.

Commodity Index At New Low Mark

The wholesale commodity price index compiled by National Fertilizer Association declined in the week ended February 5 to a new low point for the current recession.

This index last week stood at 76.8, against 77 in the preceding week, 77.9 a month ago and 85.9 a year ago, based on the 1926-28 average as 100.

Orders Pacific Gas to Cut Rate

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8 (INS)—California Railroad Commission has ordered a reduction in the natural gas rates of Pacific Gas & Electric Co., and its subsidiary, San Joaquin Light & Power Co.

The reduction, effective April 1, amounts to about $2,000,000 annually.

Rail Purchases Set at $900,000,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (INS)—Buying of materials, supplies and fuel by railroads in 1937 was estimated at $900,000,000 according to the Association of American Railroads.

Purchases included 70,000 different items.

Industrials Up In Slow Trades

Prices Gain Over 4 Points

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—A creeping rally today lifted stock market industrials 1 to more than 4 points at the best.

The list pointed higher at the start, slipped a trifle later on profit realizing, then came back to establish top quotations near the final hour.

Volume was not much greater than in yesterday's slow-motion session when the turnover was the smallest in six months.

Brokers said the lightness of offerings on Monday's setback encouraged some speculative quarters to turn to the buying side, although several usually active operators continued in neutral territory while awaiting fresh Washington moves.

Wall Street was heartened by the amicable conferences between representatives of U. S. Steel and the CIO Union, with the result of the meetings expected to have an influence on the general wage and price situation.

RAIL BONDS UP

Rail bonds were inclined to edge forward, but other corporation loans were uneven. Major commodities failed to follow any particular direction.

Conspicuous on the upward reversal most of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Firestone, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse, duPont, Allied Chemical, American Can, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, International Harvester, Interlake Iron, Johns-Manville, Philip Morris, U. S. Gypsum, Union Carbide and Allis Chalmers.

American Telephone did little either way following the company's statement revealing 1937 net operating income was some $7,000,000 below that for 1936. It was realized an unusually large tax adjustment was included which did not appear in the 1936 report.

Declaration of a 25-cent dividend by General Motors after the close Monday, the same as paid a year ago, buoyed automobile stockholders. A substantial sag in General Motors sales to dealers and overseas shipments in January was in line with forecasts.

The new SEC regulation virtually banning short sales on a declining market, and permitting them when the list is rising, went into effect at the opening but was thought to have been a negligible trading factor. It served principally to recall the frequently recited couplet of the days of Daniel Drew, which warned:

> "He who sells what isn't his'n,
> "Must pay it back or go to prison."

TIMELY ITEMS

Market analysts saw a hopeful sign in the Dun & Bradstreet figures disclosing business failures, for the country as a whole, during the week ended February 3, dropped to 256 from 321 in the preceding week.

Partial reports on the trend of January building permits were also on the cheerful side. A material increase over 1937 volumes was experienced by 15 of 27 cities from which data are now available, a trade survey found.

On the other hand, factory sales of passenger cars and trucks in January fell more than 120,000 units under the December aggregate and were sharply below the total for January last year.

The French franc was off .00⅝ of a cent at 3.27⅞ cents at the beginning of foreign currency transactions. Sterling was up 1-16 of a cent at $5.01 5-16.

Govt. Shares in Profits, But Not Losses

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer

Under state socialism, government owns and operates business enterprises.

It assumes the risks of enterprise.

Under the hybrid system which has insidiously grown up in this country in recent years government has become a major partner in the "profits" but not in the losses.

DISCLOSURE MADE

This disclosure was clearly made in the short and elementary accounting summary of operations of the United States Steel Corporation in the nine years, 1928-36 inclusive.

During this period, the corporation income and outgo was substantially as follows:

Out of this the following sums were paid out:
For goods and services	$12,142
For depreciation—(wearing out of tools	457
Wages and salaries	2,582
Total	$5,178 5,178
Receipts less above expend.	$ 743

This remainder was divided as follows between government (with no investment) and 221,000 investors with an investment of $1.8 billions.

Taxes	$379
Dividends earned in this period	364
Total	$743

HANDSOME PARTNERSHIP

In other words, during this nine-year period government, federal, state and local, received more than 50 per cent of the net earnings before taxes—a handsome partnership stake.

As long as this condition exists, is it wholly accurate to describe ours as a system of "private" enterprise? Even the owners are not a small band of "economic royalists," but 221,000 thrifty citizens, of whom 50,000 are employes of the steel corporation.

The record of another corporation makes the same point even more strikingly. For the seven years ending July 31, last, this company paid out $3,153,000 in taxes. Against this, the owners, whose investment exceeded $18,500,000 not only earned nothing for themselves for the use of the tools which they provided, but in addition they lost in excess of $4,300,000. They also lost the earning power of their money for seven years.

A similar financial case history of another corporation showed that the tax collecting partner took out $814,000 in the seven-year period, whereas the owners earned only red ink to the tune of $1,213,000.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE

In another company, the tax gathering partner received $1,249,000 over a six-year period, whereas the owners earned but $126,000 on a $15,000,000 investment, or at the rate of less than ¼ of 1 per cent per year.

Likewise, in 1935 a group of railways which paid out $236,944,000 in taxes showed a net loss of 178,981,402 on the total stockholders' equity of $11.7 billions.

Of course, where nothing is earned for the use of tools, an economic system is living on its own fat, and cannot be self-perpetuating—not to speak of normal growth.

For the short term, this system of confiscating the savings of the thrifty may seem like a "share the wealth" scheme, which makes suckers out of "capitalists."

But for real progress, new investment and new savings are required to finance a rise in economic standards.

METHUEN, Feb. 8—Funeral services for Arthur J. Crosby, former cashier of the Pacific National Bank in Lawrence, will be held at his home here at 2 p. m., today.

Reagan's Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for the late John E. Reagan, well-known patent and corporation lawyer, will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, with a requiem high mass at the Holy Name Church in West Roxbury.

Mr. Reagan died early Monday at the Faulkner Hospital, in Jamaica Plain, following a brief illness. He was in his 62nd year and a native of Natick. He was a graduate of the Boston University Law School and for many years conducted his offices at 68 Devonshire street.

Besides his widow he is survived by two children, John E., Jr., a student at Harvard; a daughter, Edith, in her last year at the College of Pharmacy; a brother, Dr. Frank Reagan, dentist, and a sister, Mrs. David O'Connor, of Wendall street, Cambridge.

Three West Point Candidates Named

WORCESTER, Feb. 8—Three Worcester youths have been designated as candidates for West Point by Congressman Pehr Holmes.

They are Edward A. Martell of 262 Beacon street, sophomore at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, principal candidate; Benjamin Margolis, 25 Marion avenue, a student at the Worcester Boys' Trade School, first alternate, and John E. Wood of 2 Iverness avenue, Worcester Classical High School graduate, second alternate.

Quincy Council Hits Train Slash

The Quincy City Council today was on record as opposing any curtailment of train service to or from that city, and instructed Mayor Thomas S. Burgin to file the council's protest immediately with the Public Utilities Commission.

ARTHRITIS

Miss Agnes G. Fay, 14 Bigelow St., Brighton, Mass., says:—"I had Arthritis, Rheumatic Fever and Otitis Media for years. My knee was very painful and I was lame. I was confined to bed with Rheumatic Fever for a year. I had doctors treat me but their treatment did not help me. My sister told me that Dr. Walsh had helped her and she said that he would help me. I had Dr. Walsh treat me and found that what my sister had told me was true. Dr. Walsh has helped me so that I am no longer lame and I feel fine now. I give this testimonial hoping that my experience will be a guide for others who suffer as I did." Signed, Agnes G. Fay.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

TUESDAY,
FEBRUARY 8, 1938

Now the God of patience and of comfort grant you to be of the same mind, one with another according to Christ Jesus.—Romans XV., 5.

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, Trinity Church, Boston. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Dr. George E. Leighton, Universalist Church, Somerville.

The Editor Says:

"While cheering every mention of the President's name, they condemned virtually every bit of important legislative action taken during his administration."—Report of "Little Business" Conference in Washington.

THE Washington conference concluded and the delegates back home, there is small doubt that little business is of exactly the same mind regarding government responsibility for the recession as big business.

That, of course, is because business has gone to pot for the little fellow exactly as it has for the big fellow, and for exactly the SAME REASONS.

Big and little business are INDISTINGUISHABLE in the common plight of ALL business in the face of stupid restrictions imposed by a stupid government.

Little business men want relief from ruinous taxes.

They want an immediate STOP put to "unwarranted and malicious attacks on business by Administration representatives."

They want the government to SPEND less and TAX less.

If it was either the expectation or HOPE of the New Deal to show a division of business opinion regarding the political causes of the recession, certainly the result of the conference was a BOOMERANG.

Nevertheless, the Administration should not be disappointed or SURPRISED by that result.

It is a FACT that the burdens of taxation, spending and punitive regimentation imposed by the government are PREVENTING RECOVERY.

It is a FACT that business, big and little, cannot meet the problems of payrolls and keep the people gainfully employed, while submitting and conforming to present New Deal requirements and those contemplated in the future.

It is a FACT that recovery of business and prosperity for the people will come with CORRECTION of these conditions, and that the recession will get deeper and deeper until they ARE corrected.

A LIVING DOCUMENT

"I think of the Constitution not as the dead hand of the past, but as a living, breathing document of the present." —Governor George H. Earle of Pennsylvania in his Faneuil Hall address.

Truer words were never spoken in historic Faneuil Hall; the Constitution is indeed a LIVING DOCUMENT. It has to do with LIVING values.

The Constitution guarantees every man's life and breath.

It guarantees his freedom of thought and movement.

It guarantees him against tyrannous practices of all kinds — imprisonment without reason, excessive bail, cruel and unusual punishment, and search and seizure without a warrant.

These are EVERY MAN'S values, and as such they are worth knowing and remembering.

Contrary to what its enemies would have you believe, the Constitution is NOT a dry legal document.

Five minutes devoted to it will convince you that it is ALIVE in every line with the GENIUS and IDEALS of the founders of this Republic.

HARVEY S. FIRESTONE

"Harvey S. Firestone, the rubber magnate, of Akron, O., died at his winter home here early today."—Monday Associated Press dispatch.

Industrialist, banker, philanthropist—Harvey S. Firestone was a conspicuous example of the country's great business leaders who, from comparatively small beginnings, have risen through force of character, singleness of purpose and vision, to positions of international eminence.

Born on a farm near Columbiana, Ohio, sixty-nine years ago, Mr. Firestone inherited neither wealth nor fame. He did, however, inherit brains. They explain his great success.

It would be impossible in this brief space for us even to list his achievements.

It is sufficient to say that the comfortable motoring that is so important and enjoyable a part of our daily lives is possible because he visioned a nation on wheels and had the ability to make the vision reality.

Rightly, the whole country will mourn for Harvey Firestone, but, significantly, those who will mourn most will be his employes. He was their friend; they were his.

THEY ARE TOO HOPEFUL

"The Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Associations today recorded itself in favor of the proposed two per cent sales tax."—Monday's Boston Evening American.

Apparently, officials of the Taxpayers' Federation are convinced that political promises ought to be believed and that the suggested Sales Tax will do everything politicians say it will.

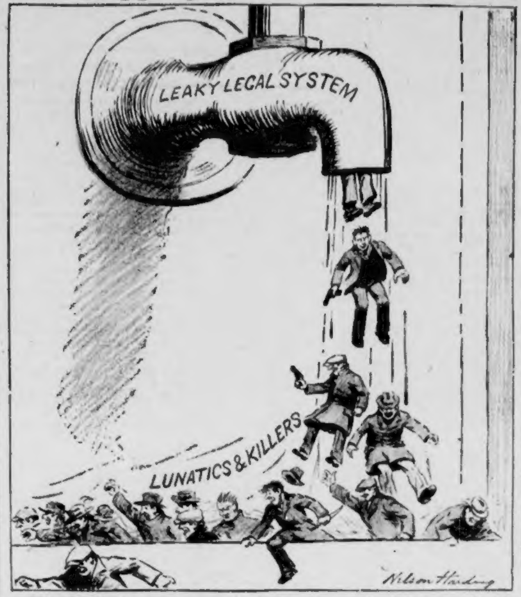
This is surprising. Taxpayers should know better. The gasoline, the income and practically every other levy invented in recent years were all supposed to lighten the burden on real estate.

Nobody has to be told what happened. Far from showing any indication of a reduction, real estate taxes went steadily higher. The more money that came in the more the politicians spent.

Common sense says the same thing will happen again. Like leopards, politicians do not change their spots—or their methods. And the $45,000,000 that the Sales Tax is expected to produce will in all probability be spent even before it is collected.

That Dripping Faucet

By
Nelson Harding



Mr. Harding's cartoon, aptly titled: LEAKY LEGAL SYSTEM, concerns all states, Massachusetts especially.

Today a convicted slayer of a child faces hanging in New Hampshire because he went there after he was repeatedly turned loose in this state.

Last week four inmates of Tewksbury Infirmary were killed by a deranged man who had a gun in his possession for two years.

Every day brings new evidence that our laws regulating firearms and dealing with lunatics and killers are hopelessly weak and ineffective.

Senators and Representatives, idling away their time on matters of little importance, ought to spend a few days writing laws that can and will protect their constituents.

New York Day by Day

By
O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.

THAT dusky Harlem gal Josephine Baker is again the amazing dancing sensation of Paris, following her marriage to a rich white Parisian. Many thought her popularity might suffer with the reports of her terrific flop at the Winter Garden here a year ago.

She danced off in almost dead silence. But Paris hailed her with more fervor than ever. Reactions abroad are often puzzling. Over in Moscow the colored singer Paul Robeson is so idolized in his concert and dramatic roles that he is likely to remain permanently.

Bette Davis is probably the favorite female movie star in Europe. While Chaplin is something of a favorite everywhere his most enthusiastic receptions are in Japan. Before the revolution in Spain, the elder Fairbanks was far and away the biggest box office draw among the dons.

In London they still have a warm spot for Tallulah Bankhead, and for almost ten years shouting Sophie Tucker has been one of the most popular night club warblers. They also like Belle Baker. And strutting Harry Richman can open almost anywhere at any time.

The talk of hoteldom has been the comeback of the venerable Hotel Astor under guidance of the one-armed Bob Christenberry. When he was appointed to his post four years ago, the Broadway debacle had set in and the entire street, as well as the famous inn, was in the depths of a physical, financial and social depression.

Christenberry had had a colorful career as a marine. In the front line trenches one day an enemy hand grenade fell at his feet. He picked it up and threw his right hand out of the trench with the grenade, thereby saving eleven lives and his own.

As a first step in jousting the Astor out of its rut, he had a million spent on improvements. He operates on a revision of the old saw of the hotel world. In his book, it reads:

"The customer is not always right but the right customer is never wrong."

Donald Ogden Stewart and Bob Benchley, long time friends, are reputed the drollest comedians extant when teamed at private parties. So often were they jockeyed into free entertainment that someone tells me—and it's likely exaggeration—they will no longer attend functions together.

However, the gift of comedy eventually hangs heavily on its practitioners. Wherever they go they are expected to keep everybody in stitches. It has driven a number into isolation. Comedians generous with their comedy, such as Frisco and Jack Osterman, so often face long stretches of "at liberty." Mark Twain in later years said:

"People should pay for a good laugh the same as for a good painting. Each is a phase of art."

Hope Williams has been seen at some of the auspicious openings this winter after a season or so of semi-retirement. A few years ago she somehow caught the fancy of playgoers with her loping walk, metallic and draggy voice—plus an acid cynicism she mastered rather expertly. Every young boarding school girl so tried to achieve the same lope and viscous speech that it got to be a headache.

Oh, yes. Miss Williams was three-sheeted as of social prominence, and that often helps in the New York build-up.

Speaking of acting, some photographers were around today to get poses of the Boston for a magazine. He didn't care much for it at first and barked his head off when the bulb flashed. But finally he seemed to get the idea and was posing all over the place, staying put wherever posed. There is a streak of "ham" in most dogs.

Alf Loyal's famous stage pooches worked far better when the audience was friendly and they never tired of coming back for bows.

Paul Seydell's Spotty—the ace of performers—trembles like a leaf upon receiving an unusual burst of applause, and tugs to get back and do his stunt over again.

The Marry-Go-Round

By
Helen Rowland

Nothing sends a woman home with such a contrite and tolerant spirit as hearing the "inside story" of another woman's domestic troubles.

Love is a sentimental "jag." The remorse and the headache may follow, but while the glamour lasts, you say and think sublime things that would never occur to you when cold sober.

Most books on how to succeed in love and marriage are written either by spinsters or divorcees. Any girl who can reason out a system for winning is usually too busy playing the game to bother to write a book.

Marriage is becoming such a brief and uncertain experiment that a girl sometimes wonders, while she is making the frillies for her hope chest, what the well-dressed grass-widow will be wearing next season.

It's a wise bride who flatly refuses, at the start, to become the three things which a husband first demands and then hates—his alarm clock, his food censor and his curfew.

There never was a man quite so spoiled or lost to sentiment that he didn't admire a girl for declining to let him regard her as "just another telephone number."

It takes a woman five or six years to get her husband running along smoothly on the single track of marriage—and another woman five or six minutes to derail him.

Human Side of the News

By
Edwin C. Hill

BECAUSE of an Italian law that no money may be exported from Italy, Caruso's daughter, Gloria, must make her home in Florence. And there she lives with her mother and half-sister. She is now approaching 18, and has displayed marked ability as a singer.

Caruso himself loved New York—loved to live here—loved the noise and lights and excitement of the big town. For years he lived squarely in the center of it, in the Hotel Knickerbocker at Forty-Second street and Broadway, the liveliest and noisiest corner in the world.

Talking with him one day in his apartment, getting a story for the Sunday section of my paper, I asked him why on earth he continued to live in the midst of all the uproar and glare.

The great tenor grinned like an impish kid. Chuckling, he caught me by the elbow and pulled me over to a window. Night had fallen. Times square was ablaze with electric signs.

The most arresting of all—the most fascinating—was a moving picture, done in colored electric lights, of a kitten all snarled up in a ball of yarn.

Caruso pointed to the kitten. "You ask me," he said in his halting English, "you aska me wy I no move from theese plaize? I tella you wy I no move from theese plaize. I stay here because of that blankety-blanket ket! I can't get away from that ket"—except blankety-blank wasn't quite the expression he used.

Opera knows Caruso no more. The whole earth still mourns him. Yet, thanks to Edison, he sings still in a million American homes. His voice will be heard as long as there are human beings on earth to hear it.

I came across, the other day Maurice Maeterlinck's "Life of a Bee," and if there's anything more fascinating between the covers of a book, I want to know about it. It revived also some personal memories of the great Maeterlinck.

About 30 years ago there was a Maeterlinck cult in America, and time was to come when Samuel Goldwyn was to import the Belgian genius at huge expense, and then not know at all what to do with him.

Of all the glittering facets of Maeterlinck's career, his love affair with Georgette Lablanc, a great dramatic actress, was undoubtedly the zenith of his career. They were the Brownings of this century—Maurice Maeterlinck and the gorgeously beautiful Georgette Leblanc. Alfred Sutro, the English author and playwright, wrote of her:

"She is a woman of rare intellect and charm, with a touch of genius herself, and she has been the ideal helpmate to her poet-husband.

"Through the pages of 'Wisdom and Destiny,' a book which posterity may yet declare his masterpiece, there moves a woman's figure that his friends do not fail to identify, even without the aid of romantic and beautiful dedication."

Fate was to give a sardonic twist to Sutro's words. Georgette herself put on Maeterlinck's play, "The Blue Bird," when no other producer would touch it. It proved a sensation. She played the part of "Light," and a child of no more than 15, by name of Renee Lahon, played the part of "Cold in the Head."

Maeterlinck was attracted to this lovely child. She grew up to be a beauty, and eight years after, in 1919, Georgette packed her belongings to make way for the young second wife of the middle-aged poet.

But she never could be to Maeterlinck what Georgette had been, for as he himself wrote: "Man is granted only one love."

The Political Parade

By George Rothwell Brown

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S next show-down with Congress will bring the whole issue of economy in government squarely before the country.

The President is going to get something—but not all he wanted—in the way of reorganizing the Executive departments.

He is facing almost as bad a defeat as he sustained on the court packing plan.

Some parts of the Executive side ought to be rescrambled. Most students at the Capitol concede that Congress couldn't do the job. Mr. Roosevelt will be permitted to attend to these matters himself.

But two vital points separate the President and the independent-conservative groups in the Senate, where the battle will be fought.

Mr. Roosevelt is on record as saying that the reorganization will not result in a dollar's worth of economy.

The independent-conservatives, headed by Senator Byrd, of Virginia, have figured that huge savings in government overhead can be accomplished by Executive reorganization.

Under the setup, there will be but one way to inject the economy issue squarely into the fight.

This will be by an amendment DIRECTING THE PRESIDENT TO CUT GOVERNMENT COSTS BY 10 PER CENT.

If the independent-conservative groups can force the adoption of that amendment, the spending spree can be halted. It will mark the beginning of retrenchment, and turn in the rising tide of debt and taxes.

Mr. Roosevelt's reorganization bill, now amended in Senate committee out of nearly all semblance to its original self, undoubtedly will have paved the way for a dictatorship in this country.

Not necessarily Mr. Roosevelt's dictatorship. He may retire from the White House in 1941.

The danger lies in the possible dictatorship of a political "pig in a poke," so to speak. Some great unknown. The Senate is shying off from that.

Opposition to the more drastic reorganization bill is being organized in the Senate somewhat along the lines of the organization against the Court bill.

At present 50 Senators are against abolishing the office of comptroller general, and setting up a figure-head auditor—as Mr. Roosevelt desires—who would merely audit the books AFTER THE MONEY HAD BEEN SPENT.

The job now is to hold those 50 in line. Some of them are Senators who heretofore have supported the New Deal through thick and thin.

The White House will exert the usual "persuasion."

You remember, of course, that there has been no comptroller general since John R. McCarl quit. Question is, can Congress insist upon keeping this great and powerful officer, who controls the public spending, and keeping it, compel the President to fill the vacancy.

When this issue is settled you will know what to expect, in the future, from Congress, independence or continued subserviency and surrender.

March of Events

By
Benjamin DeCasseres

WHILE the international blatherskites blather and the home-grown politicians pump out weasel words and the murder squads in China and Spain hurl death at one another, the surgeon and the doctor go on quietly with their great work of alleviating suffering.

In a London hospital two-year-old Geoffrey Knight, whose case appeared hopeless a week ago, has his heart washed twice daily by the expert hands of a surgeon. It now looks as if the child will recover.

The surgeon performing this delicate daily feat didn't think it important enough to give his name to the ASSOCIATED PRESS reporter.

This is sublime humility, true greatness of character—worth a ton of Napoleons and Francos.

It must be 1938 in Rumania as well as in America. But it is hard to believe that it is not 938 in Rumania when we read the following:

"Tell the readers of the 'New York Times' that you have talked with Rumania's most ferocious anti-Semite and that you found him a pleasant old gentleman of 80 who wishes no harm to any one and wants only this—that every single Jew shall pack up his baggage and leave Rumania."

This "pleasant old gentleman" is Professor Alexander M. Cuza, who is Premier Goga's right bower (or his jack of knaves?).

Men like Goga, Cuza, Julius Stretcher and Hitler, who is the father of this modern Jew-baiting mania in Europe, are what evolutionists call "throw-backs."

They are proof positive of Professor Thomas Henry Huxley's dictum that evolution may be a BACKWARD as well as a forward movement.

LETHARGY and INERTIA are the twin enemies that are abroad in America today.

No one wants to lose his liberties; but liberty is the last thing that the average citizen thinks of when so-called "socializing" and "security" bills are introduced into Congress or into our Legislatures.

He thinks only of the immediate "benefits" that are glibly promised to him by the professional Santa Claus.

He doesn't know, because he is often mentally too lethargic to think it out, that in this world NOTHING IS GIVEN TO ANYBODY WITHOUT TAKING SOMETHING AWAY.

The sinister forces that are today undermining our liberties with Utopian promises of big red apples and luscious free pancakes are NEVER asleep, NEVER lethargic, NEVER off-guard.

Public LETHARGY, GULLIBILITY, INERTIA—that's the road to Stalinism and Hitlerism.

On your toes—ALWAYS—is the price of liberty!
